Nine Killed In Crash of Bolling Field Transport

Seven Victims of Collision in N. J. Reported to Be Area Personnel

Nine men, seven of them said to be Bolling Field personnel, were killed when their C-117 transport collided in mid-air with a B-25 near Newton, N. J., yesterday and crashed in flames.

The Air Force identified the pilot, copilot and crew chief of the C-117, but withheld names of the six passengers, four of whom boarded the plane at Bolling Field, pending notification of next of kin.

Those identified as dead, all stationed at Bolling, were:

Capt. William D. Beety, jr., 30, of 220 Wain pl. se.

Capt. John B. Fitts, jr., 26, the copilot, of Linkhorn Park, Virginia Beach, Va.

Plane a Converted C-47

First reports were that the passengers aboard the C-117 were assistant chaplains en route to a Protestant laymen's retreat at the Jesse Lee Academy, West Reading, Conn.

An Air Force spokesman at Bolling Field, however, later corrected this report and said the passengers were rank-and-file soldiers handpicked by their commands for the privilege of attending the retreat.

The C-117, a converted C-47, left Bolling Field at 10:35 a. m. with its crew of three and four passengers. Two additional passengers were taken aboard at Middletown, Pa.

The crash occurred shortly before 1 p. m. and within two hours New Jersey State police had recovered all nine bodies from the wreckage.

The B-25 that sideswiped the C-117 in midair miraculously escaped with nothing worse than a damaged wing tip.

Its crew of three, that included two lieutenant colonels as pilot and copilot, had taken off from Stewart Field, Newburgh, N. Y., en route to Bolling Field a short time before the crash. The crew managed to return the B-25 to Stewart Field and land safely.

Capt. James Viccarelli, public information officer at the Air Force base at Middletown, said Lieut. A. H. Albrecht of the New Jersey State Police had witnessed the collision.

Viccarelli said Albrecht told him that after the collision the C-117 began circling the area when a wing fell off. Then it crashed, bursting into flames, five miles north of Newton.

The crash occurred near a swamp on the Blakeslee farm near Newton. Pieces of wreckage spread over a 500-foot-square area. The tail piece of the plane was found

Traffic Toll Of Children Reaches 8

Two-Year-Old Girl Runs Into Path of Brick-Laden Truck

D. C. traffic deaths, 1948..... 46
Deaths this day last year... 46
Total traffic deaths, 1947... 72

The toll of District children killed this year in traffic accidents mounted to a record high yesterday with the death of a 2-year-old girl who ran into the path of a brick-laden truck.

It was the third child traffic fatality in the past four days and the eighth so far this year. Ten children died in traffic accidents in 1947.

Yesterday's victim was Doris Jean Kennedy of 1015 Maryland ave. sw. Police said she ran in front of a truck at 12:43 p. m. at 10th and C sts. sw. The truck, loaded with bricks, was operated by Lewis W. Creel, 35, of 422 10th st. nw., police reported.

According to police, the girl had followed her 8-year-old step-sister, Hazel Shirley Brown, to a nearby store on a bubble gum purchasing expedition.

They said Hazel emerged from the store, saw the child running to her, and told her to go back. Their mother had forbidden them to leave the house, police said.

The little girl, obeying her sister, ran directly in front of the truck, police reported. She was pronounced dead on the scene by Dr. R. C. Hunt.

Creel was held on a technical charge for the coroner in the event an inquest is held. Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, acting coroner, indicated last night, however, an inquest probably would be unnecessary.

Doris Jean was one of seven children of Mr. and Mrs. James Brown, of the Maryland ave. address. Brown is a bricklayer.

Coroner's juries yesterday returned verdicts of accidental death in the traffic fatalities Saturday and Monday of two other children.

They were 10-year-old Benjamin Jackson, jr., of 5045 Bass pl. se., who was fatally injured Saturday afternoon in a bicycle-car collision at 53rd st. and Central ave. ne., and Raymond T. Whittington, 5, of 70 M st. se., who was killed

Dual Budget Studied by D. C. Board

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Faced with the prospect of a crippling deficit—whether or not Congress passes a local sales tax—top District officials are now considering setting up two separate budgets for the next fiscal year, it was learned yesterday.

Under this scheme, the main "A" budget would allow only for essential expenditures in operating the local government. A secondary "B" budget would permit the spending of money for construction activities and other capital outlay only as funds flowed into the city treasury.

Ten years ago, faced with a similar but less serious situation, the District government submitted "A" and "B" budgets to the Budget Bureau, the agency which must review all Federal and District income-outgo estimates. At that time, the District anticipated a deficit of $1,800,000.

The District is virtually certain to end the present 1949 fiscal year $1,600,000 in the red, and may add as much as $14,500,000 more to the debit side of the ledger by the end of fiscal 1950.

Shortage Probable

For the present fiscal year—which began July 1, 1948—the District is operating on a budget of just under 100 million dollars. This sum was fixed by Congress, which scraped the bottom of the District's reserves barrel and then cut off various proposals in order to keep the overall figure below the 100-million-dollar mark.

Even so, with all the scraping and cutting, the District will still be short $1,600,000 by the end of this fiscal year.

Next year the outlook is much worse.

At the outset, department heads

GI, Called Home For Funeral, Talks To Wife on Phone

Indianapolis, Aug. 24 (U.P.)—Corpl. Marion Williams today recovered from shock caused when his "dead" wife answered his phone call.

Williams received a cablegram August 19 while he was on duty with the United States Army in Germany. It said his wife, Grace, had died. The Army rushed him home to attend the funeral.

When Williams landed in New York, he telephoned home to learn the time of the funeral. Mrs. Williams answered the phone. She said she was feeling pretty good, thanks.

The American Red Cross said a mixup in names appeared to be responsible.

Staff Chiefs Call 'Quits' To Rivalry

Clear Understanding Of Duties Now Exists, 300 Top Officers Told

Top men of the Army, Navy and Air Force called "quits" jointly and publicly yesterday on the recently increasing inter-service rivalry, especially between the Navy and Air Force.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff; Admiral Louis Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, and Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force Chief, addressed a meeting of 300 top Army, Navy and Air Force planning officers. Each asked that the "harmony" word be passed down the line.

Navy Inspector Hits 'Too Much Eating,' Etc.

Too many Naval officers eat too much, drink too much, smoke too much and sit too much, Rear Adm. Hewlett Thebaud, the Navy's inspector general, says in an opinion given the Chief of Naval Operations, and the medical department has been assigned to do something about it. Story on Page 14.

Force and Navy had been mounting over their individual interpretations of just how much ground is covered by a ruling that authority and responsibility in strategic air warfare belong to the Air Force.

The row was a top item of business at a Joint Chiefs of Staff meeting in Newport, R. I., over the weekend with Secretary of Defense Forrestal as referee.

Forrestal told the military planners he is convinced that at the top command level there is a "clear understanding" that the Air Force has the responsibility of strategic air warfare.

But also the Air Force understands that it is "not merely to permit but to seek all the help it can get from naval air in the use of air power, either strategically or tactically," he added.

Likewise, the Navy is assigned the job of antisubmarine warfare, Forrestal said. But it understands that it is "to invite all the help

Soviet Closing Its Consulates In U. S. Over Kasenkina Case; American Note Is Rejected

General Accord Reported Reached In Four-Power Kremlin Parleys

Moscow, Aug. 24 (AP).—A highly informed source said today a general area of agreement has been reached in the four-power Kremlin talks and further lengthy negotiations will deal largely with technicalities.

The technicalities are not trifles and will necessitate considerable negotiations.

[The United Press quoted an unnamed diplomat in London: "Don't expect any immediate lifting of the blockade, a solution of the currency problem or the calling of a four-power Ministers' meeting. The major hope now is that there may be an agreement on how to proceed to lift the blockade and solve the currency problem." Editor's note.]

Berlin Square Troop Withdrawal Discussed

Soviet and western Allied officials discuss proposal to withdraw their troops from Potsdamer Square, scene of several recent incidents in blockaded Berlin. Story on Page 4.

Molotov seemed to have cleared the atmosphere here and the source here said chances of a solid agreement were "fair."

No Cause for Pessimism

"Some progress" has been made, the source said, and there is no cause for pessimism. The Western envoys and the Soviets are now said to have reduced their terms to the "lowest denominator."

If there had not been progress at last night's session, the series of talks would have come to an end, the source added.

It was stressed that despite the length of the sessions, the delicacy of the subject and the frankness exhibited by both sides, there has been no loss of temper and the conversations have been diplomatically correct and polite.

There were indications that the four powers might make a public statement soon, but it is not definitely known when the announcement could be expected since there must obviously be consultations in the four capitals.

Although there is little indication of how much ground such an announcement would cover, it was reported it should at least be substantial enough to put to rest some of the rumors around the world.

The governments of the United States, Britain and France now have complete reports on the latest conference. The three Western envoys met at the American Embassy after leaving the Kremlin and all three were reported to have worked all night on their reports to Washington, London and Paris.

Informed London sources said definitely there will be further meetings in Moscow. They expect a lull before the next Kremlin meeting because the new factors in the situation require careful study.

French Foreign Office sources indicated in Paris that last night's Kremlin talk had "saved" negotiations from collapsing.

Russians Also Ask America to Close Consulate At Vladivostok

The Soviet Union informed the State Department last night it is closing its two consulates in the United States—in New York and San Francisco—and is asking that the United States Consulate at Vladivostok be closed.

State Department Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said the note also rejected the American note of last week on the case of the runaway Russian school teachers.

A statement issued by McDermott said:

"After office hours today we received a note from the Soviet Embassy. It has not been fully translated, but seems to maintain their position and refuses to accept our statements about the events in New York.

"The note says the Russians are closing their consulates in New York and San Francisco. They ask us to close our consulate in Vladivostok, and canceled an understanding for establishment of another consulate at Leningrad."

[A consulate's primary function is to look after its country's commercial interests in a city of another country. This differs from an embassy's function in that the latter's first consideration is with political relations. Editor's note.]

Only Consulate at Vladivostok

McDermott recalled that the United States had negotiated unsuccessfully with Russia for more than a year for establishment of a consulate at Leningrad. At present the only United States consulate in Russia is the one at Vladivostok.

Diplomatic sources emphasized the action does not constitute a breaking off of diplomatic relations.

Central figures in the school-teacher case are Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kasenkina and Mikhail Samarine, Russian citizens who had taught the children of Soviet officials in this country.

The United States has requested the recall of Jacob M. Lomakin, Soviet consul general in New York, because of his conduct in the case of Mrs. Kasenkina, who jumped from a third-story consulate window after Lomakin claimed he had rescued her from "White Russian" kidnapers. Samarine, who contacted the FBI, testified last week before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Lomakin has made preparations to sail Saturday on the steamship Stockholm of the Swedish-American Line.

Dulles Backs 'Moral Law' Against Czech's Marxism

Amsterdam, Aug. 24 (AP).—Clashing East-West views on Soviet policy and communism today were laid before the World Council of Churches by a United States Republican Party foreign-policy maker and a Czech professor.

John Foster Dulles, a Presbyterian lay leader and adviser both to the Republican Party and the United States State Department under a bipartisan foreign policy, said:

"The Soviet Communist regime is not a regime of peace and indeed it does not purport to be. It may not, and I hope that it does not, want international war. But if so, that is a matter of expediency, not of principle."

Czech Discounts U. S. Power

Dulles, who has been assailed as a warmonger by the Russians, told the assembly:

"Marxian communism is atheistic and materialistic. Its leaders reject the concept of moral law. There is, says Stalin, no such thing as 'eternal justice.' Laws are merely the means whereby those in power carry out their will and human beings have no rights that are God-given and, therefore, not subject to be taken away by man."

Prof. Joseph L. Hromadka of Prague, a professor in theology on the John Huss faculty in Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia, gave this view from the other side of the iron curtain:

"What we are witnessing is . . . the end of Western supremacy within the realm of the international order . . . even the enormous wealth, the military and the atomic power of the American Nation must not deceive us." He said this was a time when "the underdogs of society" are on the march.

Living Costs at All-Time High; GM to Hike Pay of 333,000

Increase Effective Under Pact Geared To Living Expenses

BLS Figures Based On Goods, Services For Moderate Incomes

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The increase in the cost of living, announced yesterday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, will bring a pay increase to approximately 333,000 employes of the General Motors Corp.

The increase will amount to three cents an hour for about 265,000 employes paid on an hourly basis. The increase will take effect September 1.

Another 68,000 salaried employes, grouped under a somewhat different formula, will get $25 extra next month as a cost-of-living bonus for the last three months, and $40 in December as a cost-of-living bonus for the three months, September, October and November.

Under an agreement with CIO employes, General Motors last spring hitched its wages to the Consumers Price Index of BLS. Wages will be adjusted again December 1, either up or down according to the BLS index at that time.

The 3-cent an hour increase will be in addition to the 11-cent an hour boost in wages granted to

Two Government agencies reported yesterday that the cost of living is at an all-time high.

The cost of food for a year for an average family of three persons in June reached the record of $705, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics said. The cost for filling the same market basket last year was $642; the average prewar cost (from 1935 to 1939) was only $340.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported an increase of 1.2 per cent in the average prices of "goods and services purchased by moderate income families in large cities" between June 15 and July 15.

The Consumers' Price Index (formerly called the Cost of Living Index) on July 15, stood at 173.7 per cent of the average for 1935-39. This was 9.7 per cent above a year ago. It was 30.3 per cent above June, 1946, and 76.2 per cent above August, 1939.

BLS added that retail food prices for July were 216.8 of the 1935-1939 average. In other words, in July it cost $2.17 to buy the

Rankin's Opponents Concede His Nomination in Mississippi

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Representative John E. Rankin, outspoken advocate of white supremacy and States' rights, won a fifteenth term with surprising ease tonight as both of his opponents in the Democratic primary conceded defeat.

Nomination by the Democratic Party in Mississippi is tantamount to election, as Republican opposition is only token.

Returns from 183 of the 224 precincts in the First Congressional District gave Rankin a thumping majority of 13,000 votes against 5232 for Circuit Judge Raymond Jarvis and 4201 for Claude Clayton.

Clayton, who ran within 2000 votes of Rankin when he challenged him for his job in 1946, was the first to concede as he trailed third in the mounting vote count. He said that, like General Stilwell in Burma, "I took a hell of a licking."

"I have extended my congratulations to Congressman Rankin upon the magnificent race he made," Clayton said. "I will cheerfully work with him for the welfare of the people of this section for the next two years."

At his home in Booneville, Jarvis conceded a few minutes after Clayton, saying that he had also congratulated the victor and "there is no feeling of bitterness on our part and no sense of recrimination."

Notes Pinned to Trees Save Dr. Murray in Alberta Wilds

Grande Prairie, Alberta, Aug. 24 (AP).—A trail of notes pinned to trees saved the life of Dr. V. B. Murray, 60, of Washington, D. C., who was missing for more than two weeks after his plane crashed in the wilds of northern Alberta.

Murray is in a hospital tonight suffering from hunger and exposure. The extent of his injuries is not yet known.

He was found in the lonely Nose Creek area 75 miles southwest of Grande Prairie by J. McCullough, a farmer and trapper, who followed the notes for help Murray had placed on the trees. Grande Prairie is 240 miles northwest of Edmonton.

First word that Murray, object of a search by the Royal Canadian Air Force, had been located was received by the mounted police here yesterday when McCullough telephoned to say he was bringing in the injured man.

It was necessary for the rescuer to take Murray by pack horse about 25 miles to a road. Murray was reported missing August 7 after filing a flight plan from Edmonton to Grande Prairie on what he said was the first leg of a trip to Fairbanks, Alaska. Nose Creek is well off the airline route.

Hiss, Chambers On Stand Today

zine, has named Hiss as one of several top Federal policy makers who were under orders from a Soviet agent.

Meanwhile the reputed boss of the Communist underground operations in high Government places, J. V. Peters, is slated to be served with a subpena in New York Monday as the first step in bringing him before the committee.

Plans for serving the subpena were announced late yesterday by acting Chairman Karl E. Mundt (R., So. Dak.). He said the committee had been notified by Watson B. Miller, Commissioner of Immigration, that Peters was to be present for a deportation proceeding against him in New York City Monday. Peters, now free under $5000 bond, is to be produced by his lawyer, Mundt said, and a committee investigator will be on hand to serve the subpena.

Mundt said that Immigration Commissioner Millar wants Chambers to testify at the Peters deportation hearing and that Peters will be made available for quizzing by the House committee. He said there had been no expectation of having Peters on hand for the hearing today, but that "we want to find out what part Peters played in the whole thing."

Two Go on Stand Together

Hiss and Chambers will go on the witness stand together at 10:30 a. m. today in the caucus room on the third floor of the Old House Office Building. A majority of the 9-member committee, headed by Depresentative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), is slated to hear what Hiss and Chambers say. The caucus room holds about 1000 persons.

Mundt said that the hearing might last all day, into the night, and perhaps into Thursday. Again, he said, developments in the testimony might cut it short and shift the entire matter to the courts for perjury action. He said other potential witnesses would be on hand, but he would not say who they were.

From Hiss, the committee late yesterday received a letter of bitter protest against its conduct, and against his accuser, Chambers. Mundt declined comment on the letter beyond saying that the committee would consider it in an executive session at 9:30 a. m. today before the public hearing.

Change in Procedure

Hiss' letter called for an end of what he termed the committee's "verdict-first-and-testimony later tactics." He said the committee should "delay no longer penetrating to the bedrock of the facts relevant to the charge which you have publicized—that I am or have been a Communist."

The letter, addressed to Chairman Thomas, asked the committee to make a comprehensive study of Hiss' public record, and suggested that high officials with whom he served be called as his character witnesses. He listed a number of Congressmen, judges, former top Government officials, and others—the list included Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Justice Stanley Reed of the Supreme Court, former Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota, John Foster Dulles, foreign affairs adviser to Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for President.

"Ask them if they ever found in me anything except the highest adherence to duty and honor," said Hiss. He suggested they would know his true character far better than his accuser.

Mundt said there is no present intention of calling as witnesses the persons listed by Hiss for character references—he referred to the first name on the list, Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and commented: "Vandenberg doesn't know if Hiss knew Chambers or not."

In preparation for today's hearing, seven witnesses were heard in secret House committee sessions yesterday. They included Louis Budenz, a former editor of the Daily Worker, a Negro woman identified—but not named—as a former maid employed by Hiss, three officials of a Washington automobile firm, and two other men whom the committee would not identify.

Auto Men Can't Remember

Their testimony was understood to be focussed on various points of conflict in the earlier testimony of Chambers and Hiss. The officials of the automobile firm, the Cherner Motor Co., were called to testify on the 1936 sale of Hiss' 1929 car. The officials were Joseph Cherner, head of the firm; Sam Mensh, vice president, and Henry Gertler, treasurer. Gertler commented afterward: "We have no recollection of a transaction 12 years ago, it was just wasting our time to come down here." He explained that District traffic records showed Hiss' car had been "assigned," or sold, to his firm. Whether Hiss gave, sold or lent his car to Chambers, or did none of these things, forms one point of conflict in their earlier statements.

In another development, a Senate Investigating Subcommittee announced that Attorney General Tom Clark had offered to meet with Chairman Homer Ferguson on September 8 to discuss the latter's demand for Government employe loyalty records.

Do Agencies Ignore FBI?

Ferguson wants information on the William W. Remington case. Remington is a suspended Commerce Department official who, Ferguson says, was transferred to a confidential position while undergoing an FBI check. The Senator wants to know whether Government agencies have ignored FBI notices in personnel shifts while investigations are under way.

Today's meeting of Hiss and Chambers will be their first face-to-face appearance in public. They were brought together by the committee last week in a New York City Hotel, and there Hiss admitted having known Chambers as a "George Crosley" in 1934 and 1935.

Harris & Ewing

LOUIS BUDENZ
Will be called back

Between the stories of Hiss and Chambers the committee has listed many points of conflict, and these are expected to be at issue in today's quizzing of the two men. The big conflict is over the charge by Chambers—and Hiss' denial—that Hiss was in the top-level Washington "apparatus" of the Communist Underground. Chambers said the group's original purpose was Communist infiltration of the American Government and that espionage was "certainly one of its ultimate objectives."

Denied Communist Charge

Chambers said that in his position as a courier for the Communist Party between New York and Washington he met with the group including Hiss in a Washington apartment that was the closest thing to a headquarters the group had. Chambers made the charge August 3. Two days later Hiss denied in a committee hearing that he had ever been a member of the Communist Party, a Communist front organization, or had followed the party line. He denied having known Chambers. When they met later, Hiss made a close inspection of Chambers before naming him as the "George Crosley" he knew in the '30's.

Hiss has insisted he knew Chambers only as George Crosley. Chambers' version is that he never used the name Crosley, that Hiss knew him as "Carl."

Called 'Crosley' a Dead Beat

Hiss said he never knew Chambers as a Communist, only as a freelance writer working on a story about the Senate munitions investigation; Chamber said he was known to Hiss as a Communist Party courier.

Hiss said he sublet an apartment to Crosley, Chambers said there was no lease. Hiss said his car went with the apartment; Chambers said he did not get the car.

Hiss said he never was a Communist or paid dues; Chambers said they were Communists together, and that he had collected Hiss' dues many times.

Hiss described Chambers as a deadbeat who did not pay his rent for the subleased apartment, in which he lived several months; Chambers said there was never a question of rent, that Hiss let him have the apartment free, and that he occupied it only for several weeks.

Hiss said their friendship ended because "Crosley" was an inveterate repeater in asking for favors; Chambers said they broke up when he tried to persuade Hiss to leave the Communist Party and Hiss, in tears, refused.

Committee members said there were other points of conflict about which the two men would be asked.

Laney Criticizes Negro Admission To U. of Arkansas

Little Rock, Aug. 24 (AP).—Gov. Ben Laney today said he "could see no grounds for allowing any Negro to enter" the University of Arkansas Medical School "at this time."

Commiting on announcement of the university board that Edith Mae Irby, 20-year-old Hot Springs Negro, would be admitted to the medical school at the next term, Laney said:

"Hundreds of white boys who tried to get into the medical school before were told they couldn't get in because they lacked room.

"If we had a medical school big enough to accommodate everybody, then the board's action would have been justified."

The university board said that a class of 90 had been accepted from a list of 230 applications from Arkansas residents.

Governor Laney said he was not consulted by the university board on the matter.

New York County Has Grasshopper Invasion

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 24 (U.P.)—Jefferson County was under siege today by grasshoppers.

Patches of the insects 10 to 15 feet across were observed floating on Lake Ontario. As they were washed ashore, they swarmed over docks, covering them.

Several farms reported the hoppers were gobbing up corn and garden vegetables.

Navy Casualties Five In Guam Gas Blaze

Guam, Aug. 24 (AP).—The Navy announced today that five Navy men perished in the spectacular gasoline tank fire here Sunday.

A million gallons of gasoline were consumed in the storage plant blaze which caused more than $175,000 damage.

Panther Breaks Loose During Plane Flight

Paris, Aug. 24 (NYHT.)—A Panther broke loose in the baggage compartment of a Saigon-to-Paris plane today as it approached Orly Airport—either because its cage was insufficiently firm or because a press agent for the Bouglione Circus thought it would be a good idea.

Police arrived at the airport and after four hours of discreet activity, persuaded the panther to reenter his cage. No one, not even the panther, was injured.

Text of Hiss Letter to House Committee

Following is the text of a letter Alger Hiss sent yesterday to Chairman Thomas of the House Committee on Un-American Activities:

TOMORROW will mark my fourth appearance before your committee. I urge, in advance of that hearing, that your committee delay no longer in penetrating to the bedrock of the facts relevant to the charge which you have publicized—that I am or have been a Communist.

This charge goes beyond the personal. Attempts will be made to use it, and the resulting publicity, to discredit recent great achievements of this country in which I was privileged to participate.

Certain members of your committee have already demonstrated that this use of your hearings and the ensuing publicity is not a mere possibility, it is a reality. Your acting chairman himself was trigger-quick to cast such discredit. Before I had a chance to testify, even before the press had a chance to reach me for comment, before you had sought one single fact to support the charge made by a self-confessed liar, spy, and traitor, your acting chairman pronounced judgment that I am guilty as charged, by stating that the country should beware of the peace work with which I have been connected.

I urge that these committee members abandon such verdict-first - and - testimony-later tactics, along with dramatic confrontations in secret sessions, and get down to business.

FIRST, my record should be explored. It is inconceivable that there could have been on my part, during 15 years or more in public office, serving all three branches of the Government, judicial, legislative, and executive, any departure from the highest rectitude without its being known. It is inconceivable that the men with whom I was intimately associated during those 15 years should not know my true character far better than this accuser. It is inconceivable that if I had not been of the highest character, this would not have manifested itself at some time or other, in at least one of the innumerable actions I took as a high official, actions publicly recorded in the greatest detail.

During the period cited by this accuser, I was chief counsel to the Senate Committee Investigating the Munitions Industry, at a great many public hearings, fully reported in volumes to be found in libraries in every major American city. During my term of service under the Solicitor General of the United States, I participated in the preparation of briefs on a great many of the largest issues affecting the United States. Those briefs are on public file in the United States Supreme Court, in the Department of Justice, and in law libraries in various American cities.

As an official of the Department of State, I was appointed Secretary General, the top administrative officer, of the peace-building international assembly that created the United Nations. My actions in that post are a matter of detailed public record. The same is true of my actions at other peace-building and peace-strengthening international meetings in which I participated—at Dumbarton Oaks and elsewhere in this country, at Malta, at Yalta, at London and in other foreign cities. All my actions in the executive branch of the Government, including my work in the AAA on farm problems, are fully recorded in the public records.

IN ALL THIS WORK I was frequently, and for extensive periods, under the eye of the American press and of the statesmen under whom or in association with whom I worked. They saw my every gesture, my every movement, my every facial expression. They heard the tones in which I spoke, the words I uttered, the words spoken by others in my presence. They knew my every act relating to official business, both in public and in executive conference.

Here is a list of the living persons of recognized stature under whom or in association with whom I worked in the government (there may be omissions which I should like to supply in a supplemental list):

1. Men now in the United States Senate:

Senator Tom Connally, a United States Delegate to the San Francisco Conference which created the United Nations, and to the first meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations in London.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg, a member of the Senate Committee Investigating the Munitions Industry, and a member of the San Francisco Conference and London General Assembly delegations.

2. Men now in the House of Representatives:

Representative Sol Bloom, a member of both the San Francisco and the London delegations.

Representative Charles Eaton, also a member of both the San Francisco and the London delegations, although his health kept him from making the trip to London.

3. Former Secretaries of State Cordell Hull, Edward Stettinius, James Byrnes.

4. Former Undersecretaries of State Joseph Grew, also a member of the Dumbarton Oaks delegation; Dean Acheson, William Clayton.

5. United States Judges:

Stanley Reed, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, who as Solicitor General was my immediate superior during my service in the Department of Justice.

Homer Bone and Bennett Clark, former Senators and members of the Munitions Committee.

6. Men Formerly in Congress:

Former United States Senator Gerald Nye, chairman of the Munitions Committee, who appointed me as the chief attorney of that committee.

Former United States Senator James Pope, a member of the Munitions Committee and now a director of TVA.

Former United States Senator John Townsend, a member of the London delegation.

7. Others at international conferences where I assisted their labors to build the peace.

Isaiah Bowman, member of Dumbarton Oaks delegation, President of Johns Hopkins University.

John Foster Dulles, a chief adviser to the San Francisco delegation and a member of each delegation to the meetings of the General Assembly.

LIEUT. GEN. STANLEY EMBICK, a member of the Dumbarton Oaks delegation.

Charles Fahy, former legal adviser of the Department of State and member of the United States delegation to the General Assembly.

Gen. Muir Fairchild, Air Force member of the Dumbarton Oaks delegation.

Henry Fletcher, former Assistant Secretary of State and member of the Dumbarton Oaks delegation.

Green Hackworth, former legal adviser of the Department of State and a member of the Dumbarton Oaks delegation, now a judge of the International Court of Justice.

Admiral Arthur Hepburn, member of the United States delegation at Dumbarton Oaks.

Stanley Hornbeck, member of the Dumbarton Oaks Delegation, later our Ambassador to the Hague, and earlier, as chief Far Eastern expert of the Department of State, my immediate superior from the fall of 1939 until the early winter of 1944.

Breckinridge Long, former Assistant Secretary of State, and member of the Dumbarton Oaks Delegation.

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT, member of the San Francisco Delegation and also of each United States Delegation to the meetings of the General Assembly.

Rear Admiral Harold Train, member of the Dumbarton Oaks Delegation.

Frank Walker, former Postmaster General and member of the Delegation to the London meeting of the General Assembly.

Edwin Wilson, my predecessor as director of the office for United Nations affairs and my last immediate superior in the Department of State, who was also a member of the Dumbarton Oaks Delegation, now our Ambassador at Ankara.

8. Other superiors to whom I reported:

Chester Davis, Administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and now president of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

Francis Sayre, my first direct superior in the Department of State, former Assistant Secretary of State and United States High Commissioner to the Philippines, now United States Representative to the Trusteeship Council of the United Nations and member of the United States Delegation to the General Assembly.

These are the men whom I was honored to help in carrying out the finest and deepest American traditions. That is my record. I too have had a not-insignificant role in the magnificent achievements of our Nation in recent times.

THESE MEN I have listed are the men with whom and under whom I worked intimately during my 15 years in Government service—the men best able to testify concerning the loyalty with which I performed the duties assigned me. All are persons of unimpeachable character, in a position to know my work from day to day and hour to hour through many years. Ask them if they ever found in me anything except the highest adherence to duty and honor.

Then the committee can judge, and the public can judge, whether to believe a self-discredited accuser whose names and aliases are as numerous and as casual as his accusations.

The other side of this question is the reliability of the allegations before this committee, the undocumented statements of the man who now calls himself Whittaker Chambers.

Is he a man of consistent reliability, truthfulness and honor? Clearly not. He admits it, and the committee knows it. Indeed, is he a man of sanity?

Getting the facts about Whittaker Chambers, if that is his name, will not be easy. My own counsel have made inquiries in the past few days an dhave learned that his career is not, like those of normal men, an open book. His operations have been furtive and concealed. Why? What does he have to hide?

I am glad to help get the facts.

AT THIS POINT I should like to repeat suggestions made by me at preceding hearings with respect to the most effective method of getting facts so far as I can supply them. The suggestions I made beginning with the very first time I appeared before your committee were not then accepted, and the result has only been confusion and delay. Let me illustrate by recalling to your minds what I said when you asked me to identify the accuser, not by producing him under your subpena power but by producing only a newspaper photograph taken many years after the time when, by his own statements, I had last seen him. I said to you on the occasion of my first appearance:

"I would much rather see the individual . . . I would not want to take oath that I have never seen that man. I would like to see him and I would be better able to tell whether I had ever seen him. Is he here today? . . . I hoped he would be. . . ."

Let me add one further example of how the procedures followed have caused confusion and delay. In your secret sessions, you asked me housekeeping and minor details of years ago that few, if any, busy men could possibly retain in their memories with accuracy. I told you, and one of your own members acknowledged, that you or I should consult the records. I warned you that I had not checked them and that I doubted if I could be helpful under those circumstances.

I am having a check made of the records and will furnish the results to you.

One personal word. My action in being kind to Crosley years ago was one of humaneness, with results which surely some members of the committee have experienced. You do a favor for a man, he comes for another, he gets a third favor from you. When you finally realize he is an inveterate repeater, you get rid of him. If your loss is only a loss of time and money, you are lucky. You may find yourself caluminated in a degree depending on whether the man is unbalanced or worse.

Panyushkin In Surprise Visit to N. Y.

New York, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Mrs. Oksana Stepanova Kasenkina today agreed to tell the world why she jumped from a third floor window of the Russian consulate, but at the last moment she changed her mind.

The schoolteacher said she had been exhausted by a session with photographers, and asked her doctors to bar reporters from her room in Roosevelt Hospital.

Shortly after the interview was canceled, Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin, whose presence in New York had not been announced, came out of the Russian consulate and drove away in a limousine.

Panyushkin At Consulate

With Panyushkin was Leonid Feodotov, who said he was a consulate secretary. No reason was given for Panyushkin's visit. It was thought, however, that he may have been conferring with Soviet Consul-General Jacob M. Lomakin on an answer to the State Department's demand that Lomakin return to Russia.

Later a station wagon pulled up at the consulate. Seven large suitcases were loaded by employes and the vehicles drove away. Then three men with briefcases arrived, entered and were seen pulling down all the front window shades.

A police lieutenant who barred reporters from Mrs. Kasenkina's hospital room, said, "the excitement has tired her and she doesn't want to see anyone."

Newsreel and newspaper cameramen had been in her room, and hospital authorities said they had made her nervous with their flash bulbs.

Doctors Cancel Interview

As reporters approached her room, Mrs. Kasenkina called for her doctors and said she did not feel up to an interview. Dr. Joseph Ford, her physician, and Dr. Grant B. Pennoyer, her surgeon, then canceled the interview.

The hospital originally had planned to admit only a few reporters, but more than a dozen tried to crowd in.

The reporters had been waiting since early morning to hear Mrs. Kasenkina's own version of her jump from the consulate and had submitted 13 questions in writing in advance.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Kasenkina had nodded her head approvingly when the questions were read to her.

Walking Papers Sent To Truman on Lomakin

Only a few strokes of President Truman's pen are needed to strip Jacob M. Lomakin of his status as Russian Consul General in New York.

State Department Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said yesterday the "necessary papers" had been sent to the White House Monday and presumably will be delivered to Mr. Truman aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg, on which he is vacationing.

The Government demanded Lomakin's recall last Thursday and criticized him strongly for his "improper" conduct in the case of Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina, the Russian school teacher who jumped out of a window at the consulate.

Russians Will Close 2 Consulates in U. S.

in London, said the Soviet government had rejected the American note as "unfounded and contrary to fact."

The American presentation had rejected Russian charges that Mrs. Kasenkina and Samarin and his wife were abducted by the anti-Soviet Tolstoy Foundation with the connivance of American officials. The two teachers wanted to stay in the United States, the State Department note said.

Last night's Moscow broadcast said:

"The government of the USSR reject the unfounded statements of the State Department about Soviet government officials, and considers the actions and statements of the Soviet government and its officials in the United States in connection with the case of Kasenkina and Samarin are completely in accord with the legitimate interests of the Soviet Union in defending its citizens from criminal attempts against their liberty and civil rights."

The broadcast also quoted a Soviet declaration that "a situation has recently been created in the United States in which the normal executions of their functions by Soviet consulates in the United States become impossible."

Officials at the New York and San Francisco consulates would not comment last night on the closing order, according to press dispatches.

The Associated Press said several crates were taken from the consulate in New York yesterday, marked for shipment to Moscow.

Text of Russian Note to U. S.

London (Wednesday), Aug. 25 (A).—The text of the Soviet note to the United States rejecting the State Department's previous note on the Kasenkina and Samarin cases, as reported by Tass and broadcast by the Moscow radio:

IN REPLY to the note of the United States State Department of August 19 on case of Kasenkina and Samarin, the USSR Embassy in Washington declares the Soviet Government considers the assertions contained in the note as unfounded and contrary to fact.

Bypassing the facts cited in the statements of the Soviet government and its representatives, the State Department's note not only does not contribute to the clarification of obscure points in the case of the kidnapping of Kasenkina, Samarin, his wife and three young children, but merely hinders clarification of this affair and the part taken in it by certain persons and bodies.

The government of the USSR reject the unfounded statements of the State Department about Soviet government officials and considers that the actions and statements of the Soviet government and its official representatives in the U.S.A. in connection with the case of Kasenkina and Samarin is completely in accord with the legitimate interests of the Soviet Union in defending its citizens from criminal attempts against their liberty and civil rights.

The Government of the U.S.A. has at its disposal sufficient data including that cited in notes of the Embassy of U.S.S.R. of August 9 and 14 and in the statement of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the U.S.S.R. August 11. Confirming the fact of the kidnaping of Kosenkina and Samarin, participation in this affair of the bandit white guard organization the "Tolstoy Foundation" and the fact that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is involved in it.

AS FAR as Kasenkina is concerned, her letter of August 5 from "Reed Farm" to Consul General Lomakin and her letter to her relations dated July 10 (photostatic copies of which were placed at the disposal of the State Department in accordance with its request) as well as a voluntary statement made by her at a press conference before numerous correspondents of American newspapers on August 7, in which she reported on her abduction, proves sufficiently the improbability of contrary assertions.

Since at present Kasenkina is in a hospital virtually under prison conditions and free communication between her and Soviet representatives is not permitted, statements described to her cannot be considered as deserving any confidence, especially if one takes into consideration the serious condition of her health.

It is known from reports of the New York press that the bandit White Guard organization ("Tolstoy Foundation") headed by Alexandra Tolstaya is connected not only with the kidnaping of Kasenkina, but also with that of Samarin whose whereabouts are as yet unknown.

On the other hand, the State Department's note of August 19 confirms the fact that a very few days after his disappearance, Samarin was in the premises of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in New York. As long ago as August 10, Edward Mullins, chief inspector of the New York police, when he visited the consulate general told Lomakin, the Soviet Consul General in New York, that Samarin was under "the protection of the Government of the United States and the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Dulles Clashes With Marxist

speeches Oulles shook hands on the rostrum with Hromadka, a former refugee professor of Christian ethics at the Princeton (N. J.) Theological Seminary.

Dulles was applauded during this speech when he said:

"This is a time for the church to expose the evil of war and its futility. Many are talking about war as though it were an unpleasant but necessary remedy for existing ills

"The fact is that another World War would engulf all humanity in utter misery and make almost impossible the achievements of the good ends for which, no doubt, the combatants would profess to be fighting. At times war may have to be risked as the lesser of two evils. But there is no holy war."

Dulles said the problem was not one that could be solved by "trying to crush communism by force. Collective action may, at times, be required pursuant to the United Nations Charter, to protect member states or individual human beings in their charter rights. But it would be wrong and stupid to use violence in order to convince people that violence ought not to be used."

Dulles offered application of "the moral law" by the Western democracies as the way to solve the Communist problem.

Today, he said, "many who defend the institutions of the West do so on purely materialistic grounds, such as that they have developed mass production. Such reasons are inadequate. No political or social system should prevail unless it is the means whereby men are consciously trying to bring human conduct into accord with moral law and to enlarge the opportunity of men to exercise their human rights and fundamental freedoms."

Hromadka made it plain he was not saying the West is incurable and irrevocably condemned to the final collapse or decay. What I have in mind is Western man's apparent fear, frustration and helplessness in dealing with the great issues of our times.

YET up to the present time, the Soviet government cannot get any information on the fate of Samarin or his family.

Consequently the Soviet government confirms its stand and demands, as given in the above-mentioned notes of the Embassy and the statement of Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the USSR presented to the United States Ambassador in Moscow August 11 and insists that the representatives of the Soviet Union be granted the possibility of free and unobstructed access to Kasenkina and Samarin.

As regards the accusations of the State Department against USSR Consul General in New York Lomakin to the effect his actions constituted "abuse of the prerogatives of his position and a gross violation of internationally acepted standards" the Soviet government rejects these accusations as utterly unfounded and not corresponding with the facts.

The actions of USSR Consul General in New York Lomakin were aimed exclusively at protecting the rights of Soviet citizens and his statements to press representatives with a view to restoring the truth, which is being rudely distorted in inspired reports in certain American press organs, fully conform to internationally accepted standards and constitute a direct duty of consular representatives.

CONSIDERING all the above circumstances, the Soviet government states that a situation has has recently been created in the United States in which the normal execution of their functions by Soviet consulates in the United States becomes impossible. It will be seen from the State Department's note of August 19 that the United States Government not only does not intend to put an end to those actions of the American administrative authorities which are creating such a situation—to the extent of the American police invading the premises of the Soviet consulate in New York as was the case August 12—but on the contrary justified such a manifest violation of the rules accepted in international practice.

In view of the above circumstances the Soviet government has decided:

(A) Immediately to close both Soviet consulates in the United States, in New York and in San Francisco.

(B) To consider the United States consulate in Vladivostok subject to immediate closing in accordance with the principle of reciprocity. To regard on the same grounds, as having lost its validity the understanding previously reached between the U.S.S.R. government and the United States Government regarding the opening of a United States consulate in Leningrad.

Dr. Johnson, Canterbury Dean, Refuses to End Red Friendship

London, Aug. 24 (AP).—As far as Canterbury's "Red Dean" is concerned, the United States can either receive him as a friend of Soviet Russia or do without his presence.

The dean, Dr. Hewlett Johnson, disclosed last night that he had been refused a visa to enter the United States because American authorities disapprove of the national council of the American-Soviet Friendship Society which had invited him to be its guest.

An American official subsequently said in Washington that Dr. Johnson probably would be admitted if he came "on his own hook."

"Oh, dear, no," the 74-year-old churchman exclaimed today as he left by plane for Poland, "I do not go as a split personality."

In Poland, Dr. Johnson will attend a meeting of the "congress of intellectuals in the defense of peace."

The dean is expected to visit Canada early in November. He is scheduled to speak under auspices of the Ottawa People's Forum.

Businessman Dies After $500 Holdup

Chicago, Aug. 24 (AP).—A businessman collapsed and died today when two masked gunmen robbed his firm of about $500.

He was Rudolph Mayer, 56, office manager of the Rohm & Hass Plastics Co.

He collapsed after the gunmen herded him and three other employes into a corner.

Many Burma Reds Surrender

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 24 (AP).—The Burma government said tonight a large number of rebels have surrendered to federal forces.

Among these were several deserters from the Third Battalion of the Burma Rifles and a motor transport company which mutinied December 10 at the Mingaladon military cantonment, 15 miles north of Rangoon.

Other mutinous troops were said to have surrendered at Maymyo, 55 miles north of Mandalay, where the situation was reported returning to normal.

The communique said surrendered mutineers asserted morale was low among the rebels because of sickness and diminishing supplies of foods, arms and munitions.

Several skirmishes were reported and government forces were said to have routed the rebels and captured some in the engagements.

Assassin's Wire Upsets Car of Bishop, Priests

Cagliari, Sardinia, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Msgr. Antonio Tedde, Bishop of Sardina, and three priests narrowly escaped death last night when their car overturned after striking barbed wire which had been strung across a road near here. The four were bruised.

Police said the wire had been tied to trees on either side of the road in an attempt on the bishop's life. A few minutes before a truck had passed the point without hitting anything, they said.

Soviet, Allies Hold Berlin Peace Talks

Berlin, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Soviet and Western Allied officials conferred in secret today on "peace" measures in the local cold war, as Soviet fighter planes roared over the United States sector.

Col. Frank L. Howley, U. S. commandant in Berlin, and Soviet Deputy Commandant Col. Alexei Jelisarov discussed proposals to "demilitarize" Potsdamer Square, where the United States, British and Russian sectors converge and which is the scene of continuing tension.

While the talks were in progress, six Yak fighters flew illegally over the United States sector, threatening to create new disagreement among the occupying powers.

United States air safety officers said the planes flew over in two formations of three planes each, violating air-space regulations which forbid formation flights over foreign sectors. It was the third such violation this month.

The incident occurred as Britain announced plans to increase her Berlin air supply fleet by chartering commercial planes. The airliners would be loaded and serviced by military personnel, but flown by civilian pilots. The first commercial planes were scheduled to enter service Friday.

Two United States airlift planes returning empty from Berlin collided near Frankfurt, crashing and killing the four United States airmen aboard.

Potsdamer Square was the focus of the peace proposals being considered today. The key downtown intersection, long a center of German black market activity, was the scene of international clashes over the weekend which led all three powers to reinforce military police guards.

The proposals initiated by the Americans emphasized two points:

1. Withdrawal of all but "routine" MP patrols from the square, leaving routine police work to German patrolmen in the three sectors.

2. Joint Soviet, American and British raids on black market centers along the sector boundaries.

The British today released Soviet, Maj. Ivan Lepedev, director of the Russian-operated Berlin propaganda radio station. Lepedev was arrested yesterday for speeding in the British sector.

Western authorities hoped the "peace" plan could be put in effect before Thursday, when the German City Council meets to discuss several potentially explosive issues.

Heading the agenda is a demand that council funds blocked in Soviet sector banks be released for the payment of municipal workers. The problems of the city's divided police force is also an issue.

The Soviet-licensed news agency, ADN, said Communist councilmen would also demand that food and coal distribution for the whole city be administered by the Soviet-operated German Economic Commission, and the Soviet-issued Ostmark be recognized as Berlin's only legal currency.

4 Fliers Die In Airlift Collision

Ravotzhausen, Germany, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Four Americans died today in the flaming wreckage of two C-47 airlift planes which collided in the air here.

Air Force officials said the two-man crew of each plane was killed, bringing to nine the total of dead since the air supply operation for blockaded Berlin began on June 26.

The two-engined planes were returning to Wiesbaden in overcast weather after helping the airlift set a new record in supplying Russian-blockaded Berlin. The planes carried a share of the 3020 tons of food and supplies sent to the city in a 24-hour period.

The nose of one plane tore off the tail of the other. They crashed about half a mile apart in recently harvested farmland. Flames prevented rescuers from reaching the bodies until an hour later.

U. S. Training Of Koreans To Continue

By the United Press

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—The United States agreed in a formal pact with Korea today to continue training Korean armed forces as long as American troops remain in the country.

The pact, signed by Korean President Syngman Rhee and American commander, Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, was the first of several planned agreements aimed at transferring responsibility from United States occupation forces to the new Korean government.

The United States already has given rifles, machineguns, clothing and reportedly mortars to the Korean constabulary, which actually is an army.

The Communist-controlled radio station at Pyongyang, capital of the Soviet occupation zone, today sounded one of its most belligerent warnings in saying that the North will attempt to unify the country under Communist control.

Kim Doo Bong, representing the North Korean People's Front, said in a speech relayed by the radio that Communist-sponsored elections scheduled to be held in North Korea were consistent with the coming establishment of the "new republic of Korea."

Battle on at Drop Of Cap, GI Learns What's Brewin'

Munich, Germany, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—The newspaper Suedeutsch Zeitung today reported a battle between the brown bears at the Munich Zoo and an unidentified American GI. The bears won on points.

The soldier reportedly climbed into the water basin at the bears' cage to retrieve his cap. Luckily, the bears had just been fed; unluckily, they were feeling playful.

The bears chased the GI into the water and tried to hold him under. One of the soldiers's buddies took off his pants and lowered them to the GI. The bears tore the pants to shreds. The same thing happened to another soldier's shirt.

Finally, a zoo keeper lowered himself into the basin and pulled out the GI. Badly scratched, he still didn't have his cap.

some distance from the wreckage.

Mrs. Elizabeth Snover of Newton said she was on her porch when she heard the plane overhead. She said the plane backfired once, then started to nose down.

The plane exploded, she said, and went plummeting out of her sight in a "ball of smoke."

Mrs. Snover said "pieces of the plane like silver flew in all directions."

A spokesman at Stewart Field where the B-25 limped to safety said its pilots described the C-117 zooming suddenly out of the clouds and vanishing immediately after the collision.

The B-25 was cruising at an altitude of 7000 feet on a routine flight to Bolling Field, the spokesman added.

The religious conference to which the victims were en route will be attended by 65 Protestant Air Force chaplains, according to Col. Charles I. Carpenter, Air Force Chief of Chaplains. All of them are being flown to Connecticut in Air Force transports.

The crew members of the C-117 killed yesterday were all attached to the 1100th Special Air Mission Unit at Bolling Field.

Beety is survived by his wife, Lois, and their 7-month-old son, William 3d. Beety piloted a B-17 in the European Theater during the war and was credited with 25 missions over Germany. His decorations include the Air Medal and the Bronze Star.

Fitts is survived by his wife, Ann, and a daughter. Like Beety, a veteran of the European Theater, his decorations included six bronze stars, the Air Medal with 14 clusters, the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Silver Star, the Purple Heart and a decoration from the Belgium government.

Stringer is survived by his wife, Irene, and a son, John, jr., 10 months. His wartime service was in the Far Eastern theater with the Tenth Air Force. He held the Far Eastern Theater Ribbon with three battle ribbons.

Eastern Airlines Crash Laid to Pilot

The Civil Aeronautics Board said yesterday that an Eastern Airline crash in which five persons were killed near here last January 13 probably was caused by the pilot's failure to follow proper procedure.

The plane, a Douglas DC-3 with nine persons aboard, struck a wooded hill along the Potomac River 5 miles south of Washington National Airport. The plane was en route from Houston, Tex., to Boston.

At the point of the crash, Eastern's rules provide that the airplane be at an altitude of 1500 feet above sea level. The plane struck a tree top 109 above sea level.

The pilot, Paul J. Saltanis, and the copilot, Ralph B. Sanborn, jr., were killed along with three passengers.

The CAB said the pilot may have believed he could come down over the river and maintain visual contact the short distance to the airport.

Greek Rebels Spread Attacks In Retaliation

Athens, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Down, but not out, Greek guerillas today retaliated for their bitter defeat in the Grammos Mountains with a series of hit-and-run strikes at cities, towns and villages all over the country.

The rebels shelled provincial capitals, ambushed convoys, mined roads, blew up reservoirs and kidnaped young men. Along the Larissa-Trikkala road, they attacked the office of American military aid to Greece, ripped an American flag to shreds and fired at American civilian contractors' automobiles. There were no American casualties.

Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris, with the approval of American Military Mission Chief Lieut. Gen. James Van Fleet, announced calling up of the class of 1926. This will add 40,000 men to the army and increase its strength by 25 per cent.

In the Larissa sector, guerillas kidnaped 367 young men, the government reported.

Rat Experiments Suggest Man May Make His Own Vitamins

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 24 (A.P.).—A discovery that rats, and thus probably man also, can manufacture certain vitamins in the body was reported to blood specialists today.

The findings may have important bearing on treatment of blood diseases, including anemias. They were reported by Dr. Floyd S. Daft of the National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Md., to the International Congress of Hematology.

Dr. Daft found that under certain conditions, rats' bodies made two important vitamins, folic acid and vitamin B-1, from proteins in its food. It built up the vitamins from certain amino acids, the bricks from which all proteins are formed.

The body also uses these bricks in manufacturing its own cells, including red and white blood cells. In this process, certain vitamins have to be present.

Mr. Daft gave rats a diet poor in some of the essential amino acid bricks and in the vitamins. They became anemic, not having enough blood cells. They did not have enough of the amino acids to build up blood cells and to make vitamins, too.

When he gave the anemic rats enough of the bricks, they recovered from the anemia. They then could build cells and create the vitamins also.

But if the rats had been given a sufa drug, sulfasuxidine, no amount of amino acid bricks alone got them over the anemia. The sulfa drug had possibly killed off intestinal bacteria which did the job of making the vitamins. The rats recovered from the anemia only if they received both the amino acids and the needed vitamins.

Living Costs Increase 1.2%

same food that cost $1 before the war.

July food prices were 12.3 per cent above a year ago; 48.9 more than in June, 1946; and 131.9 per cent above the August, 1939, level.

The principal increases were in prices of meats, poultry, fish, dairy products and eggs, BLS said. Fresh fruits and vegetables declined less than usual in the summer season.

As compared with June 15, retail food prices averaged 1.3 per cent higher; miscellaneous goods and services were up 2.2 per cent; fuel and ice advanced 1.7 per cent, and other major groups advanced fractionally.

The BAE report on the average cost of filling a market basket with food for three persons, says it is now $13.56 a week compared with $6.54 a week in 1935-1939. The highest figure reached during World War I was $615 a year, or about $11.82 a week.

Out of each dollar spent for food only 51 cents goes to the farmer producing it. The remainder goes to the processor, wholesaler, retailer and for transportation. The farmer's share last January was 55 cents out of each dollar.

"The increase in expenditure in the first half of 1948 over the prewar (1935-1939) average is considerably greater for food than for all consumer goods and services," BAE states.

"It also exceeds the increase in per capita disposable income.

"Part of this increase is caused by price increases and part by changes in kinds and quantities of foods bought, and by larger outlays for food in eating places.

"The average price of all farm foods in the first six months of 1948 is about double the 1935-1939 average."

BAE attributed the increase to two factors:

1. Food prices at the farmer's gate rose 4 per cent from May to June. If the average housewife could bypass the processor, wholesaler and retailer and buy direct from the farmer, her annual food bill would be only $359 instead of $705.

2. Food processing and distributing costs rose 6 per cent. The average family paid $346 a year to get its food from the farm to the retail counter. That is 72 per cent more than before the war.

Meat was the biggest single item in the family food budget. In June it cost $213 a year for a family of three. The rate was about $202 a year in May. Before the war it was only $89.

However, the farmer got a bigger portion of the money spent for meat than for any other farm product. In June he got 68 cents out of every dollar spent for meat.

Consumer resistance at retail butcher shops was credited today with pulling hog prices down at the Nation's big stockyards.

For the second day in a row, the price for pork-on-the hoof declined from the record highs set last week. Prices dropped from 25 cents to $1 per hundred pounds at some cornbelt livestock centers.

A Department of Agriculture spokesman at Chicago attributed the sharp drop to the refusal of many housewives to pay the high prices asked by their butchers.

"There just doesn't seem to be the demand to support the kind of hog prices we had last week," the expert said.

Retail Food Prices Drop Slightly Here

Washington was one of a few cities where retail food prices dropped between June 15 and July 15, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported.

The drop locally was one-tenth of 1 per cent, BLS said.

"Price decreases for fruits and vegetables more than offset increases in other groups of food," it reported. On July 15 the Washington Retail Price Index stood at 215.1 of the 1936-39 average. The average for 56 cities was 216.8 per cent of the 1936-39 figure.

GM Workers To Get Boost

CIO United Auto Workers last May 29.

At that time the BLS Consumers Price Index stood at 169.3 per cent of 1935-1939. Yesterday's BLS Index showed living costs had advanced to 173.7 per cent of the 1935-39 base.

General Motors agreed to pay one cent an hour extra for every 1.14 point the BLS figures rises in each three-months period. If the BLS Index drops, the wages will be cut in the same manner, except that they cannot be cut more than five cents an hour during the life of the contract with the CIO. The increase will bring General Motors average hourly auto production wage to about $1.64.

The new raises will add $63,600 a day to General Motors payroll for hourly employes based on an eight-hour day. They will also cost another $4,420,000 in adjustments for salaried employes for the six months July 1 to December 1.

Cost Index of BLS Means Pay Rise for 242

Yesterday's BLS Consumers' Price Index will bring a wage increase to 242 Washington employes of the Government Employes Insurance Co.

The GEICO plan is similar to that of General Motors. Employes get a pay raise of 1 per cent (up to $300 monthly pay) for every increase of two points in the BLS Consumers' Index.

Workers Not Kidded, Union Leader Says

Detroit, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—General Motors employes "welcome" their 3-cent hourly pay increase, but they are "not kidding themselves as to its true significance," declared T. A. Johnstone, director of the UAW-CIO General Motors department.

"They know it does not raise their living standards," he said. "They know that although there will be more money in their pay envelopes, it will not buy more at the grocery store."

Protection of Stalin Asked By Vanished Yugoslav Envoy

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Yugoslav Minister Azim Alihodzic, who departed from Iran two days ago, left a statement saying he and other members of his legation could not return to Yugoslavia because of the "atmosphere of savage terror" there.

"Being patriots and honest Communists, we are requesting the Soviet government to give us protection," said the statement, released today.

Alihodzic arrived in Tehran in 1945, saying that he was "Tito's intimate friend."

Press reports said that when Premier Marshal Tito was scored by the Communist Information Bureau in June, Alihodzic cabled Prime Minister Stalin thanking him for the Cominform statement.

Tito Opponent's Death Is Declared Murder

Bucharest, Romania, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Radonja Golubovitch, former Yugoslav Ambassador to Romania, charged today that the border shooting of Col. Gen. Arso Jovanovic was murder, and he called on Yugosla Communist to withdraw support from Marshal Tito.

Golubovitch, who resigned to join the Communist Information Bureau's anti-Tito forces, charged that "Jovannovic was murdered because he objected to Tito's policy of pushing Yugoslavia toward the imperialistic powers."

Florence, Italy, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—A bomb explosion caused heavy damage tonight at headquarters of the pro-Fascist Italian Social Movement here. There were no casualties.

U. S. Consulate Clerk Seized By Sternists

Jerusalem, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—United States Consul-General John J. MacDonald protested today to the Jewish military governor of Jerusalem that the extremist Stern group kidnaped and mistreated a consulate clerk Sunday.

George F. Paro, 33, of Granville, N. Y., reported to MacDonald that he was blindfolded, questioned and slapped by Sternists during the 17 hours he was their captive.

MacDonald demanded an immediate investigation.

Dr. Bernard Joseph, Jewish military governor, said Paro was believed to have been mistaken for a former British detective, whom he closely resembles.

Dr. Joseph later told newsmen that Paro was seized by "kidnapers and lawbreakers." He said the fact that Paro was found and released within 17 hours after his abduction showed the efficiency of Jewish authority in Jerusalem.

Meanwhile, Gen. Aage Lundstrom, chief-of-staff to Mediator Count Folke Bernadotte, ordered an immediate investigation into charges that Jewish guns last night shelled two mosques in the Old City.

Elsewhere in Palestine, United Nations observers reported the situation "relatively quiet."

Jews, Arabs Reported In Contact on Peace

Tel Aviv, Israel, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Reports, mostly attributed to foreign sources, published here today hinted contact has been made between Jews and Arabs for possible direct peace negotiations. There was no official government comment.

Elias Sassoon, former head of the Arab section of the political department of the Jewish agency, has been in Paris for several weeks. It was through Sassoon the Jews first tried to make contact with the Arabs after the decision of the United Nations last September to partition Palestine.

it can get from the Air Force in carrying out this mission."

The decisions made at the Newport meeting "reflect neither a victory for the Air Force nor a defeat for the Navy," Forrestal said.

"They do reflect my views, and if followed through with sincerity and tenacity, will mean a victory for the country."

Then in turn each chief of staff spoke.

Navy to Intensify Antisub Training

The United States Navy announced last night that it is stripping its active fleets down to one battleship in order to intensify antisubmarine warfare training with aircraft carriers and destroyers.

The major policy announcement was made by Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan.

"Revolutionary" postwar developments in undersea warfare make necessary the renewed emphasis on training of men to fight submarines, the Navy said. Under the new program, the 45,000-ton battleship Iowa, now in the Pacific Fleet, will be inactivated beginning about September 1. This will leave the Missouri, now with the Atlantic Fleet, as the only battleship in active service. The Navy emphasized, however, that the Iowa and 13 other battleships now in reserve will be "ready for reactivation on short notice."

NLRB Asks ITU Contempt Citation

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 24 (AP).—Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert today said attorneys for the National Labor Relations Board had asked him to cite the International Typographical Union (AFL) for contempt of court, charging violation of an injunction he issued against the union March 27.

The judge said he would study the NLRB petition and then decide what action he would take.

He would not reveal details of the petition submitted today during a conference with an NLRB attorney.

The petition will be filed in Federal Court Wednesday at Indianapolis, where the hearing that led to the injunction was held, Judge Swygert added.

The injunction restrained the ITU from following its "no contract" policy in its dealing with newspapers.

It also restrained the union from "supporting, authorizing . . . or encouraging subordinate local unions . . . to engage in, or continue to engage in, any strikes, slowdowns, walkouts, or other disruptions of any kind to the business operations of employers in the newspaper publishing industry" in maintaining contracts prohibited by the Taft-Hartley Act.

Present at the conference with Judge Swygert were Winthrop A. Johns, NLRB attorney from Washington, and Henry Kaiser, Washington attorney representing the ITU.

Writ Will Bar Atlantic Dock Strike 80 Days

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—The East Coast longshoremen's strike was held off again today by a Taft-Hartley Act injunction effective for 80 days. Both the union and shippers agreed to it.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina ordered the cooling-off period in the overtime pay dispute. It affects 45,000 members of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association.

The injunction extended a temporary stay which prevented a strike last Saturday. President Truman personally stepped in, and at his instruction United States Assistant Attorney General Joseph M. Friedman obtained both the stay and the injunction.

Agreement Reached In Los Alamos Strike

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Union leaders announced today than an agreement had been reached to end a seven-day strike of 3300 AFL members at the Los Alamos atomic energy project.

Officials of the New Mexico building trades council, emerging from a conference with Los Alamos contractors and representatives of the Atomic Energy Commission, said they would ask the workers to return to their jobs at Los Alamos tomorrow morning.

The maintenance and construction workers walked out last Wednesday in protest against the hiring of out-of-State labor by one Los Alamos contractor.

Electric Strike Pickets Bar Office Workers

Philadelphia, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—A massed picket line barred office employes from the Proctor Electric Co. plant for the second day today.

Harvester Strikes To Force Layoffs

Chicago, Aug. 24 (AP).—The International Harvester Co., strike-bound for a week in six cities, today planned layoffs of employes in other plants.

Negotiations were in recess until tomorro wmorning.

Total Draft Urged 'If War Must Come'

Elimination of all war profits and complete conscription of all people and resources in the country were advocated last night "if we must have another war."

Joseph R. Handley, Lieutenant Governor of New York, speaking before a meeting of the Spanish-American War Veterans at the Sylvan Theater near the Washington Monument, told his 1000 listeners that "if we must have a war, make everyone serve."

Handley cited what he termed thousands of persons in this country who are not citizens and do not intend to become citizens, who are "subversive" elements. He cried: "Deport them—send them back to the nations they came from."

The Lieutenant Governor declared that "in all justice to our dead, this Nation must be prepared in event of another war."

"Our youth, if called, must be prepared," he asserted. "Liberty is never inherited, for each generation must earn it all over again."

Last night's meeting opened with a massing of collors from the United Spanish War Veterans' 15 districts throughout the country.

Preceding the speech by Lieut. Gov. Handley, Jose T. Baron, minister-counselor of the Cuban Embassy, spoke on behalf of the Cuban Ambassador and the Cuban President, now meeting in Havana.

Other events adding color to the patriotic ceremony included a eulogy of American "friendship, love and strength" by Frank Topash, dressed in full Indian regalia to represent his tribe the Potawotami Tribe. Topash was accompanied by Quartermaster Second Class Nicholas Liberitti of the Naval Receiving Station at Anacostia, who carried the American flag to the receivers' stand.

Retiring commander in chief of the Spanish War veterans, H. M. Havner, presided at the meeting and introduced Henry H. Hunt, new chief. The United States Air Forces Band, under the direction of the assistant leader, Chief Warrant Officer John Yesulaitis, provided the music. Sergt. Abrasha Robofsky was soloist.

Italians Show Interest in Dewey Plans

Rome, Aug. 24 (NYHT).—The huge interest among Italians in whether the election of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as President would change the American attitude toward Italy was reflected today in a long press conference of Edward Corsi, a member of Governor Dewey's cabinet at Albany.

For two hours a score of Italian newspapermen grilled Corsi on whether Dewey, as President, would favor an expansion or a diminution of the Marshall Plan, on whether he would help Italy get complete control of her former African colonies, and on whether he would open wider the doors of Italian immigration into the United States.

Corsi, who is New York State commissioner for industry and a former United States regional immigration officer, was introduced to the newspapermen in a press release as "the Italo-American who is closest to Dewey."

He is a native of Italy and is the only person of Italian extraction in the present Dewey cabinet. Arrangements have been made for him to meet Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi to convey Dewey's "warmest" greetings to Italy.

requests totaled 120 million dollars. The commissioners ordered this sum cut to around 95 million dollars or five million dollars under this year's figure. It is now doubted that budget officials will be able to get much under the 100-million-dollar figure in the face of still rising costs.

There are no rainy-day reserves left over, so that even at the present cost of running the Government, the normal deficit for fiscal 1950—which begins on July 1, 1949—may hit nine million dollars.

Then there's the little matter of pay raises for some 17,500 District municipal employes. Officials are pretty much agreed that Congress will grant local employes the same $330 a year cost-of-living raise given recently to Federal employes. Such action will cost the District government another $5,500,000.

Add it all up and total deficit runs into 16 million dollars. Congress will have to decide how to raise that kind of money.

Ranking District officials feel that the sales tax offers at least a partial solution to the local financial headache. They believe that even though the sales tax was filibustered to death in the Eightieth Congress, the new Congress will authorize the sales levy as the "only" practical approach to the fiscal muddle.

This tax—a 2 per cent sales tax combined with an income tax on $8000-a-year residents — would bring in around $13,500,000 a year, according to its advocates.

Under the most happy circumstances, however, the District could expect only three-quarters of the $13,500,000 in the first year of the sales tax, since the fourth-quarter payment by the merchants would not be made until the end of the year. Sales taxes collected for the last three months of the fiscal year would be calculated as District income for the next year.

Available Alternatives

So, from the most optimistic viewpoint, the District would collect in fiscal 1950 around 10 million dollars in sales taxes, or six million dollars less than needed.

Just where the rest of the money would come from is anybody's guess at this time.

An "obvious" solution—and one which Congress will examine closely—is to reduce local operating expenses.

The District Commissioners have already taken this "obvious" step. Last June the Commissioners warned all department heads that because of the tight financial situation, expenditures planned for fiscal 1950 would have to be kept at a minimum.

But with prices spiraling upward, the budget planners find themselves confronted by new, unanticipated costs every day, and despite the cutting, pruning, and paring of the expenditures, the 1950 budget is likely to be virtually the same as the present one.

The revised District budget will be placed before the District Commissioners and made public within the month.

Some District officials fear that the Budget Bureau of Congress may arbitrarily slash the District budget by some big figure. That will make the budget balance, but such drastic action would seriously dislocate the operations of the District government. It took years for some local agencies to recover from the arbitrary cut of six million dollars out of the 39-million-dollar budget submitted for 1934.

'Frozen' U. S. Danube Fleet Is Expected

By Don Cook

London, Aug. 24 (NYHT).—Final immobilization of the vessels of the Danube fleet, held by American forces in Austria and a recasting of future international conference tactics by the western powers, were expected here today as a sequel to the Belgrade Danube Conference.

The bulk of the Danube fleet was seized by the Americans in Austria soon after the war when it became evident that Danube control was likely to be a major issue between Russian and the western powers. The Russians, in short, had the river and the Americans had the boats.

In subsequent negotiations, on the Austrian peace treaty in particular, the Russians have tried continually to bargain for putting the vessels back into service.

There is considerable resentment at the British Foreign Office over the fashion in which the Russian draft of a new Danubian convention was gaveled through by Andre Vishinsky, deputy Soviet foreign minister. The seven-to-three majority rule of the Soviet bloc at Belgrade was absolute, the British contend.

By refusing the western powers a voice in Danube matters, the British feel, the Russians have forfeited any right to a voice in Ruhr or western German affairs.

Alexandria Plans Pensions For Employes

In possibly its final session before a new council takes office September 1, the Alexandria City Council last night received a recommendation for a pension plan for city employes and for revision of current tax assessments.

It delayed until next year a proposal to increase the starting pay of city policemen.

It agreed, on report from the finance committee, to engage Wyatt & Co. to draw up an acceptable pension plan for city employes.

Col. Everett A. Hellmuth, chairman of the committee, said preliminary estimates show that to set up the most desirable scheme would cost the city about $420,000. It would provide for retirement of employes with two or more years of service at the age of 65.

On the question of tax assessments, Col. Hellmuth said a complete reassessment of property in Alexandria with the help of appraisers from the State Department of Taxation would cost about a $10,000. A recent survey by the Bureau of Public Administration contended that the general rate of assessment in Alexandria was too low. The council last night directed City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto to confer with Tax Assessor Francis Drischler on the possibility of using city employes.

In another action, the council passed an amendment to a recent authorization of a $5,250,000 bond issue for improvement of schools, streets and other facilities. The amendment permits the sale of bonds at an interest rate not to exceed 4 per cent. Councilman J. W. Tulloch cast the only dissenting vote.

Shortly before, a petition with some 50 signatures was presented the council, asking that exposed raw sewage, which allegedly creates a serious condition in Hooffs Run from Little st. to Commonwealth ave., be covered over.

Mrs. C. F. Apperson, 31 East Maple ave., who represented the petitioners, was assured by the council that passage of the amended bond issue would serve to remedy the situation within a month.

The report submitted previously by Councilman Paul L. Delany, recommending an increase in the starting salary of policemen from $2160 a year to $2400, was not favorably considered, as Colonel Hellmuth recommended the plan be considered under next year's budget. The finance committee felt it was impracticable to grant the increase at present, he said.

Colonel Hellmuth added that recruits on the police force would be getting more than some experienced members if such a plan were passed.

300 Visitors Find Oak Hill In Disrepair

Chains and locks were finally removed from the historic Oak Hill estate in nearby Virginia yesterday, and more than 300 sightseers found it in disrepair on a on a tour supervised by Federal and local marshals and deputies.

Closeted in an upstairs room was Frank C. Littleton, 70-year-old owner of the property which was built by President James Monroe. Until yesterday afternoon Littleton had successfully prevented public inspection of his estate which is due to be put on the auction block September 2.

"My side of the Oak Hill story has not yet been told," Littleton told reporters. "I will endeavor to do so in writing the answers to your questions. It will be the full and complete story and you can be sure that everything in it can be corroborated by evidence."

A Weak, Run-Down Feeling Is Often A Warning
That The Red-Blood Is Getting Low
If you do not feel like your real self, do not have the urge to be up and doing, why not check-up on your blood strength? Look at the palms of your hands, your fingernails, your lips, the lobes of your ears—are they pale and off color?
Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.
To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that 33S Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the 33S Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, 33S Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.
Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on 33S Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. 33S Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

D. C. Exchange Plans Another Innovation

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Washington Stock Exchange, steadily expanding under vigorous new leadership, soon may have another active trading vehicle.

Nees

The market's board of governors, it was learned yesterday, is considering applying to the Securities and Exchange Commission for unlisted trading privileges in Virginia Electric & Power Co. common and preferred stocks. SEC application will be filed within 10 days, according to Bernard J. Nees, president of the Washington Stock Exchange.

Formal SEC action, however, is not expected for at least a month or more.

Vepco officials have no objection to the local exchange's proposal. Stock of the utility is widely held in the service area of the D. C. exchange. Latest report showed there are outstanding 2,955,291 shares of the common stock and 289,471 $5 preferred shares. Vepco stocks are traded now on the New York Stock Exchange.

If SEC approval is obtained, this will be the first issue to be admitted to unlisted trading privileges on the Washington exchange. It may set a precedent that will prove another "shot in the arm" toward expanding activity on the local market. Recently, the market extended trading hours to five a day.

BLAME PLACED: The general counsel for the National Association of Retail Grocers said the Government's farm price support program is one reason for high food prices. Tyre Taylor of Washington added the support payments amounted to 8 per cent of total cash receipts from crops in 1946. He likened the farm price support program to taxing people "8 per cent of the value of farm crops to see that they get on relief in their cost of living so far as food is concerned." Taylor spoke to the annual convention of the North Carolina Food Dealers Association in Winston-Salem.

DEFICIT CUT: Capital Airlines reported a net loss of $1,408,533 for the first seven months this year, compared with a deficit of $2,573,731 in the same 1947 period. For July, the Washington-based airline showed a net income of $12,167, against a deficit of $254,841 in the same month last year.

ODD LOTS: Owens-Illinois Glass Co. increased prices of most of its products between 10 and 15 per cent. . . . Britain shipped 2700 motor cars to the United States in July, bringing in 3,500,000 needed dollars. . . . Bell System companies, including Chesapeake & Potomac in Washington, have paid out slightly more than a billion dollars under the employes' benefitand pension plan established 35 years ago. . . . Business failures in week ended August 19 dipped to 94, compared with 103 preceding week. . . . American Airlines has received National Safety Council's award for flying 1,502,499,000 scheduled passenger miles in 1947 without fatality to passengers or crew members.

HONORED: The American Newspaper Publishers Association has honored two Washington firms—the John H. Wilkins Co. and its advertising agency of Lewis Edwin Ryan. In the ANPA "Blue Book of Newspaper Advertising" for 1948, the Wilkins cartoon campaign is included as one of the 50 best in the Nation.

VIDEO NOVELTY: Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane will sponsor a series of television programs featuring Dr. George Gallup for a nine-week period preceding the election, it was announced yesterday by Francis Hunter, local manager of the investment banking firm. The show will be seen here on WMAL-TV Sundays at 10 to 10:15 p. m., September 5 through October 31. In addition to reviewing strength of the major political candidates, Dr. Gallup will poll a cross-section of the public before the television cameras. He also will utilize graphs, charts and films to show public opinion.

CLAIMS: In the first six months this year Washington families received $5,576,000 in insurance death benefit payments, compared with $6,828,000 in the corresponding period last year. The Institute of Life Insurance added that the number of policies becoming claims during the first half was 6674, against 6364 in the same 1947 period.

EARNINGS: Chesapeake & Ohio Railway reported net income of $16,476,471 for first seven months, equal to $2.06 a common share, compared with $21,044,123 or $2.64 a share in same 1947 period. Other earnings reports:

Appeal Panel Set Up for D. C. Draftees

The Commissioners yesterday set up another Board of Appeals panel to decide deferment problems here during the peacetime draft.

They nominated five Washingtonians to serve on the newly-created panel, making a total of four for the District. The appeal panel members were recommended by William E. Leahy, District Selective Service director.

In addition, the city heads nominated four other men to serve on draft boards, virtually completing organization of the 15 boards that will operate here beginning August 30, when registration gets under way.

The Commissioners have forwarded the nominations to the White House for official appointment by President Truman.

Five Chief Clerks

Meanwhile, Frank D. Norton, deputy director of the D. C. Selective Service system, announced that five chief clerks will handle the administrative affairs of the draft boards, aided by an equal number of assistant clerks.

Norton released the names of the chief clerks, all of whom served in that capacity during the late war. Assistant clerks and other administrative personnel for the D. C. draft headquarters are still being lined up, he said.

Those nominated to staff Board of Appeals No. 4 are:

Bernard G. Ladd, 515 A st. se., retired Government employe; Harry A. Swagart, 2947 Davenport pl. nw., official of the Washington Garage Co., Inc.; Albert E. Steinem, 3821 Kanawha st. nw., attorney; Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott, 1922 11th st. nw., and Dr. W. Cabell Moore, 2011 R st. nw.

Draft board members nominated are Board No. 10, Andrew J. Howard, jr., 35 Q st. ne., attorney; Board No. 11, Channing S. Walker, 5070 Millwood la. nw., lumberman; Board No. 14, George A. Simonds, 3009 20th st. ne., bookbinding firm official, and Roy I. Green, 1710 Douglas st. ne., Internal Revenue agent.

Bank President Nominated

Jesse H. Mitchell, 111 W st. nw., president of the Industrial Bank, was nominated to serve on Board of Appeals Panel No. 3, replacing Albert E. Steinem, who transferred to the new appeal panel.

The following have been appointed chief clerks by Deputy Draft Director Norton:

Mrs. Marcella B. Dalton, 1602 D st. ne., chief clerk for draft boards 1, 2, and 3, and the transfer board; Mrs. Mary R. Cole, 3616 20th st. ne.; boards 4, 5, and 6; Mrs. Mary E. Carpenter, 1503 B st. ne., boards 7, 8, and 9; Albert P. Bauman, 1737 H st. nw., boards 10, 11, and 12; and Mrs. Mae E. Hart, 3647 11th st. nw., boards 13, 14, and 15.

In Richmond yesterday, Governor Tuck nominated two Arlingtonians and a resident of Fairfax County to serve on Selective Service boards, together with other State-wide recommendations.

The Arlington County men are J. Byron Brooks, 1212 S. Oakcrest rd., and Dr. J. Raymond Hutchinson, 1503 N. Highland st. Both will staff board No. 9, Dr. Hutchinson as its medical advisor.

Dr. E. C. Shull, Herndon, will be medical advisor for Fairfax County board No. 39.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 24 (AP).—A roaring closing rally shot grain futures sharply upward at the Board of Trade today. During the greater part of the session there was considerable backing and filling within a fair price range.

An early advance met liquidation with many deliveries registering new seasonal lows, but short covering and new buying pushed prices upward.

At the close wheat was 1¼ to 4½ cents higher than yesterday's close, September, $2.23. Corn was ⅛ to 3⅜ higher, September, 1.58½@1.58⅝. Oats were ⅜ to 1 cent higher, September, 71⅞ and soybeans were unchanged to ¾ higher, November, $2.43½.

Traders paid less attention to recent talk that support prices on farm products may be cut in 1949. They were inclined to concentrate on a report that strong efforts will be made to export as much grain as shipping facilities will permit. Reports from the East were that large amounts of coarse grains influenced corn traders.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—Cotton futures fluctuated over a narrow range in thin dealings today, with final prices 30 cents a bale higher to 5 cents lower.

The market displayed early firmness as mill buying and short covering met limited offerings, with gains extending to 95 cents a bale. Further rallying tendencies were discouraged by renewed liquidation, with most of the news unfavorable to the market. Slow demand for cotton textiles brought further declines in prices for goods.

Washington trade reports said that the ECA cotton export authorizations for the current quarter would likely cover only 300,000 to 400,000 bales against an estimated 650,000 in the previous quarter. The decline was attributed to the fact that China and Italy will not be included in the current cotton credits.

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—Misses Dolores Rhodes and Ethel Daniel, officers of Tex-I-Craft Co., of Middletown, Ohio, and Harlan Abbey of Teen Tattler Publications, Chicago, today were presented New York Stock Exchange awards for winning annual reports in a Junior Achievement contest.

Junior Achievement is a youth movement through which teenagers engage in their own business enterprises. They sell stock, usually at 50 cents a share, to raise capital.

The first place went to Tex-I-Craft which manufactured and sold aprons, towels and place mats. It realized a net profit of $73.56 in the six months ended April 30 and paid a 20 per cent dividend on its outstanding stock.

Teen Tattler Publications, which came in second, had a net profit of $26.49 on gross sales of $187.50.

Stock Dividend Voted by Derby Oil

Wichita, Kans., Aug. 24 (AP).—A stock dividend of one-half share of common for each share outstanding was voted today by directors of the Derby Oil Co., contingent on stockholders' approval of a recommended increase in authorized common.

Truman Sails Atlantic, Heads Toward Yorktown

With President Truman, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—President Truman finally got out into the Atlantic on his vacation cruise today and headed down the Virginia Coast aboard the yacht Williamsburg toward Yorktown, Va.

The presidential party planned to anchor tonight off Yorkspit Light in the mouth of the York River, and arrive at Yorktown at noon Wednesday.

The Williamsburg weighed anchor in Delaware Bay at 9:45 a. m., and eased into the Atlantic after being delayed by fog for almost four hours.

Correspondents who have been trailing the Williamsburg aboard the tiny yacht Wanderer were informed that the President was working on the drafts of five campaign speeches he will deliver in Michigan on Labor Day.

Nailing A Lie

Catching up with Soviet and Soviet satellite lies almost leaves editors as well as diplomats with nothing else to do. But one of them which touches this newspaper may be cited. Last fall we commented several times on the case of Julliu Maniu of Romania. A military court sentenced this great peasant leader to life imprisonment in spite of the pledge of due process given in the satellite peace treaties. There was some correspondence on our editorials, including a letter from Dr. P. Riposanu, former Secretary General of the Office of the Prime Minister, which took the form of an appeal to Premier Petru Groza to stop the conviction of Maniu. This letter, thanks to the "Voice of America," had a wide circulation in Romania. It was followed by a reply in these columns from the Romanian Legation. The letter, which was unsigned, was brought to this office by Mr. Alfons Vogel, Counsellor of the Romanian Legation. It cast doubt on Mr. Riposanu's bona fides, and accused him of "financial indelicacies," which were responsible, it was stated, for his resignation from the diplomatic service of Romania. Mr. Riposanu defied the legation to append a signature to its charges, but none was forthcoming.

Mr. Vogel has now resigned from his country's diplomatic service, and came in to see us yesterday. He explained that the legation's letter was unsigned because none of the non-Communist members of the legation wished to take the responsibility of appending his signature to a "tissue of lies." The letter, it seems, was dictated by the Minister who was then in New York, chaperoned by a Communist higher-up, whose detail was to be the alter ego of the Minister. Though Mr. Vogel refused to sign, nevertheless he says he is ashamed of having been even a courier in the matter. He has renounced his connection with the Romanian Legation, and says he hopes to remain in America, if possible as a journalist, his old profession. He was a former Social Democrat editor in Romania. He spoke highly of Mr. Riposanu and wished The Washington Post and its readers to understand from this illustration the tactics of deceit which constitute the diplomacy of all countries under Soviet dictation. There was no criticism of The Washington Post for publishing the legation's communication. On the contrary, he assured us that he was greatly impressed by this newspaper's fairness, and added that it is this fairness on the part of the American press that is the most powerful antidote to Soviet propaganda, especially among arrivals from iron curtain countries who have hitherto known America only in the image portrayed by Moscow.

Child's Play

Things have come to a pretty desperate pass indeed if the Department of State is correct in its apparent assumption that an elderly Anglican clergyman is capable of upsetting the faith of the American people in their own institutions and social system simply by delivering a few lectures on American soil. We had no idea that the country was so close to the brink of revolution. If it is true, however, that most citizens of the United States are fools or fellow-travelers, then the State Department was no doubt very wise to protect them from the seductive eloquence of the Very Rev. Dr. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, who wanted desperately to plead for friendship between the United States and Russia.

If the premise is not true, then the State Department is guilty of a gaffe one degree more egregious than any that has distinguished it in the past. For it has announced to the world that this country does not really dare to tolerate heterodoxy, that it has lost all respect for the most vaunted of its own liberties and that it is so insecure as to be unwilling to risk even the most moderate challenge to its own stereotypes and shibboleths. It has made the Dean of Canterbury seem quite justified in saying that the Iron Curtain "seems to me to be in Fleet Street and across the Atlantic."

The State Department says it has no objection to the dean personally but has refused him a visa because he proposed to come here under the auspices of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship which happens to be on the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations. The Attorney General was authorized by the President—very mistakenly, in our judgment—to prepare such a list for the guidance of the Loyalty Review Board in evaluating suitability for Government employment. Now, as we predicted, the list is being used for a quite different purpose; perhaps before long it will be used to deny organizations the use of the mails or the right to petition for a redress of what they consider their grievances. The Very Rev. Dr. Hewlett Johnson may be, as we believe he is, altogether muddle-headed in his opinions about the Soviet Union; but he is certainly not an applicant for a Government job.

Dr. Johnson's use of the term "adolescent" to describe the State Department's action was testimony to his tolerance. It seems, nevertheless, something of a libel on youth. One would expect more wit from any schoolboy. "Infantile," we think, is the word for what the State Department has done in the name of the United States.

Legislative Pressure

The current controversy over Senator Taft's alleged pressure upon the National Labor Relations Board to cite the International Typographical Union for contempt of court brings into focus a serious problem entailed in the relationship of so-called "watchdog" committees of Congress to executive agencies. Joseph A. Loftus of the New York Times reported in that newspaper recently that the Senator called to his office two members of the NLRB General Counsel's staff and told them in the presence of several publishers and publishers' representatives that he believed contempt charges ought to be brought against the ITU. Last week, the ITU Convention at Milwaukee adopted a resolution based on this story calling upon President Truman to investigate "unwarranted interference" by Senator Taft with the executive branch of the Government. The President promised immediate investigation of the "shocking charge."

Although no comment on the matter has yet come from Senator Taft, who is absent on vacation, the general counsel of the Joint Congressional Committee on Labor-Management Relations, Thomas E. Shroyer, who was present at the meeting in the Senator's office, has told this newspaper that he himself called the meeting and that the Senator attended for only a few minutes, expressing no direct opinion as to the course which the NLRB should pursue. In addition, the general counsel of the NLRB, Robert N. Denham, has issued a public denial that there is any substance to the ITU charge.

Newspaper publishers are currently engaged in a bitter struggle with the ITU. Since March 27, the union and its officers have been under a Federal Court injunction obtained by the NLRB requiring them to conform to the closed shop prohibition and other provisions of the Taft-Hartley law. Publishers have complained to the NLRB that the union violated this injunction. The General Counsel's office of the agency must decide, therefore, whether to prosecute the ITU for contempt. In this context, support of the publishers' complaint by the chairman of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare would be an obvious impropriety, the more gross if it were committed in the publishers' presence. The very fact that the meeting was held in the Senator's office, which is acknowledged, would appear to be, at the least, an indiscretion. For any intimation of preference on the part of their legislative overseers would make it extremely difficult for the NLRB to function with the independence of judgment requisite to its quasi-judicial status.

The Joint Committee on Labor-Management Relations, like the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy or the Joint Committee on Foreign Economic Cooperation, exercises a general supervisory role over the administration of legislation in its particular jurisdiction. This role might justify a general admonition as to policy, as well as a report to Congress on the administration of the law. But it would certainly not justify pressure or intervention of any kind in an individual case. Legislative shaping of specific executive decisions would violate the constitutional separation of powers. And the effect of such violation would be to obliterate, or at any rate to obscure, the responsibility which is the essence of sound administration.

Crazy Quilt

As though the affairs of the world aren't perplexing enough by themselves, the correspondents and commentators seem bent upon compounding the confusion. Living, as we do, in a glass house, let us be the first to cast a stone. There was, to begin with, this newspaper's leading front page story of yesterday on the Kremlin conference which, with debonair catholicity, quoted the Associated Press to the effect that Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith emerged from the meeting radiant with hope; the United Press to the effect that he was wreathed in gloom; the International News Service, which seemed free from speculation about his emotions, to the effect that the Ambassador merely said: "We think we made a little progress." As anyone can see, we strive to please.

Not to be outdone by the wire services, moreover, we gave the customers a comparable choice in respect of news from the Far East. "Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of the United States forces in southern Korea," said a crisp little story on page one, "is coming home, the Army announced last night. United States troops will remain in Korea despite the shift of more authority to the native government." Then, for the benefit of the contrary minded, there was a United Press story on page two which said, "United States troops will remain in Korea under command of Maj. Gen. John B. Coulter, who was Hodge's deputy." Directly above this interesting item appeared an Associated Press wirephoto showing a huge concentration of field guns and other equipment with a cut line declaring, "The United States is preparing to take its armed forces out of Korea."

Also on the same day, Sumner Welles in his column appearing opposite the editorial page delivered himself of the following unequivocal observation: "The Berlin air lift is only a temporary solution. In winter flying conditions the Western powers cannot supply the two million Germans under their care with the food and fuel they must have. Unless the Allies resort to force to break the blockade, the Russians can compel their withdrawal by mere inaction." But Robert S. Allen, subbing for Drew Pearson on page 15B, sized up the Berlin situation somewhat differently. "It is certain now," his column remarked flatly, "that the Allied zones of the city can be amply supplied by airlift throughout the winter. That includes both fuel and food."

If you think this sort of thing is embarrassing to the editors of a newspaper, you are as right as rain. We have never known, to tell the truth, why rain is entitled to be regarded as invariably right—nor, for that matter, why the editors of a newspaper should be so regarded, either. The plain fact is, of course, that the editors of a newspaper, however conscientious, are about as fallible as the next fellow—and even more subject to the vicissitudes of pied type, misplaced captions, dropped negatives and the general bewilderment now pervading the solar system. Our heads are bowed but unbloody. And if this acknowledgment of error serves to promote skepticism, so much the better. We do our best. We do our best.

Communist Unity

New light on the fealty that Communists in countries outside of Russia owe to the Kremlin is coming out of the Stalin-Tito fracas. Ever since the Cominform turned its big guns against the Yugoslav dictator it has been assumed, of course, that his independence had led him astray. Now, letters from the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union to the Central Committee of the Yugoslav Communist Party, which Camille M. Cianfarra disclosed in a dispatch from Trieste to the New York Times, leave no doubt that Tito's cardinal sin was his refusal to accept dictation from Moscow as to the direction of Yugoslav foreign policy.

The letters in question are being circulated in Yugoslavia by Russian agents as part of their campaign against Marshal Tito. They are said to have been shown to Mr. Cianfarra in Trieste by Yugoslav officials in spite of a Yugoslav ban on their transmission abroad. The most important of the letters was written in response to a protest to Moscow by Comrades Tito and Kardelj (the Vice Premier) that the Russian ambassador to Belgrade had no right "to ask any one he wishes for information concerning the work of our party." Tito and Kardelj had also expressed the heretical idea that prying into the doings of the Communist Party in Yugoslavia was not part of the Russian Ambassador's business.

In its reply of May 4 the Moscow hierarchy informed Yugoslov Communists that this attitude on the part of Comrades Tito and Kardelj was "basically unjust and anti-Soviet." The Yugoslav leaders were accused of putting the Soviet ambassador, a responsible Communist representing in Yugoslavia the Communist government of the U. S. S. R., on the same plane with "regular bourgeois ambassadors who are mere functionaries of bourgeois states who are bent on sabotaging the Yugoslav state." It is inconceivable, the Moscow letter continued, "how Comrades Tito and Kardelj could have fallen so low." Did they not realize that the Moscow emissary "has not only the right but also the duty of talking from time to time with Yugoslav Communists on all problems that may interest him?" As a whole, the letter makes it unmistakably clear that Moscow regards itself as a sort of overlord of all Communist groups in other countries.

The same theme runs through the speech of Vittorio Vidali, the Communist leader of Trieste, before the extraordinary congress of the Triestine Communist Party. "It is the task of every Communist," he said, "to contribute to the fight against the Yugoslav leaders so that the Yugoslav Communist Party may eliminate all its errors and aid in strengthening the world democratic front." Signor Vidali minced no words in saying that the primary reason for this campaign to dethrone Tito is the independence of the course he is following. In the fight against bourgeois "imperialism" the Communist movement must have unity, and it is the task of the parent Russian party to bring about that solidarity.

Incidentally, this line is said to have been reiterated in a message to the Trieste congress from William Z. Foster, chairman of the Communist Party in the United States, who is to go on trial in October, along with 11 other Communists, on charges of conspiracy to overthrow the Government by force. Of course, none of these documents and speeches introduces anything new in the way of Communist doctrine. But it is interesting, in this period of turmoil at home and abroad, to have the Commies themselves so boldly emphasizing the subserviency of non-Russian Communists to Moscow and so clearly illustrating the conspiratorial nature of their movement.

MIRACLE

More, more miraculous than atoms pressed
In empty space potentially afire,
Or elements deceptively at rest
Whose neutrons simmer with a sun-desire,
Moves now our near-born curled beneath your breast,
Potential human, tethered to your side,
Who will discover life, quite unimpressed,
And see and hear, taste, smell, and touch . . . abides.

Let mankind dream and wonder why each star
Burns brightly in the darkest folds of time
And seek the flaming nutriments afar
To add new nourishment upon his climb . . .
The natural fusion where our seed was laid
Is greater miracle than minds have made.

"Armour's Departure"

I have read with great satisfaction your editorial of August 18 paying tribute to Mr. Norman Armour, former Assistant Secretary of State.

As one of those who spent the night of the Bogota revolution in the American Embassy where Mr. Armour was in charge, I heartily indorse your statement that Mr. Armour is "a man of courtesy and consideration." During that eventful night he won the gratitude and admiration of us all by his calm management of affairs and his thoughtful efforts to make everyone as comfortable as possible. When fire broke out on a lower floor of the embassy, there was no sign of panic, even of alarm, mostly because Mr. Armour remained perfectly calm, kept us informed of all that was happening and gave confidence that everything was being done for our protection.

Early the next morning, when the shooting was still going on in front of the embassy, I saw Mr. Armour crossing the street, which was filled with the debris of burned buildings and sacked stores, to the Edificio Americano where a number of the delegation staff had taken refuge on the seventh floor. Friends in that building have told me that Mr. Armour climbed the long flights of stairs, gave the marooned party the latest news and said a cheering word as he shook hands with each one.

Mr. Armour is indeed a man of courtesy and consideration, who has won friends for our country wherever he has gone.

Educational Experience

Malvina Lindsay in her column of August 18 listed 10 types of experience which leaders in elementary education agree a child of today should have. I should like to add some:

To "learning techniques of group planning and problem solution" I would like to add "developing self-reliance and solving own problems."

To "being an effective member of a group" I would like to add "being an effective individual."

To "building a wide range of interests" I would like to add "learning the satisfaction of perseverance through obstacles to doing one thing well."

To "developing skill in critical thinking" and "participation in evaluating experience" I would like to add "learning the cold, hard facts of physical and economic geography, resources, industry, commerce, history, politics and government, science, and the nature of human beings."

Just how can "skill in critical thinking" or "evaluating experience" be developed without a frame of reference founded on a broad range of fact and the observations of others? How can one successfully live in the modern world if one knows this world only through one's own limited observations, made while "participating in community activities?" How can one build "a wide range of interests" without a wide range of information?

If children are turned loose in the world with no more than the 10 types of experience listed, they will be fair meat for early psychiatric care, or for the ministrations of totalitarian propagandists (viz Elizabeth Bentley's lack of background in history). Sooner or later human beings must come face to face with reality to temper their fancies; they will be happier if foundation is laid for it early.

Uncle Sam's Wife

Mr. George Edelman's August 18 suggestion of a feminine partner for Uncle Sam might well inject a little comic relief into our dreary editorial page cartoons.

Just picture Mrs. America flouncing onto the international scene—high heels, platinum curls, "new look" cellophane gown and all—with poor Sam tagging along behind on his leash! Consternation at the State Department! Or a quiet domestic scene—our lady curled up on a hassock of comic books and the latest Who's Who, twirling a Phi Beta Kappa key and batting her detachable lashes over limpid green dollar signs at a rising young Wall-Streeter.

Thanks to your correspondent for one of the heartiest laughs of the season.

Health Insurance

The spirited clash on the merits of national health insurance which finds Dr. Mattingly, in his letters of July 1 and 26, defending the American Medical Association so vigorously against Dr. Boas (June 25) and Dr. Bennett (July 17, August 5) of the Physicians Forum, would not normally involve a mere layman.

My proprietary interest as a fee-paying patient who would benefit from national health insurance is further fortified by Dr. Mattingly's vision of Drs. Boas and Bennett leading 998 other members of the Physicians Forum in a wild onslaught against the AMA's 136,000 members.

And then, Dr. Mattingly calls us to succor the AMA with this cryptic warning: "The doctor can lead labor either to freedom and security or to slavery in the totalitarian state."

Dr. Mattingly's dire diagnosis is far too hasty. If there is anything to fear in connection with national health insurance it is not in the Physicians Forum's forthright espousal of national health insurance, but in the way the AMA Journal has consistently stifled free discussion of the subject. Doctors who favor national health insurance simply keep silent or risk losing their hospital connections.

Not compulsion, but a way to make adequate care available to all on a sensible pay-as-you-go program is promised by national health insurance. It guarantees free choice to both doctor and patient and would be run by the people in each community. The American people, as public opinion polls have repeatedly shown and as demonstrated at the National Health Assembly this spring, want national health insurance by an overwhelming majority. JOHN W. EDELMAN.

"Maginot Line"

I have read both the Robert Wood Johnson article, "The Maginot Line of America," in the August Harper's, and your August 12 editorial criticism of it. On the basis of my eight years of war and peacetime service in the United States Army and the new Air Force, I feel qualified to buttress the statements of former Brigadier General Johnson anent the caste system in the American military establishment with observations I have made from a lower rung of the ladder.

If the editors of The Washington Post sincerely believe that "a number of moves are afoot to eliminate unwarranted perquisites and equalize the basic status of officers and enlisted men," they have been reading too literally the voluminous press releases of the various service public relations officers.

We in the services hear of studies and of recommendations made by such agencies as the Royall Commission and the Doolittle Committee. Years pass and we see no difference. The services will remain—unrepentant for past crimes against human dignity and uninclined to voluntary reform—until public indignation and Congress compel them to be otherwise.

We enlisted men are told in basic training and in subsequent "orientation" lectures that the salute is a symbol of respect for duly constituted higher authority, and the traditional greeting between adherents to the brotherhood of arms. Yet, at every military installation I have seen, enlisted men are rigidly required to "greet" their officers, while officers—despite explicit regulations—never salute their seniors except at the most formal occasions. This in itself does not constitute a crown of thorns on the brow of G. I. Joe, but it is typical of the unilateral rules of conduct pervading every level of personnel relationship in the Army, Air force and Navy.

Every married enlisted man in the service must submit to a monthly examination to prove to the satisfaction of his medical officers that he has not contracted venereal disease. Here, the yoke is a bit more galling, for the unfettered, footloose bachelor officer is considered to be above such things.

I am an airplane mechanic. When the projected reorganization of the Air Force has been effected, I shall not care whether I am called a journeyman maintenance technician or a grease monkey, third class. However, my work will be a source of much greater satisfaction and pride to me if it consists of something more essential to the defense of this country than servicing million-dollar toys for joy-riding brass to fly to such military important destinations as Miami and Pasadena.

You say that "armies are by their very nature autocratic establishments, as the Russians found out in their now-abandoned attempt at a classless force." Would you have us give up the republican form of government because the Germans did not make it work at Weimar? God help us if we are not to have democracy in the American forces because it was found not to the liking of the Red army.

If you would know what the Maginot Line of America is, ask some of the 8 or 10 million veterans who are toughing it out in the trailer camps and bucking the keen competition of civilian life rather than reenlist.

If our military establishments will practice the same principles of democracy they are sworn to perpetuate, then the United States will be assured volunteer land, sea and air forces thrice powerful enough to beard the bear in his den.

Spy Lessons For Tomorrow

By Malvina Lindsay

'Isms' in the 1950s

THE DISCOVERY that some young Americans in the 1930s became converts to communism and later served as spies and underground workers has caused a general outcry of "this must not happen again!" All sorts of formulas are being put forward to prevent it. Chief of these is that there be more compulsory teaching of American history and government in the schools.

Much is made of the statement of Miss Elizabeth Bentley, reformed member of a defunct Communist spy ring, that she went through the school system, including Vassar College, without being taught the meaning and value of American institutions. Probably if Miss Bentley had had the rare privilege of studying under a stimulating teacher who could have made her understand and treasure her American heritage, she would have been inoculated against the communist nostrum she later accepted. However the mere stuffing of her mind with dates and facts would not have done the job.

STRANGELY in all the ado over Miss Bentley's education, nothing is said about the two reasons she emphasized the most in explaining her conversion to communism. These were, first, the "terrible" things she saw in the depression economy of the early 1930s when she came out of college, and second, her observation of the workings of fascism under Mussolini in Italy. However it is much easier to demand that the old whipping boy, the school system, prevent future Elizabeth Bentleys and Whittaker Chambers than it is to prepare for the impact on youth of another depression, or to forestall potential Mussolinis and their fellow travelers from setting counter forces in operation.

The Kremlin at least recognizes the importance of Miss Bentley's reaction to the 1930s. According to its "secret schedule" of conquest, as recently reported in the Field Artillery Journal, it is counting on an expected economic crisis in the United States as the fourth and final phase of communistic domination of the world. Fantastic as such hopes may be, Americans yet have to recognize that some economic adjustment lies ahead for this country—barring the return of another wartime economy.

American youth may not again face such blank walls as it did in the 1930s when there were youth protests, rallies, marches on the Capital, and a growth of Communist activity on campuses. Yet job experts foresee in a few years a flood into industry of highly trained veterans with college degrees and a squeezing out down the line of youth that has no special skill. In fact, the squeezing out has already begun and transient youth again is on the march for jobs with about 100 a day reported arriving in California.

SOME WHO have been studying the problem believe plans should be formulated at once for a Nation-wide economic adjustment program for youth, possibly on the lines of the Civilian Conservation Corps, to give young men and women the skills, attitudes and work experience they need in bridging the gulf between school and industry. Also communities could help by doing more in vocational guidance. As Robert C. Goodwin, Director of the United States Employment Service, has pointed out, "hundreds of thousands" of young people now need assistance in choosing, preparing for, and finding the jobs they can best perform.

Some young campus leaders believe a national youth conference on this problem should be held. They would have young people in this time of prosperity and opportunity take the lead in preventing a soil being laid for an upsurge in the 1950s of communism, fascism, or other expression of frustration and bitterness. They agree that youth should be given through the schools an understanding of the democratic system that will rouse its faith and enthusiasm. But merely to tell youth when it is jobless, frustrated and discouraged, and even hungry, that this is the finest country in the world is not enough.

Committee Procedure

I have noticed upon numerous occasions that wherever possible you have taken a nasty "snipe" at the Committee on un-American Activities and its efforts to gather facts to relating to communistic activities in America. Your latest "snipe" was in your issue of Sunday (August 15) in an editorial in which you make the statement:

". . . It is a fact that Senator Ferguson's investigation committee is far more punctilious about procedure than the House Committee on Un-American Activities."

In this connection I think it would be more in line with good newspaper policy of endeavoring to give not only editorial but general newspaper courtesy to this important committee which is not only trying to protect this country from the vicious activities of spies and traitors but eventually save the very existence of this Republic from destruction. It may well be that those forces that fail to support this committee in its work may find themselves in a difficult position in the event of hostilities with a nation desirous of bringing the American people under the sway of this destructive force.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

The New Deal's Bonneville Dam

BONNEVILLE, OREG.—Across the turbulent Columbia River is the great concrete structure of Bonneville Dam. And high above the dam are the power lines that carry the harnessed energy of the river throughout the Pacific Northwest.

Childs

Bonneville is a creation of the now much-maligned New Deal. It would not have existed, with all that it has done for the phenomenal development of this region, if it had not been for the concept that Franklin Roosevelt labeled New Deal.

With so many angry words being thrown about, it might be well to consider that concept and what it meant for America and particularly for the Northwest.

THE NEW DEAL idea attracted, inevitably perhaps, a screwball fringe. They talked in a large way about remaking America. Some were committed to collectivism and the communism of Russia which they saw through rose-colored glasses.

This lunatic fringe is now being pushed into the headlines by sensation-making "investigations." But these men and women were not the real architects of the New Deal nor was their naive collectivism the philosophy of those who shaped policy.

The basic concept was that the Government, in a period of depression, should spend money to create employment on projects for the public welfare. The goal was to restore employment and enable private industry once more to find a market for its goods.

I don't propose to argue here the merits or demerits of this idea; as applied under the New Deal it did not restore prosperity and end mass unemployment. Some ascribe this to the fact that the dose of medicine was too small to effect a cure.

The point I mean to make is that Bonneville Dam, with its far-flung transmission system, is an example of constructive spending under the New Deal concept. So is Grand Coulee Dam 300 miles upstream and twice as big as Bonneville.

Bonneville cost about 100 million dollars. At today's prices it would cost nearly twice as much. This fact is important, but it is not nearly so important as some of the other values that adhere to the hydroelectric projects on the mighty Columbia.

Without low cost power—the lowest in the country the claim is—from Bonneville and Grand Coulee, new industry would not have been located here. Those new industries helped to win the war.

After the war thousands of workers who had come from other parts of the country, and with them many former GI's, decided to stay in this rich and beautiful country. They could not have found jobs if it had not been for the new water power.

It should be said here, too, that the early record is full of statements from private utility executives that new power was not needed. Bonneville and Coulee would be white elephants, it was predicted.

THE OTHER DAY, at a hearing in Washington, private utility executives testified that the acute power shortage in the Northwest would last until 1951 or 1952. The Bonneville power administration, of which Paul J. Raver is head, has had to refuse applicants for at least a fourth more power than can be produced at present.

In his report for the fiscal year 1947, Raver pointed out that more than 7000 workers were employed in new plants served directly by Bonneville. The increase since then has been substantial, and indirect employment is far greater than direct.

Besides the big aluminum plants manufacturing aluminum ingots, 85 new aluminum fabricators have started plants in Oregon and Washington. Such satellite industries are bound to grow up.

There is intense competition for the new power which complicates Raver's job since, under the act creating the Bonneville administration he has certain powers of discretion. At present roughly one third of the power goes to large industrial users, one third to private utility companies for distribution and one third to public utility districts where private users have voted to take over private distribution systems.

It is just here, in this last classification, that politics—and high caliber politics—comes in. The private interests, originally defeated in the fight for public power, are marshalling their forces for a new kind of attack designed to ride the present tide of reaction.

Wallace Challenges Truman To Halt Draft, Talk to Stalin

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Henry Wallace today challenged President Truman to postpone the draft until he has met with Premier Josef Stalin to settle all issues of dispute between this country and Russia.

The Progressive Party candidate, in a speech here, blamed this country for the Berlin crisis but added that it is not too late to mend our ways.

"Now again I call upon the President of the United States to immediately take steps toward a great conference to settle every outstanding issue between our Nation and the Soviet Union," Wallace declared. "I call upon him to publicly announce that until such a conference is held, he will not undertake to proclaim the draft. I call upon him to announce that no American boy will be called into service until every avenue of peaceful settlement has been attempted."

He charged that Republicans and Democrats think it is easier to go to war than to keep the peace. "But we Progressives say no."

Says It's Not Too Late

"We say that the crisis in Berlin should never have come to pass, that had we abided by our agreements not to divide Germany, it would not have come to pass. We say even now it is not too late."

Wallace included an appeal to housewives, farmers, tobacco men, miners and Negroes to vote for the Progressive Party.

"The Progressive Party is the only party which will cut out the root of today's inflation—war expenditures," he said. "The Progressive Party is the only party which will destroy the instrument of rigged prices—monopoly control of our economy. The Progressive Party can live up to its platform because it is not owned by men who profit from rigged prices. It is owned body and soul by the people of this land who suffer from inflation."

Denies Communist Control

Wallace flew here from Cincinnati, Ohio, where this morning he spoke before a convention of Negro Elks. He appealed to the 15 million Negroes in this country to vote for him and "turn the Jim Crow bigots out."

At a news conference following his Cincinnati speech Wallace vigorously denied that his party is Communist-controlled.

The Negro Elks reelected J. Finley Wilson, Washington, D. C., for a two-year term as grand exalted ruler. He has served 27 years.

A golden jubilee parade downtown today featured $10,000 in floats depicting history of the lodge since it was established here in 1898. The pageant was organized by Buena V. Kelly of Norfolk, Charles P. McClane, Harrisburg, Pa., and Rufus Byars, Washington, D. C.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

A New People's Democracy

BEHIND THE Berlin crisis, there is one all-important fact. The Soviets are now known to be planning to establish a separate satellite state for the eastern zone of Germany, whenever the time is ripe.

The creation of this new "German people's democracy" was originally scheduled for this summer. However, when a German state was proposed by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov at the Warsaw meeting of satellite foreign ministers in June, the Poles, seconded by the Czechs, violently objected. Their objections sprang largely from fear that the Russians might eventually favor eastern Germany over Poland, and might court German favor by forcing the return of that part of Germany now incorporated into Poland.

Thus it was decided in Moscow to use the Berlin blockade to try to force the west either to abandon Berlin or to abandon plans for a west German state. This attempt has now failed. And barring the miracle of an east-west agreement on all Germany, the Soviets are expected to go ahead with their plans for a satellite state in east Germany, despite the bitter opposition of the Poles, and despite the continued presence of the western powers in Berlin.

Indeed, the proposed constitution for such a state, which would, of course, claim to be the legal government of all Germany, has already been drafted, on Soviet instructions, by the Communist-run German People's Council. Polish and Czech fears of an east German state are entirely understandable. For the constitution has been promoted in the Russian-licensed press wholly on the basis of a revived German nationalism. It has been hailed, for example, as a "major contribution to the idea of German unity and the creation by Germans of a German future."

Moreover, it can hardly have escaped the attention of the eastern satellites that one important clause in the original draft was deleted by order of the Soviet military administration. This clause was one forbidding German citizens to accept service under a foreign flag.

THE CONSTITUTION is designed, of course, to permit total control of the new state by the German Communists. "Mass organizations," which means labor, farm and women's groups under Communist control, are to participate in elections to the "People's Chamber," and "incitement to boycott" by these organizations is made severely punishable.

Thus, under the guise of creating a German state, the Soviet-Communist grip on eastern Germany will be ruthlessly tightened. That the Russians are prepared to do this despite bitter Polish opposition, and despite the fact that the Polish Communist party has been split right down the middle largely on this issue, is highly significant. For it is a measure of the exceedingly serious difficulties which the Soviets are now known to be experiencing in their own zone of Germany.

Partly as a result of their own greedy policies, and partly as a result of the western counter-blockade on east Germany, the economic and political situation in the Soviet zone has deteriorated far more than is generally realized. For three years, the Russians have been plundering eastern Germany, taking as much as 90 per cent of current production. The plunder has been human as well as economic. Well over 100,000 Germans—some intelligence reports place the figure at more than 150,000—have been sent to the Soviet uranium mines in Saxony and elsewhere. At least 20,000 Germans were imprisoned in Buchenwald and other Nazi concentration camps, and then sent east to Russia.

THIS SORT OF thing could have only one result. The economy of eastern Germany has been reduced to near-chaos. The people, living at starvation level, have been made bold by despair. The detestation of the Russians' stooge Socialist Unity Party is open and universal. Communist Leader Wilhelm Pieck, conspicuously well fed, has even been the object of hostile demonstrations at two recent Communist meetings. And the western counter-blockade, by cutting off steel shipments from west Germany, has closed most of the factories which had not already been dismantled by the Russians.

Open disaffection toward the Soviets and their Communist stooges has reached such a point that the Russians clearly do not intend to allow the holdings of the eastern zone elections scheduled for this autumn, despite the enormous pressures which they are capable of bringing to bear. Instead, within a few months, the eastern zone Germans will almost certainly be given the opportunity to vote "Ja" on the Soviet-sponsored constitution.

Then eastern Germany will be ruthlessly transformed into a small, totally controlled replica of the Soviet Union. Moreover, there are those, particularly among British experts, who believe that the process will not end even there. These experts believe that the final goal of the Politburo is to make not only eastern Germany but all the satellite countries part of the Soviet Union itself. Only thus, it is believed, will the Kremlin feel really safely in control of its vast new postwar empire.

Don't Register, Parson Urges

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 24 (AP).—A Methodist minister, already under scrutiny of Federal authorities, calmly repeated today his appeal to draft eligibles not to register for Selective Service.

Bromley

The Rev. Ernest R. Bromley, 36, said at his summer home in neighboring Nassau that he believed civil disobedience to military conscription was the only method of preventing a future war.

The minister projected himself into a controversy Sunday when he made this declaration in a sermon.

Brig. Gen. Ames T. Brown, New York State director of Selective Service, asked United States District Attorney Irving Higbee at Syracuse to "investigate and take appropriate action."

Higbee said at Syracuse today he would investigate. He explained there were limits to free speech, as envolved by court interpretations of the constitutional right, but declined to comment on the Bromley utterances. He explained he had not yet seen the text or published reports.

The Gallup Poll

Voters Make Heavy Weather Linking Candidates, Parties

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 24.—Managers of the election campaigns for America's minor parties face a heavy task to impress on voters' minds the names of their presidential and vice presidential candidates.

That is one conclusion to be drawn from a Nation-wide information test concerning 1948 nominees, conducted by the Institute among representative voters.

One out of every three people, for example, cannot link the name of the Progressive Party with its presidential nominee, Henry A. Wallace. And, although Norman Thomas has been a candidate on the Socialist ticket in each of the last four elections, only every fifth voter knows he is the party's standard bearer again in 1948.

Areas of Ignorance

Even the major parties, however, have some "areas of ignorance" about their candidates to dispel. Twelve per cent of all voters do not know who the Republican nominee is and 9 per cent are not aware that President Truman was nominated for reelection by the Democrats.

Fewer than 6 out of 10 people know that Gov. Earl Warren is Dewey's running mate, and only half the voters name Senator Alben W. Barkley as the Democratic Vice Presidential nominee.

To determine the amount of voter information on the candidates, the Institute asked this question:

"Will you tell me the names of the presidential and vice presidential candidates for the Republican Party? Democratic Party? Progressive Party? States' Rights Party? Socialist Party?"

The answers:

	Percentage Answering Correctly
Republican
Thomas E. Dewey, Pres.	88%
Earl Warren, V. P.	58
Democratic
Harry S. Truman, Pres.	91%
Alben W. Barkley, V. P.	49
Progressive
Henry A. Wallace, Pres.	67%
Glen H. Taylor, V. P.	30
States' Rights
J. Strom Thurmond, Pres.	11%
Fielding Wright, V. P.	3
Socialist
Norman Thomas, Pres.	21%
Tucker P. Smith, V. P.	*

*Less than one per cent.

Toady's survey determined voter knowledge about candidates of specifically named parties and was not a test of information about the men involved. Thus, it is entirely possible that more than 67 per cent of voters can identify Wallace as a former Vice President or Secretary of Agriculture. His party adopted the name Progressive only a month ago, and probably some of the voters who failed this part of the test have not yet connected the name of the party with Wallace.

Education has a lot to do with how well informed voters are on candidates. While all but 3 per cent of college-trained voters can correctly name the major party presidential nominees, only 81 per cent of those who went to grade school know the Republican nominee and only 35 per cent the Democratic candidate.

There are, however, big gaps in even the college graduate's information about the other parties. One in ten cannot name the Progresive candidate, and only half know that Thomas is running for the Socialists.

In 1944 voters did somewhat better in a similar quiz on the major party vice presidential nominees than they did this year. In August of that year Truman, Democrat, was correctly named by 64 per cent and Gov. John W. Bricker on the Republican ticket was known by 62 per cent.

Cadillac

DISTINCTION

For almost fifty years, the Cadillac name has been reserved for cars of the very finest character—cars possessing every good quality the term implies.

Small wonder that Cadillac has come to occupy a place of distinction entirely apart—the one name that comes quickly to mind, among people of all ages, when conversation turns to quality in automobiles.

Today, Cadillac is enjoying a special distinction—for, in addition to being the world's finest car, it is also the world's smartest. A single glance at a new Cadillac as it glides past on the highway—and you know you have seen the modern trend in automotive design.

'Brothers' Is Rocked By Physical Violence

By Sonia Stein

PLANT a pretty orphan lass in a house with a widower and his two unmarried sons, and you are sure to reap trouble. But you may also reap a powerful story.

"The Brothers," a British film taken from an L. A. G. Strong novel, is based on that simple but dynamite-laden situation. Beginning today at the Playhouse, this violent and fascinating picture traces the bitter struggles brought about when a convent-bred girl goes to the Island of Skye, just off the coast of Scotland, to keep house for a fisherman and his sons.

Mary is soon the object of a consuming passion on the part of the elder son, John, but she has eyes only for the younger, Fergus, who scarcely notices her. Pursued by one brother and ignored by the other, Mary gets what companionship she can from the flirtatious son of a neighboring family, although he is a McFarish and a sworn enemy of the Macraes with whom she lives.

McFarish attempts to bring his flirtation to a serious and physical conclusion. Mary is able to escape him only through the intervention of Fergus, who beats McFarish in one of the finest fight sequences I've ever seen. Tall, rugged men, they slug it out on a series of rocky ledges in the creek, water spilling all around them.

A Fatal Victory

The bad blood between the two families comes to a violent boil one day and they agree to battle it out in traditional fashion. After a formal cursing period in which the two fathers excoriate each other's family in bursts of vivid, corrosive language, they engage in a rowing contest. With the father and two sons from each family on either side of the boat, they row to the point of exhaustion trying to pull the boat off course toward their respective sides.

The Macraes win this contest of strength, but old Macrae dies of the effort. Giving the family into the elder son's keeping, the dying Macrae bids him have Fergus and Mary wed. But John lies to Mary, saying it was his father's command that she marry him.

Although Mary has elicited very little response from Fergus, she cannot bear the sight of John and makes her scorn very clear to him.

Burning under Mary's contempt, John has his revenge. Persuading Fergus that Mary is responsible for all the family misfortunes and has tried to seduce him, he orders him to take Mary out to sea and drown her. Fergus takes her in the boat and returns alone.

This "returns alone" is not a euphemism. The picture seems to offer a choice of endings. You may believe that Fergus has dumped Mary in the sea, or that he has parked her safely across the inlet.

The film closes with Fergus crossing the water to Mary, but all evidence is that this is a pictorial way of saying that he has drowned himself, too, and joined Mary across the great divide.

A Physical Impact

"The Brothers" is as rocked with violence—both emotional and physical—as the sea is by the tides. In the realistic presentation you can virtually feel the blows McFarish and Macrae exchange, and the exhaustion of the men straining at the oars.

A scene in which Fergus cuts off his own thumb to get free of a huge shell fish which has closed on it has almost physical impact on the audience.

Early in the picture, the harshness of life on Skye Island in 1900 is made clear. An informer, having tipped off government officials that the Macraes and others are distilling and selling whisky, meets a strange and brutal death. Tied hand and foot, the man is set afloat with a fish tied to his head. A hard-beaked sea bird crushes his skull as it swoops down for the fish.

All but one of the actors does an outstanding job. Maxwell Reed as Fergus is handsome and strong, but another actor might have given more clews as to what makes Fergus behave in so odd a fashion.

Patricia Roc is a proud and lovely Mary; Duncan Macrae a sullen, tormented John. Andrew Crawford plays the taunting McFarish with well-curled lip. Will Fyffe, better known in this country than most of the others, has a small part but all roles in this film are juicy ones.

There is a charming sting of thistle in the dialogue. The outdoor shots of fields and coastline are beautifully photographed.

The story has a relentless inevitability about it; the characters are doomed, as the father of early drama has said they must be, by flaws within themselves.

Richard L. Coe is on vacation. His column, "One on the Aisle," will be resumed on his return.

Two velvet-eyed people in "The Velvet Touch," which opens this morning at Keith's. Leo Genn and Rosalind Russell play opposite each other in this murder story with theatrical background

Third Film Here Has Opera Theme

"LA BOHEME," opening this morning at the Dupont, brings to three the number of foreign films currently in town which are based, in a very loose way, on operas.

None of these is an actual filming of an opera, although all three use the opera score as background music and, in the case of the Italian "Laugh, Pagliacci" at the Little, the opera, as such, is a vital part of the story.

Both "Carmen" at the Hippodrome and "La Boheme" at the Dupont use the opera score as background music. "Laugh, Pagliacci" tells a fantastic story of how Leoncavallo happened to write his "Pagliacci," whereas the two French films have simply gone to the same sources as the opera librettists for their love stories.

"La Boheme," based on Henri Murger's "La Vie de Boheme," is a tender, haunting story, whether it's opera or drama. The film version is considerably gayer than the opera, and yet its tragic scenes are infinitely more poignant than they are in the opera. People posturing about and shrieking little love lyrics to each other at 10 paces simply cannot equal in emotional excitement the gentle whispers of two young people in each other's arms.

The story of Mimi's brief life and pitiful death in the Bohemian quarter of Paris is pointed up by the seasons. Blossoming into Rodolphe's beloved in the spring, Mimi declines and dies in the cold and bitter winter.

The life of the young artists—Rodolphe is a poet and his friends are painters, writers, philosophers—is the background on which the short and yet everlasting story is painted.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Hyderabad Accuses India

Lake Success, Aug. 24 (NYHT).—The only Indian princely state which has not aligned either with India or Pakistan—complained today to the United Nations Security Council that India has been using threats and pressure in efforts to force Hyderabad to surrender its "independence."

Hyderabad formally asked the Council to examine its dispute with India.

The question arose immediately whether Hyderabad is a sovereign state. If it is not, the Security Council has no right under the U. N. Charter to examine its complaint. Hyderabad is not a member of the United Nations.

The complaint charged that "Hyderabad has been exposed in recent months to violent intimidation, to threats of invasion, and to crippling economic blockade which has inflicted cruel hardship upon the people of Hyderabad" and that "the frontiers have been forcibly violated and Hyderabad villages have been occupied by Indian troops."

Lie Asks Million Less For U. N. Budget in '49

Lake Success, Aug. 24 (AP).—Trygve Lie today submitted a streamlined United Nations budget calling for a million-dollar cut in expenditures during the next year.

The secretary-general asked for $33,469,587 to operate the N. N. in 1949. Despite the slash, moves are expected in Paris next month to have the General Assembly whittle the total down still more.

The budget has increased each year up to now. In 1946 it was $19,300,000. In 1947 it was $27,290,241. This year it climbed to $34,825,195.

...And He Had Another Month of Vacation

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

THE DAY HAD BEEN SUNNY—Two members of Fire Rescue Squad 2—Pvts. Earl Shoffner and LeRoy Dorough—lift Jack Muller, 14, of 5919 2d st. nw., onto a stretcher. The boy was struck by an auto late yesterday afternoon at Kansas and Missouri aves. nw. He was taken to Casualty Hospital.

8th Child Killed by Traffic

Monday at 1:40 p. m. when he and two companions ran across Half st. between L and M sts. se.

Driver of the auto that struck young Jackson as he rode double on a bicycle with his uncle, Willie Jackson, 37, of 430 M st. nw., was Navy Lieut. Comdr. Collis O. Marshall, 29, of RFD 3, Annapolis.

Commander Marshall testified his first thought upon seeing the bicycle enter the intersection at 53rd st. and and Central ave. was that it would "go on through" in time.

He told the coroner's jury that the bicycle passengers saw his car approaching, stopped the bicycle in the intersection, and that he swerved but was unable to avoid striking it.

The boy was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital. His uncle, who was the operator of the bicycle, was treated there and released for head injuries.

Both Marshall and Jackson still face charges of unreasonable speed and riding a passenger on a bicycle, respectively. The coroner's jury verdict, turned in after 20 minutes deliberation, absolved them of blame in the death.

Also cleared of responsibility at another coroner's inquest yesterday was Mack Williams, 50, driver of the truck that struck 5-year-old Raymond T. Whittington.

The Whittington boy sustained a fractured skull and other injuries when he was hit by Williams' coal truck as he ran across Half st. between L and M sts. se. Monday. Williams, an employe of the Bureau of Federal Supplies of the Treasury Department, was operating from the Fuel Yards Division at 42 I st. se.

Two boys who were with young Whittington told police they had crossed Half st. after a worker on a construction job there had ordered them to leave.

Montgomery County police yesterday charged Harry T. Luthy, 37, of 2822 M st. nw., with manslaughter following the death of Mrs. Mary Mobley, 29, of near Gaithersburg, Md., from injuries received in an accident Saturday. Mrs. Mobley died yesterday morning.

The accident, a head-on collision, occurred on Route 240 about 2 miles north of Gaithersburg. Luthy sustained a fractured jaw and is hospitalized at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Mrs. Mobley's husband, Walter J. Mobley, who was driving his car at the time of the accident, also sustained a fractured jaw and is under treatment at Suburban Hospital, where his condition yesterday was reported good.

No trial date has been set pending Luthy's recovery. He was placed on $500 bond.

Kaiser Assails Move To Cancel Contract

The head of the Kaiser-Frazer Corp. yesterday told President Truman that if the Government cancels his contract for the Cleveland blast furnace it could "destroy the very sanctity of contracts."

The War Assets Administration has leased the plant to Kaiser-Frazer. Protests by Republic Steel Corp. and Preston Tucker, automobile company head, have led to a congressional investigation beginning this morning.

Assailing Republic, President Charles M. White in a telegram to the President, Henry Kaiser, chairman of the K-F board, said:

"Never before in my memory has any person or corporation had the effrontery to insult the President of the United States by asking him to scrap a worthless piece of paper, in Hitler fashion, a contract entered into and on behalf of the United States. . . .

"It would destroy the very sanctity of contracts."

Government Operation Threat

"Since he (White) has refused to operate the plant and ruthlessly seeks to stop Kaiser-Frazer, the alternative would be Government operation.

"He must know that Government operation would be a step to nationalization of the steel industry. . . .

"I am confident that neither you nor Congress would let anyone get away with trumping up a false, misleading pressure drive and thereby nullifying careful decisions of the Government."

The War Assets Administration signed a contract with Kaiser-Frazer August 17 to take over the 28-million-dollar plant. The terms included permission to buy the plant for $14,200,000, or to lease it. Under the lease, annual payments would depend on production, but never below $800,000.

Republic Steel Corp., which has operated the furnace since it was built during the war, and Preston Tucker, who has been trying to get a new-type car into production, protested the lease.

Lower Rental Charged

Republic officials said the rental allowed Kaiser-Frazer was less than half the $2,500,000 the WAA had been demanding from them. Republic President White said that WAA negotiations with K-F had been "clandestine." He also said the action may force the shutdown of many foundries which have been relying on Republic for pig iron.

Tucker protested that his bids had been rejected although his top offer was higher than the K-F figure.

Steel Export Cuts Denied

By the United Press

Chairman Walter C. Ploeser (R., Mo.) of the House Small Business Committee charged yesterday that a Commerce Department claim of cuts in steel exports "is not the fact."

Instead, Ploeser added, export quotas are being raised and in some instances exports exceed the quotas.

The Congressman made the charges in a statement renewing his demand that exports be reduced until the domestic shortage is relieved.

"Notwithstanding the promise by Secretary of Commerce Sawyer that reductions in exports are continuing," said Ploeser, "such is not the fact.

"On the contrary, export quotas have been increased for the third quarter to 1,140,260 tons as compared with an export quota of 1,023,776 tons for the second quarter.

"In the first quarter, although the quota was established at 735,085 short tons, actual shipments for the quarter were 1,495,000 short tons."

Surplus Use Suggested in Inflation War

By The Associated Press

The Government announced a new counter-inflation move last night, easing restrictions on the return of material shipped to the armed forces overseas during World War II.

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer said the action followed a suggestion from the White House.

He stated that John R. Steelman, presidential assistant, had suggested that the reimportation of such equipment be permitted "to alleviate current inflationary pressures."

The statement declared barriers imposed on shipment back to this country of war surplus left abroad will be lowered considerably to spur the return of equipment "in critically short supply" and "urgently needed in the domestic economy."

One official said it is hoped to get back some construction equipment—trains, steam shovels, road-building machinery and the like, and such other items as cast steel valves. The way was cleared previously for return of tractors, trucks and scrap for steelmaking.

Other officials said most of the surplus equipment already has been sold by the Office of Foreign Liquidation, and that bringing it back would involve repurchasing from foreign buyers. China and the Philippines made early bulk purchases of equipment in the Pacific islands.

150,000 DPs In Top Rating

The International Refugee Organization reported yesterday there are at least 150,000 displaced Europeans, including 75,000 agricultural workers, who have top priority rating for admittance to this country.

The Displaced Persons Act calling for entry of 205,000 refugees during the next two years gives priority to workers with skills needed in this country.

Included are agricultural, household, construction, clothing and garment workers and persons with special educational, scientific, technological or professional skills.

The refugee organization said a recent survey showed the following number of DP's with preferential skills:

Agricultural workers, 75,964; clothing workers, 25,826; construction workers, 12,567; domestic workers, 14,339, and professional workers, 30,437.

It said the farmers and farm hands are a "significantly large group at a time when many countries are suffering an acute labor shortage in these occupations."

Admiral Urges Exercise for Soft Officers

The Navy's "over-fed and under-exercised" officers are going to get some exercise pretty soon if the naval inspector general has his way.

Rear Admiral Hewlett Thebaud, the inspector general, has submitted a memorandum to the Chief of Naval Operations in which he says too many officers eat too much, drink too much, smoke too much, and sit too much.

Reporting after inspecting five naval districts, the trim Admiral said of most of the officers he saw:

". . . they certainly do not give the impression of vigorous, bounding good health in the sense of being 'up on their toes and ready to go.'"

He said also: ". . . mindful of the uncertainties and doubts which continue to beset the world, wisdom should impel us without delay to get into the best possible physical condition in preparation for what may lie ahead."

The Navy's medical department has been given the job of doing something about reconditioning the "over-fed and under-exercised" officers.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE BIG DEBATE about the relative values of Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams could be resolved easily enough within the next five weeks. The winner could be the man who takes his club to the pennant. That has always been a claim of DeMaggio fans—that he takes the Yankees to pennants in contrast to the one pennant the Red Sox have won even with Williams hitting for astronomical averages.

POVICH

One man, by superlative performances, does win pennants for a ball club despite the fact baseball is a team game. He gives a club that extra lift and inspirational asset, as DiMaggio has done for former Yankee teams. His value isn't measured by averages, but by clutch-hitting and resolution. He's the rallying point. DiMaggio has been that. Williams could be, this year.

In the last month, the Red Sox have had in Vern Stephens and Bobby Doerr a pair who, individually, have been eclipsing Williams with their home runs and other heavy clouts. But the Red Sox could benefit most if such as Williams, with the frequency of his hits, caught on fire in the last few weeks. He is still the Red Sox's chief hope of winning the games.

I haven't yet mentioned the man who could easily be the star of this American League pennant race—and he's a figure who could tower over both DiMaggio and Williams in the final reckoning if the Cleveland Indians do, indeed, take it all. Of course, I speak of Lou Boudreau, who at this point is the hottest property in a major league uniform and making no contest of the race for the Most Valuable Player award.

Aside from the Indians' other assets—including better pitching than either the Red Sox and Yankees have—Cleveland has something very special in Player-Manager Boudreau. His managerial reins rest easily on Boudreau and he not only plays the best shortstop in the league and is pressing Williams for the batting championship but the tremendous zeal he puts into his play is in itself a great show.

The Indians, without Boudreau, would suffer more than the Red Sox without Williams or the Yanks without DiMag. Boudreau means almost all things to the Indians—their best hitter, their greatest defensive player, smart manager, and inspirational leader. The hustle he play is a commonplace effort for Boudreau.

BOUDREAU DOESN'T duck any issues, either. The last time the Yankees played Cleveland and he was on the bench with a broken finger injury, he didn't look far when the Indians needed a pinch hitter with the tying two runs on base. He nominated himself, put himself on the spot, and knocked in both runs to prolong the game until the Indians could win it.

Right now Boudreau is hitting a lofty .363, second only to Williams' .377. He's a self-made good hitter. There was nothing natural or good about his batting stroke when he came into the league and for five years he failed to hit .300. But he has since become an American League batting title and is feared no less in the pinch than Williams and DiMaggio.

When Boudreau first came into the league and Bucky Harris was the Washington team in the West, he looked at Boudreau's batting style and told Washington pitchers, "Give him nothing but curve balls, I'll fine the man who gives him a curve $50." On the first trip to Cleveland, after Boudreau has pasted the Nats' fast ball pitching, Harris warned his hurlers "throw him nothing but curves. It will cost you $50 if you give him a fast one."

THE ADVANTAGE does seem to lie with the Red Sox in these last few weeks, however. They are the only club with the kind of power to win, consistently, badly pitched ball games by their own pitching staff. And in Fenway Park they are particularly dangerous. They are now on a long home stay that lacks only four days of stretching through four weeks.

The Yankees' own pitching is getting squared away somewhat with Allie Reynolds having won his last two starts easily after a long drought. But against good pitching their hitting has been spotty all season. In the Yankees' favor, of course, is the fact that they've been in these tough races before and won, unlike the Red Sox and Indians.

For Cleveland, the biggest blessing would be, of course, a return to form by Bob Feller whose slump will cost Cleveland the pennant if the Indians do blow it. Somehow, despite Feller's 1948 ineffectiveness, he still is a nice guy to have going for you at a time like this. It all adds up to the kind of a pennant race that's real cheerful.

Nats Drop 9th in Row, To Browns

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

It required some pretty horrible baseball on the part of the Nats to extend their losing streak to nine straight last night, but they were equal to the task and got beat by the Browns, 6-5.

They tried to make a comeback in the ninth and almost did, scoring four runs before Gil Coan popped up with the tying run on second, presenting Early Wynn with his fifteenth lacing.

Four of the St. Louis runs were unearned stemming from as many Nat errors. This deficiency coupled with their inability to take advantage of the wildness of Southpaw Bill Kennedy won them few friends among the 6003 on hand.

Kennedy Walks Six

Kennedy walked six before he was yanked in the midst of the Griff uprising in the ninth, but the Nats could do nothing about it, as usual.

Wynn wasn't too adept at getting the ball over the plate himself, walking a half dozen also, but the Browns turned four of his passes into runs.

Browns Err Twice

The Browns helped to unseat Kennedy from the 6-1 lead he carried into the ninth by shipping in their only two errors of the game.

With two runs in, two out and Mickey Vernon on first, Al Evans unloaded his second hit, a double which sent Vernon to third. When Al Zarilla juggled the ball, Vernon scored and when Gerry Priddy followed with a wild throw to the plate, Evans raced to third.

Kennedy was excused at this stage and relief pitcher No 1, Ned Garver, walked. Pinch-Hitter Ed Stewart. He didn't do so well with Pinch-Hitter Sherry Robertson, either, pitching him a single which scored Evans. Out came Garver in favor of Karl Drews, who got Coan on a pop-up to preserve Kennedy's sixth victory.

Wynn Singles

Earl Wooten's single, one of seven Nat hits, knocked in the first Nat run of the inning and Vernon's force out brought in the second. The first Nat tally was singled in by Wynn in the second to tie the game.

The Browns untied it with a run in the third and upped their margin to 5-1 in the fifth with three unearned scores. Two Wynn walks, Al Kozar's bobble and a triple by Whitey Platt marked the splurge.

Another Wynn walk, a sacrifice, Vernon's error on Al Zarilla's ridiculously easy bunt and Hank Arft's fly to Tom McBride provided St. Louis with run number 6. In the ninth.

IN SHORT—Dillinger upped his league leadership in the stolen base department to 23 with a theft of third in the third inning. He almost made it 24 in the sixth when he stole second, but overslid the bag . . . Jody Miller, Miss Greater Washington," was presented to the Browns and Nats and with a new car in pre-game ceremonies . . . three of Kennedy's six victories have been over the Nats who have yet to beat him . . .

Stephens' Two-Run Homer Wins; Paige Chased

Boston, Aug. 24 (AP).—A two-run homer by Vern Stephens in the last of the ninth tonight lifted the Boston Red Sox into first place in the American League, a half game over Cleveland's Indians, who were defeated, 9-8, by the Sox in a rousing finish before 34,172 paid fans.

Stephen's homer, his twenty seventh, was belted on the first pitch to him by Lanky Russ Christopher, fifth Cleveland hurler and the third used in the ninth by the Indians, who dropped to second place.

The fabulous Satchel Paige, veteran rookie Negro right-hander, started for Cleveland and was knocked out of the game by the Sox in the third inning.

The four-bagger was Stephen's fourth in four days and put him aahead of the Yankee's Joe DiMaggio with 114 runs batted in to the New Yorker's 113.

The Sox began their ninth two runs down. Don DiMaggio lashed a double into right center off Specs Klieman, third Indian flinger.

Johnny Pesky, hitless all night, then lined a single into right, equarely between the first and second basemen, sending DiMag to third.

Cleveland Manager Lou Boudreau then brought in Left-handed Gene Bearden to pitch to Ted Williams. "The Kid" ran the count to two balls and one strike and then flied fairly deep to leftfield and DiMag scored after the catch.

Boudreau used some more strategy then by bringing in Russ Christopher, stringbean right-hander. Christopher, whose peculiar side-arm stuff usually is hard to fanthom for an inning or two, took his customary warmup and signified he was ready.

Chris Just Watches

His first pitch to Stephens looked like a curve which broke low but it suited Stephens and "Little Slug" hammered it for the tying and winning runs.

Christopher watched it sail into the net, slammed his glove viciously on the ground and kicked it hard because slouching off the field with his disappointed teammates.

The Indians, who outhit the Sox, 15-12, battered Joe Dobson for three runs in the third on singles by Dale Mitchell and Allie Clark, a two bagger by Boudreau and a single by Ken Keltner.

Keltner's was a dribbler over the mound which Stephens fielding near the second-base bag. But Vern's throw was wide of first and he was charged with an error.

Ol' Satch Cost Just $55,000, Paper Figures

Cleveland, Aug. 24 (AP).—The Cleveland News estimated today the Indians will pay $25,000 this year to Satchel Paige. In all, the newspaper said, he cost the Tribe $55,000.

Quoting a "source close to the Cleveland club," the News said:

Paige was paid $10,000 to sign and gets $5000 a month. With three months' work this season that would come to $25,000.

In addition, the papperu went in, the Tribe paid the Kansas City Monarchs $15,000 for Paige's contract. Aother $15,000 went to Abe Saperstein of Chicago, general manager of the Negro National League, who for years handled Paige's bookings, the News said.

Chisox End Yank Streak At Seven, 6-5

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—The cellar-dwelling Chicago White Sox, puffed up over their three straight victories against the league-leading Cleveland Indians, continued to play the role of giant-killers today, knocking off the New York Yankees 6-5.

The defeat, only their fifth in 18 meetings with the White Sox this season, snapped the third-place Yankees seven-game winning streak.

The Yankees just missed catching the Sox with a belated ninth inning rally which produced two runs and left the potential tying run on second as Charlie Keller popped out to Shortstop Luke Appling to end the game.

Robinson Ousted as Bums Lose, 9-1

Pittsburgh, Aug. 24 (AP).—Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodgers' second baseman, was banished from the game tonight for the first time in his major league career as the Dodgers went down to a 9-1 defeat at the hands of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Rookie Bob Chesnes allowed only four hits in the first inning—as he hurled his tenth victory of the season against three defeats.

Plate Umpire Butch Henline banished Robinson, along with teammates Catcher Bruce Edwards and Coach Clyde Sukeforth.

Henline took exception to jockeying from the Brooklyn bench. Edwards was banished first. Robinson raced out to protest to Henline, who pointed to the bench and shouted, "You're out!" A moment later Sukeforth also was ejected.

GW Denies Probe by NCAA; Post's Stories Investigated

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

Officials of George Washington University yesterday denied that the school is being investigated by the National Collegiate Athletic Association under the sanity code.

The Washington Post carried a story Tuesday that the NCAA is investigating GWU's method of awarding athletic scholarships.

Max Farrington, director of athletics at GWU, said yesterday that he talked with Clarence P. Houston, chairman of the NCAA's compliance committee, and that Houston told him there was no investigation of GW.

The Washington Post, which talked with Houston Tuesday, phoned him again yesterday and Houston said: "As I said before, you might say this is an investigation of The Washington Post's stories."

The Washington Post published stories last month quoting football players whose scholarships were canceled on the grounds they did not make good in spring training.

The players said they felt they had been treated unfairly.

The Washington Post has seen a questionnaire in the hands of one investigator in Washington. Among questions asked about the GW situation are:

1. What did the scholarships of (Howie) Williams, (Paul) Skinner and (Johnny) Grinnell (three of the players whose scholarships were cancelled) consist of?

2. Where can these boys be reached?

3. What are the names of athletes whose scholarships were renewed and what do their scholarships consist of?

4. Did the scholarships of Williams, Skinner and Grinnell exceed room, board, books and tuition?

5. Does GW award scholarships in other sports?

Big Day for 80 Boys

Kid's Show Marines They Have Situation Well in Hand at Quantico Golf Party

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

GOLF, received a busload of knee-pante dfollowers yesterday, thanks to the ingenuity of Frank Emmet and the District Golf Association.

Instead of the weekly routine field day for kid golfers, Emmet arranged a bus trip to Quantico Marine Base, a free lunch, and instructions from Pro Al Jamison.

Instead of the usual turnout of 35, Emmet was greeted by 80 boys shortly after breakfast yesterday. The kids got their bus ride, and a police motorcycle escort, too. They were shown through the FBI academy and rifle range at Quantico, and were given a shooting exhibition by G-Man Henry L. (Hank) Sloan. Thirteen-year-old Terry Lindsay of 5378 Allen rd., nw., got the thrill of his life when Sloan let him aim a tommy gun.

Afterward the group was taken to the airfield where it watched a special exhibition of helicopter stunt flying. A steak dinner, Marine style, followed at the mess hall.

Winners were: 11 years and under—Jill Cooke with 43; 12-13—Irv-Dent, 32; 16-17—Willie Beach, 30; 18 ando over—Stanley Mouser, 35.

Low gross was carded by Robert Wolfe with a two-over-par 74. With his nine handicap, he also took low net laurels at 65.

After the lot had gone out of earshot, Jamison rubbed his chin and said, "I don't know where these kids learned so much. This is a definite sign of a coming generation of fine golfers."

Brumleve Beats Storage Nine, 3-1

Don Brumleve, former Gonzaga High School righthander, allowed four scattered hits and struck out 15 to lead The Turf and Grid team, a division of the Marrick Boy's Club, to a 3-1 win over Federal Storage yesterday at the Fairlawns.

Brumleve's battery mate, Kenny Devers, paced the winner's hitting attack with three for three. The game was the first of a three-game series for championship of the Senior division of the Boy's Club of Washington.

Christmas Entry Runs 2d and 3d

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 24.—Favorite players who have been batting close to .500 here went down swinging today in the featured Clinton Purse.

They piled the money into the tote on the J. Y. Christmas entry and then went out to watch the combination of Rough Cloud and Bay Orders run second and third to the Shangrila Stables' Royal Foot.

The 4-year-old winner, coming off a successful distance affair, showed he could sprint, too, by winning with daylight to spare in the test of 6½ furlongs.

Scattered backers of Royal Foot in a crowd of 1500 received a $45.40 win mutuel after the colt, strongly handled by Jockey Bill Billington, when the distance in 1:24 over a fast track.

Entry Leads Early

For the most of the way the race appeared to be a parade for the Christmas pair. Rough Cloud had a long lead and Bay Orders was running a snug second. However, when the chips were down in the final quarter, Billington roused Royal Foot and the colt charged to Rough Cloud and went on to be opening a gap at the end.

The victory was the fourth in 14 tries this year for Royal Foot, acquired by Trainer C. P. Sowers, now of Hagerstown, through the claiming box.

Double Pays Only $17.60

Short-priced horses figured in a $17.60 pay-off on the daily double. Jockey Freddie Kratz rode D. A. S. Moore's Sun Call to victory in the first race at $3.80 mutuel. In the second event, W. F. Parks' Briar Broom, well handled by Jockey R. D. Scott, was the winner at $6.20.

In addition to his feature win, Jockey Billington scored another long shot on the card. He drove Mrs. V. W. Burton's Running Riot home at a $28.80 mutuel in the fifth race.

Billington rode his third winner of the day in the eighth race. Once again he was aboard a long-shot, Horn Tooter, and the 4-year-old returned a $17.40 mutuel.

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—Ted Schroeder, Frankie Parker, Gardnar Mulloy and Billy Talbert were picked today to defend the Davis Cup against Australia in the challenge round at Forest Hills September 4-6.

The only surprise lay in the ignoring of Bob Falkenburg, the tall California fireballer who won this summer's Wimbledon championship.

The cup selection committee chose to bank on a quartet of veterans, deep in cup experience, to turn back the Aussies.

Schroeder, Kramer Win

Shcroeder of La Crescenta, Calif., teamed with Jack Kramer to win back the international team trophy at Melbourne winter before last, and the same pair defended it successfully last summer at Forest Hills. Kramer since has turned pro.

Parker, Mulloy and Talbert also made the trip to Melbourne, but only Mulloy saw action there.

He defeated Dinny Pails in straight sets in the fourth match after the United States already had won the cup. Parker declined to team with Mulloy in doubles after failing to win a singles berth.

Present indications are that this will be another two-man team, with Schroeder and Parker playing both singles matches and pairing up in the doubles. Talbert, however, made a strong bid for a singles assignment by winning last week's Newport tournament, in which all the big shots competed.

The Australians will challenge with the same team which squeaked through to a 3-2 win over the Czechs in last week's interzone final at Boston. Adrian Quist and Billy Sidwell played the singles, and Colin Long and Geoff Brown paired in doubles. This alignment could be altered for the challenge round.

Turner Allows 1-Hit

Kelley Miller Wins Johnson Crown, Beats Bundy, 8-0

Benny Turner's one-hit pitching and three timely hits by Oliver James yesterday brought Kelley Miller a 8-0 victory over Bundy and the 13-14 B bracket championship of the Walter Johnson School "little world series."

The game was played on the Ellipse.

Kelley Miller settled things with a cluster of four runs in the second inning. James' two-run double was the most damaging of the three hits off Bundy pitcher Buddy Kay in this inning. Shortstop Harold Middleton also batted a run-scoring double in this frame.

James drove in two more of the three Kelley Miller runs scored in the third with a single, the second of his three blows.

The 13-14 A bracket title is now the only one left in doubt. Mirman Brothers of Takoma Park, with one victory over the Gashouse Gang, needs one more to take the best two-out-of-three series. The series will resume Friday morning at 9 o'clock on the Ellipse.

Pitcher Ben Browning pitched and batted his Jet Motors teammates to an upset 3-2 victory over the Fire Department in the second game of the city sandlot championship series yesterday on the Ellipse.

Browning came to bat in the fifth inning with two on base and the score tied, 1-1, and singled to left field scoring both runers. On the mound he held the ire boys to eight hits.

The double elimination tourney contiues today at 4:30 p. m. with Merchandising Plumbers, winners of the first game yesterday, 7-5, over Cameo, meeting Sacred Heart, who drew a first-round bye.

'Skins Release Don Avery and Four Rookies

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 24.—Heads began falling all over the place today as Coach Turk Edwards started his annual pruning job to get his Washington Redskin squad under the limit of 35 players.

Released were Tackle Don Avery, the Southern California veteran who joined the 'Skins in 1946, and four rookies. Scheduled to be dropped from the roster shortly was another veteran, Halfback George Wilde of Texas A. and M., and at least one more first-year men.

Cloyce Box, 220-pound halfback from West Texas State, has already left for home after deciding to play out his final year of college eligibility. He was invited to return to the 'Skin camp next season.

Lopped off the team were Tackle Gene Vellela, Center Ray Whelan and Halfback Roger Dughi. Waivers were asked on them and the Detroit Lions showed interest in Whelan, whose dislocated hand hurt his chances of making the club this season.

On the perilous list is Sammy Behr, 165-pound halfback from Maryland.

Washington staged two routine practice sessions today, concentrating on defensive and offensive aerial tactics.

Tomorrow night they'll scout the Los Angeles Ram when the latter club stages its annual intrasquad game. These old rivals meet here

Trap Boy Wounded

Missourian Breaks 200 Targets To Win Trapshoot Crown

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 24 (AP).—John A. Broughton, a 26-year-old foundry molder from Ferguson, Mo., won the North American Clay Target championship today at the Grand American Trapshoot.

The stocky quail hunter broke 200 targets in a row from 16 yards to win all alone over a field of 774 other marksmen. Six shooters tied at 199 of 200 in the long marathon. Of 16 who broke the first 100, and 17 who cracked the second century, Broughton was the only one able to put a pair of perfect runs together.

Broughton picked up close to $1000 in prize money in addition to the coveted trophy. Last year he won $3700 at the Roaring Grand by finishing second in the two big handicap races.

The big shoot was marred today by its first accident. Tommy Rafferty of Brooklyn, N. Y., was struck in the hands and scalp by a charge from an accidentally discharged shotgun.

The boy said later he thought a 25-target event in the big race had been concluded, and he raised his head from the concrete traphouse. A shooter, on the firing line with his gun poised ready for his target, was using a "release trigger" firearm, a weapon that discharges when the trigger is released instead of squeezed.

As the gun exploded the boy threw his hands in front of his face and the pellets struck him in the fingers and scalp as the main charge went over his head.

Wilmington Gets One Hit Off Cookman

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 24.—Bunker Hill Post of Washington, D. C., swept past Wilmington, Del., 7 to 1, today in the Junior American Legion Region 3 baseball tournament.

Danny Cookman held the Delaware team to a lone single in pitching the Washington team to its second victory without a defeat. Washington does not play again until Thursday.

Settle and Francis Dyer of Washington executed a triple play. With first and second occupied, Settle grabbed a line drive, doubled one runner off second and threw to Dyer catching the other runner off first for the third out.

F. Dyer, Kallan and Bullin shared the hitting honors for Washington with two each. Bullin drove in three runs and Kallan two.

Witzel Hurls Marx Team To 7-1 Victory

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 24.—The Marx Jewelers of Washington successfully opened defense of its All-American Amateur Baseball Association championship by downing the Iwanis Club of Johnstown, 7-1, before 5000 fans here tonight.

Bal Witzel yielded eight hits to ohnstown.

Johnstown filled the bases with one out in the seventh but failed to score as Witzel personally threw out the first batter and then fanned the next two.

The Marx boys tied the score in the fourth when Dick anician was safe on an attempted steal as Catcher Roy Johns dropped the ball.

They counted three times in the sixth on only one hit. Jess Houston reached first on Johnny Klucliks error. He went to third on a wild pitch and tallied on Janician's outfield fly.

Bob Jones flied out but Sal Degiorgi and Bob ickford walked and both counted on Ed Claxton's single.

Falks to Witzel and Houston and singles by anician, Jones and Degiorgi gave the winners three more runs in the ninth.

Brown of Terps Signs With Oshkosh Pros

Bill Brown, former University of Maryland basketball star, signed a contract to play ball with Oshkosh of the National Professional Basketball League.

Brown, who netted 251 points for the Terps last year, turned down an offer from the Philadelphia Warriors.

Bogley Has Tough Time

Col. N. E. Powel, who already had one seeded victim to his credit, pushed young Gil Bogley to 16 games in the second set before succumbing, 6—1, 9—7 in a Middle Atlantic men's singles match yesterday at Columbia Country Club. The win sends Bogley to the quarterfinals.

Dave Johnsen coasted along with easy wins in singles and doubles. Johnsen defeated Grady Frank, 6—0, 6—2, then joined Robin Hippenstiel to take a love match from McCarthy and Wood.

In the other singles matches, second-seeded Jim Thackara conquered Tom Moorhead, 6—1, 6—2, and Don Leavens defeated J. P. Short, 6—2, 6—0. Barney Welsh, tourney favorite, who is already among the quarter finalists, was idle yesterday.

Yesterday's singles results:

Bogley defeated Powel, 6—1, 9—7; Leavens defeated Short, 6—2, 6—0.

Thackara defeated Moorhead, 6—1, 6—2; Johnsen defeated Frank, 6—0, 6—2.

Yesterday's doubles results:

Threadgill-Cowan defeated Miller-Evans, 6—3, 8—6; Miller-Channing defeated Heiskel-Bassett, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3; Thackara-Leavens defeated Lewis-Haller, 6—3, 6—1; Curtis-Gifford defeated Madden-Mann, 6—0, 6—1. Curtis-Gifford defeated Beard-Willis, 6—2, 6—4; McCullough-Kotz defeated Courtney-Thomas, 7—5, 0—6, 6—2. Johnsen-Hippenstiel defeated McCarthy-Wood, 6—0, 6—0. Carr-Thaler defeated Gordon-Swinford, 6—1, 6—6; Martz-Frank defeated Rice-Ransburg, 7—5, 6—4; Smith-Farrin defeated Shore-Carpuzi, 6—0, 6—1.

Fisk Resigns As Research Head of AEC

Dr. James B. Fisk, director of the division or research of the Atomic Energy Commission, has resigned, effective at the end of this week, in order to become professor of applied physics at Harvard.

He took his present $14,000 a year job a year and a half ago. Dr. Fisk said last night he had taken the place with the understanding he would accept the Harvard appointment sometime. He said also that he believed the research directorship should be rotated every year or so.

He said he approved of the commission's recent reorganization making the research directorship a staff rather than an academic job.

On the Town

IT WILL be practically a major celebration tonight in the King Cole Room. This room has been the stepping stone for a number of acts on their way up that fickle ladder called success. Some time back Evelyn Knight was exercising the vocal cords in the K. C. when she got the big break. She's now doing a network radio show weekly.

Dona

Dona Mason, who's the regular thrush in the room is in New York this morning in preparation for a guest spot on Paul Whiteman's network show over A. B. C. Dona has had a lot of breaks since her first night in the K. C. She's been booked out of there for several classy out-of-town spots, plus a couple of radio shows, one of which was the WTOP Jerry Carter show heard here. Now she's come to the attention of Paul Whiteman and he thought her good enough to guest on his show.

Third corner of this triangle tonight is Jody Miller, who will be taking Dona's place on the bar with the hand mike tonight. On Monday Jody became "Miss Washington" for 1948. She has sung around town for a couple of years and now she'll have a chance to show her talent (and figure) off for Hollywood talent scouts during the "Miss America" contest in Atlantic City next month.

Barring major floods or cloudbursts now and Saturday night, the coffer-keepers on the Roger Smith roof can lean back with a sigh of relief and compliment themselves on a fairly successful season. Sammy Seymour and his boys and their novel arrangements on the vocals (with Nini Baker holding the center) have brought a lot of people up there for some good times. The Cafe Caprice will be getting the play from the Roger Smith patrons after Saturday until next season.

NAME BANDS, an organization that did fairly well last season, and should do better this season if the Fire Department will play along, will be giving its first dance of the season September 11 when it brings Johnny Long and his orchestra down for a date on the Wilson Line.

The Shoreham Terrace hasn't a closing date yet. It'll play along until the weather starts turning against the cash register. The headline act there this week is the dance team of Faye and Gordon. They do a cute routine with a Hungarian polka for music. It's a novel thing in a club, even if their costumes aren't particularly appropriate for that number. A couple of acrobats by name of Melini and Hollice open the show. They are nimble, though.

Speaking of the terrace, the other night we got in a discussion of dancers with Barnee the batoneer. Seems that some people consider themselves junior editions of Tony and Sally DeMarco and feel qualified to tell Barnee that his tempo is a tiny bit off what they think is right. A fellow can take so much of this stuff, so Barnee usually turns around and asks to see them dance. Almost invariably they couldn't qualify for third team in a Tennessee hoe down.

Marjory Hendricks, who owns Normandy Farm and Watergate Inn, is combining business and pleasure on another of her little excursions. She's off for Chicago to replenish her supply of imported French novelties for gift shop and then will hurry over to visit her son, Roger Todd, who's associated with the University of Wisconsin.

Annual Leave Based On Years of Service Under Consideration

A progressive system of annual leave based on length of service is one of the plans being given serious study by the several groups that are studying the annual leave problem. The proposal is based on this sound theory:

That the employe with 20 or 30 years of service has earned and is entitled to more vacation than the new employe; that an older person with long years of service is likely to need a longer vacation than a younger employe because of his uncertain physical condition, and furthermore, that the progressive system is used widely and effectively in private industry.

As leave is now administered by Uncle Sam, the newest and youngest worker is given the same amount of leave as the oldest and physically broken employe. In fact, it often works out that the new employe is given more leave than the oldest employe.

This happens—and frequently—when a new employe is given a temporary job. The law requires that the temporary employe be given leave at the rate of 30 days a year. The maximum for other classified workers is 26 days.

All such plans proposed would result in a reduction of the 26 days of annual leave for the new workers. Various suggestions have been made. Among them is:

Three weeks, or 15 days, for the first five years of service; four weeks, or 20 days, for the next 10 years of service; five weeks, or 25 days, for between 15 and 20 years of work, and 30 days, or six weeks, for every year of service beyond 20 years of duty.

Variations of this proposal also have been suggested, but they all agree on this one basic point—less leave for the new employe and more vacation for the older people. The principle of the plan is known to appeal to several Senators who are influential in Federal worker affairs.

JOB OPEN: There's a top position open in Government—one which has been used by past occupants to make a big name for themselves. But no acceptable person has applied for it to date. It's the post of the GOP member of the Civil Service Commission which which is being vacated by Arthur S. Flemming.

With the possibility of a change of Administration, no prominent Republican outside of Government has indicated any interest in the vacancy. Perhaps the reason is this—the three Civil Service commissioners serve at pleasure of the President; therefore, their positions are most vulnerable to a change in the Presidency.

It follows, then, that a Republican in Government is an odds-on bet to be offered the post. In fact, a quiet check is being made of personnel officers in the many departments and of top operating officials at Civil Service to determine which of them are Rpublicans. Out of the entire group no more than half a dozen who would be considered seriously are known to have political affiliations and most of them would reject the offer of the job.

COMMERCE: Five employes who are retiring soon were wished well yesterday by Commerce Secretary Sawyer. They were: Anna Benoit, Lucy H. Kalar and Elizabeth Miller, all of the Census Bureau, and Josie G. Owen and Edna N. Ryon of the Patent Office. The two Patent Office retirees have worked side by side for the past 27 years.

PER DIEMS are demanding to know why they weren't included in the $330 Pay Raise Act which was approved by Congress in June. The queries have been so heavy that Chairman Langer of the Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday put out an explanatory statement which said:

That the agencies in which per diem unclassified people are employed have full authority to adjust their wages through local wage boards; that Congress hasn't interfered with unclassified per diem salaries for many years, and that the only per diems who were given wage boosts in the recent act were those whose jobs are under the Classification Act.

JOBS: The Civil Service Commission yesterday announced exams for: Miscellaneous office machine operators to fill job addressing, billing, bookkeeping, calculating, card punch, graphotype, sorting, multilith, and tabulating machine operators. The jobs pay from $2086 to $3727 to start. A written test will be given applicants.

40 Purchase Broadmoor Cooperative Apartments

154 Units Remain To Be Sold; Prices $1,194,000 Above Assessed Valuation

More than 40 of the 194 units at the Broadmoor Apartments have been sold under a cooperative plan started Monday, Edmund J. Flynn, real estate broker, announced yesterday.

Flynn said the new cooperative, Broadmoor Cooperative Apartments, Inc., of which he is president, plans to sell the remaining apartments for prices ranging from $3500 to $24,500, for a total price of $2,500,000.

The Broadmoor cooperative is Flynn's fortieth venture into the cooperative apartment business in Washington. No public announcement of the sale was made by the cooperative's officers pending notification of those to whom first choice of the apartments was given, Flynn said.

The cooperative has a three-month option on the property from its present owners, Bernard Bralove and Edward C. Ernst, and Flynn said yesterday he expects all the units to be sold before the option deadline is reached. If enough apartments are not sold to justify continuation of the cooperative, deposits made by purchasers will be refunded, he said.

Other officers in the cooperative are Elwood H. Seal, attorney and former District of Columbia Corporation Counsel, vice president; Thomas B. Lawler, an official with the International Bank of Washington, treasurer; Edmund C. Flynn, son of Edmund J. Flynn, secretary, and Leo A. Rover, former District Attorney here, attorney.

The Broadmoor Apartments, at the northeast corner of Connecticut ave. and Porter st., are about 18 years old. The building has an assessed value of $1,305,188.

Persons who purchase apartments on the cooperative plan will pay monthly charges amounting to 30 cents per $100 of cost for operation, maintenance and other costs, Flynn said. On a $10,000 apartment such a charge would be $30 a month. Apartment units range from one room and bath to six rooms, foyer, kitchen and two baths.

County Stops D. C. Tuition For Negroes

Arlington School Board last night voted to stop paying tuition of all Arlington Negro pupils attending District schools, except for some Hoffman-Boston School eleventh graders.

The board also set September 14 for a public hearing on plans to submit a proposed school construction bond issue to a country-wide referendum.

The halt on Negro tuition was voted after Assistant School Superintendent Charles Walsh said improvements had been made at the Hoffman-Boston School, which is Arlington's combination elementary, junior high and senior high school for Negroes.

The school, he said, now has a full-time librarian, a renovated library, a full-time music teacher, and a reconditioned auditorium. Any course not now offered there, it was pointed out, will be offered if enough students are interested.

Tuition will continue to be paid for eleventh-grade students of Hoffman-Boston who must attend an accredited high schools to enter college. Hoffman-Boston is not accredited.

The board at last night's meeting voted to send mimeographed letters to the parents of the 33 Negro students paid in the 1947-48 school year, notifying them of the action.

Board members a week ago announced they would seek a two-million-to-five-million-dollar bond issue in a referendum in November for construction of needed new schools and additions to present schools.

The bond issue was proposed after neighboring Fairfax County appealed to Governor Tuck for a special Virginia General Assembly session to provide for such funds, but was told to try to solve its own problem. The Governor, however said he would take under advisement the General Assembly call.

The public hearing was set for 8 p. m. on September 14 at Thomas Jefferson Junior High School, 816 S. Fillmore st. Board members said Arlington's school needs will be explained at that time and an effort will be made to determine the exact amount of the bonds to be issued if the public approves.

In another action last night, the board received a 1500-signature petition protesting its failure to reappoint Mrs. Frances Bell as assistant principal of Washington-Lee High School after 20 years in that position.

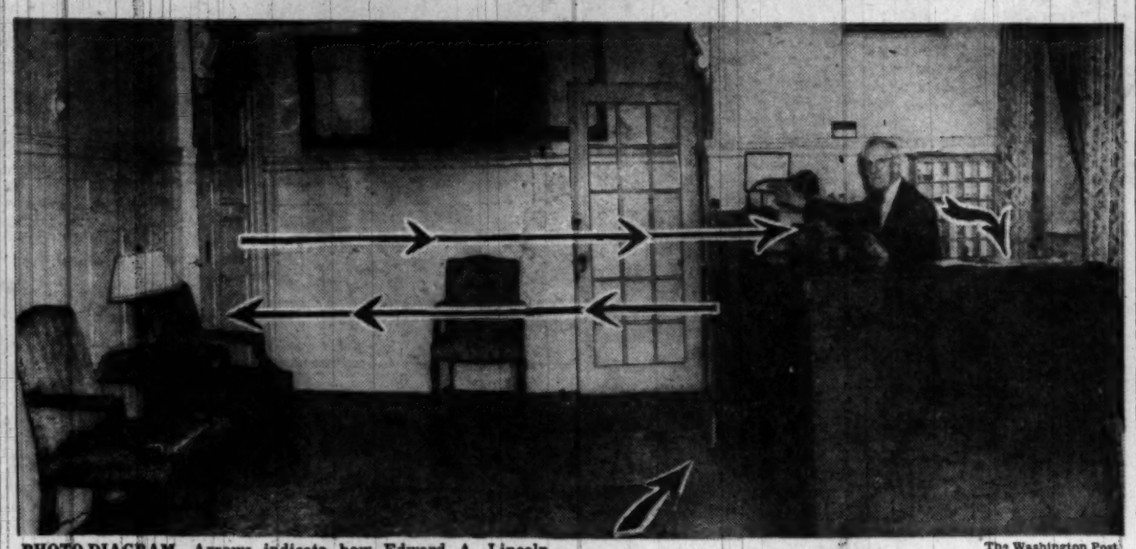
Hotel Manager's Shot Kills Gunman Over 17 Cents as Wife Waits in Car



The Washington Post

PHOTO-DIAGRAM—Arrows indicate how Edward A. Lincoln entered the lobby of the Whitestone Hotel, 1101 16th st. nw., went to the desk and then to the bedroom door of the manager. Lincoln, armed with a Luger, walked from the room while Douglas L. Farr searched for the keys to the cash box, returned to the desk and went behind it to pry open the money container. Manager Farr followed Lincoln and shot him with a similar pistol handed to him by Mrs. Farr after the bandit left their room. Day Clerk Claude Wrenn is behind the desk

EDWARD A. LINCOLN
Holdup-man slain

MRS. JEAN LINCOLN
Jailed on robbery charge

By Al Lewis and Charles Davis
Post Reporters

A young man from Colorado who turned to banditry with the aid of a young British wife was shot to death early yesterday when he tried to hold up the Whitestone Hotel, 1101 16th stt. nw.

He was identified as Edward Allen Lincoln, 25, of Fort Collins, Colo.

Police said Lincoln, an unemployed bulldozer operator, and his wife, Mrs. Jean Kenyon Lincoln, 22, of Sussex, England, had stuck up hotels in cities across the country.

The robber was caught off guard during the holdup by Douglas L. Farr, 34, manager of the Whitestone Hotel, and one shot from Farr's Luger ripped through Lincoln's chest.

Manager Called From Bed

It all began at about 2:30 a. m. Farr and his wife, Orma, had just retired, when there was a rattling of their doorknob. Their front door faces on the hotel lobby, about 12 feet from the hotel desk.

"Who is it?" inquired Farr. A man's voice answered.

"I'd like to rent a room."

Farr got into a robe and walked out. He apologized for his night attire as he went behind the desk.

The manager turned his back to the man in front of the desk to check on what rooms were vacant. When he turned around, the man (it was Lincoln) had a Luger leveled at him.

"I want your money," the gunman said.

Shoulders Way Into Room

Lincoln ignored the request, and shouldered his way into the room. Farr made a pretense of searching for the cash box keys which were lying on a dresser. He knew his own Luger was hidden beneath the cushion of a chair about a foot from the bed.

Lincoln turned his attention to Mrs. Farr and waved his pistol under her nose.

"Tell your husband to give me that money or I'll kill you, too," he threatened.

Lincoln had managed to force open the cash box. The box contained only 17 cents. Farr fired once, he said, at the bandit behind the 4½-foot desk. The bandit slumped and disappeared behind the counter.

Mrs. Farr was on the telephone calling police when she heard the shot. For an agonizing moment or two she did not know who had been the victim—her husband or the bandit. Then her husband reappeared in the doorway.

When Pvt. J. E. Hudson of No. 3 Precinct arrived he found Lincoln's body behind the hotel desk, a screwdriver and a Luger at his feet.

"Where is the man who asked for a room?"

"He's behind that desk," said Farr.

She looked, and her screams echoed through the lobby.

One, Vaiden B. Hogwood, 42, night clerk at the Bellvue Hotel, 15 E st. nw., was robbed of $263 and his wrist watch at the hotel last Friday. The second victim was held up August 16 at the Mayflower Garage, 1705 L st. nw.

Other Hotel Robberies

Questioned at police headquarters, Mrs. Lincoln said that after her husband lost his job as a bulldozer operator he started holding up hotels. She described holdups in Long Beach, Calif.; Newark, Chicago, Richmond, Baltimore and some place (she wasn't sure where) in Delaware.

She said that sometimes she would be asleep in the back seat of their car, a 1940 Nash sedan, when he staged a holdup, and wouldn't know of it until later. She said he had held up a small hotel in Richmond a few hours before the unsuccessful attempt at the Whitestone.

She told police they sent $50 of the loot from the Bellvue Hotel holdup back to Colorado to pay an installment on their car.

"He did it for me," she said. "We were trying to get enough money for me to go back and visit my people. I was homesick."

The young wife told police she had married an American soldier by the name of Kenyon overseas and came to this country as a war bride in January, 1946.

In this country she met Lincoln, a friend of Kenyon, she related, and married him in New Orleans last February after divorcing Kenyon in Reno.

Wants to "Pay Debt"

Mrs. Lincoln offered to testify at the inquest even after she had been informed she could refuse to do so because of her constitutional rights.

"My husband's debt is paid and I might as well pay mine now," she said.

However, Dr. Murphy, excused her.

Outside the morgue, Mrs. Lincoln sobbed on the shoulder of another Englishwoman, Iris Carpenter, correspondent of the London Daily Mail.

She told Miss Carpenter she had been "terrified" since the series of holdups began.

"He did the first holdup four months after we were married," she said. "We needed money—and it's been that way ever since.

"Every time he promised it would be the last time. I believed him.

"Love him? That's the trouble. I loved him too damned much. He really was a swell guy and he would have gone straight if we had any luck."

Mrs. Lincoln said she would be "too ashamed" ever to return to England and asked Miss Carpenter to tell her parents that "I'm sorry—so desperately sorry—I never thought it would end this way."

A., B. & W. Line Defers Intrastate Boost in Fares

The Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. has indefinitely postponed an intrastate fare hike of about 2½ cents, scheduled to go into effect September 1.

Permission to raise fares within Virginia boundaries was granted the A. B. & W. recently by the Virginia State Corporation Commission. However, a request by the bus company for an increase in interstate fares is still being considered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It would be impracticable, from an operations standpoint, to increase the intrastate fare until the ICC rules on interstate increases, according to B. C. May, general manager of the bus company.

Will Requests Body Be Left Unembalmed, During 2 Weeks

The will of Miss Emma von Toerne, 53, who was found dead here August 3, disclosed yesterday that she desired her body to be left unembalmed and unburied for two weeks.

Miss Von Toerne, whose avocation was spiritualism, stated in her will that she feared that her "investigations" into mystic realms might cause her to go into a cataleptic trance that others would mistake for death. She feared that she might be interred before she awakened, she stated.

In this eerie request, Miss Von Toerne stated that the spirit does not leave the body until decomposition sets in. Furthermore, she said, "as long as the body is stiff, the spirit still resides there and is merely paralyzed.

She was an administrative assistant at the Maritime Commission and resided at 1636 Kenyon st. nw.

Her will was filed for probate yesterday in District Court through Attorney Rees B. Gillespie. She left $3864, the bulk of which goes to her mother, Mrs. Augusta von Toerne. The deceased leaves her books on occult subjects to her sister, Mrs. S. W. Winebrenner of Pittsburgh.

Gillespie said that "to some extent" the wishes of Miss von Toerne were carried out. He said it was certain that decomposition began before she was buried in Cedar Hill Cemetery on August 6.

Child Slaying Charge Dropped

Justice Richmond B. Keech yesterday dismissed an indictment charging Mrs. Oliva R. Ordona, 29, with killing her year-old daughter with a meat cleaver on March 5, 1946.

The United States Attorney's office informed the District Court jurist that Mrs. Ordona has been declared of unsound mind and is now committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital. At the time of the slaying, Mrs Ordona told police she struck her child, Frances, three times in the neck and virtually decapitated her because of incessant crying. At the time, Mrs. Ordona resided at 4 Anchor Green sw.

Angler Returns After 10,000 Catch For Smithsonian

Dr. Donald S. Erdman, fisherman extraordinaire of Smithsonian Institution, was back in town yesterday. His latest catch, 10,000 fish, will be shipped this way from Saudi Arabia.

Admittedly a better ichthyologist than sportsman, the scientist used methods scorned by Izaak Waltons. They included poisoned pastes, fish traps, ell pots, spears, native wire traps and seines.

The fishing expedition of five months was in waters of the Persian Gulf and the Red Sea, where sea denizens of Biblical identification abound. His catch, he said, included some 200 species, including four or five species he believes have never before been recorded.

Police Granted Higher Pay Plan In Montgomery

Schedule Sets Up Annual Raises of $100 for Promotion In Grade; Tops Up

A new salary schedule for Montgomery County police, providing pay raises for all ranks, was adopted yesterday by the county commissioners.

Effective September 1, the schedule sets up annual raises of $100 for promotion in grade, with new maximums for each rank. Elevation to the next higher grade, the schedule specifies, depends on an efficiency rating of "good" or better and one year's service.

The schedule provides no change in starting pay, $2600 a year, for the 117-man force, but jumps the maximum for privates from $3000 to $3300. Police Chief Charles M. Orme said 31 privates now drawing the present maximum will benefit by $100 annual increases.

Chief Orme's salary was raised from $5000 to $5400; Inspector James S. McAuliffe goes from $4300 to $4500, with a $4700 maximum set for his post. Captains were jumped from $4000 to $4200, with $4400 the maximum.

Other changes include: Lieutenants, from $3700 to $3900, maximum $4100; sergeants, $3400 to $3600, maximum $3800; corporals, $3150 to $3400, maximum $3500; detective corporals, $3150 to $3500, maximum $3600; detective sergeants, $3400 to $3800, maximum, $3900. Desk clerks and radio dispatchers, no change of starting pay of $2400, but maximum raised from $2700 to $3000.

County Supervisor I. G. McNayr, estimated the new scale would cost $12,800 this fiscal year and about $15,000 next year. Eventually, he said, the increase will cost approximately $20,000 a year.

Owners, Stores

Pinball Fees Prepared For District

Pinball machine owners as well as District storekeepers who lease the Amusement Only machines will have to pay license fee to do business here, the District License Office disclosed yesterday.

Moreover, provisions of the new licensing regulation will ban playing of the "skill" games by children under 17 between the school day hours of 8 a. m. to 3 p. m.

The licensing regulation activities, together with others covering regulations of loan firms, were reported yesterday as preparations were begun for a crackdown on unlicensed public bridge clubs.

Nottingham Confirms Details

District License Supt. C. T. Nottingham confirmed details of the new provisions being incorporated into the licensing measure for pinball machines. First draft provided for license fees of $12 for each machine, payable by the storekeeper. The new provision licensing machine owners as well does not yet include the fee the owners will be charged.

Officials said the pinball licensing regulations are being rushed so that they may be ready for approval by District Commissioners in time for school opening next month.

Loan firms are now subject to a District regulation whose rewriting has been underway for several months. Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester Gray said the revised version is now almost complete and will be submitted shortly to a committee from the District Bar Association and representatives of the local loan firms for their suggestions.

The project has been delayed because of the volume of complaints received, many of which establish the need for further amendments to curb various practices, Gray explained.

Nottingham said the "complaints about loan firms have been rolling in." Frequently the complainants withdraw charges after the firms, upon investigation by the license department, offer restitution, he explained.

Public Bridge Clubs

The crackdown on unlicensed public bridge clubs continued yesterday with the drafting of a letter by Assistant License Superintendent Thomas Helan directing clubs to file for licenses under penalty of enforced closing by police if the request is not obeyed. The letters will be distributed today, Nottingham said.

At the same time, Nottingham revealed that a list of clubs against which small stakes gambling has been charged, has been turned over to the Police Department for appropriate action.

[A bridge expert yesterday called the attention of The Washington Post to the difference between "rubber" and "duplicate" bridge. The former is played for stakes. The latter is not a money game. "Duplicate" bridge is considered a game of skill and is the kind of bridge played in the master tournaments.—Editor's Note.]

Six Tick Fever Cases Cured By New Drug

New spotted fever cures by a dramatically effective drug called aureomycin were reported yesterday together with news that supplies are adequate to treat all tick fever victims in the area.

Dr. Mark H. Lepper of George Washington University medical school, announced that the drug cured three men, all within 72 hours, of the dreaded fever. He pointed out that the death rate of Rocky Mountain spotted fever among adults is five times greater than among children.

The drug, he said, is supplied local medical research groups by its makers, the Lederle Drug Co., of Pearl River, N. Y.

There are 13 to 20 cases of spotted fever treated annually in District hospitals, with two thirds of these reported contracted in nearby areas, Health Department statistics show.

Dr. Lepper said his group also used aureomycin to cure three children of the fever, one of whom "probably would have died without it." He said the girl had a "raging" fever and was an "extreme case" when the drug was administered.

Results of the G. W. medical group's use of the drug follows a recent announcement from Children's Hospital here that five youngsters were cured by its use, all within a short time.

Patients treated by Dr. Lepper's group included a 54-year-old man at Gallinger Hospital; another, 50, at Doctor's Hospital, and the third, 45, at Leesburg, Va. Two of the children were patients at Gallinger, and the third was treated at Sibley Hospital.

Prince Georges Adds Four to Police Force

The appointees are William J. Turner, 27, Brandywine; Donald D. Forsht, 21, 300 Avenue C, District Heights; David F. Dudley, 22, Laurel; George R. Roland, 21, 7591 Livingston rd., Oxon Hill. Forsht, Dudley and Roland are Navy veterans with shore patrol experience.

The appointments are effective September 15, at starting salaries of $2180. The new men will bring the number of county policemen to 42, of whom nine are temporary.

County Policemen Charles Nalley and J. P. Kearns, now stationed at Upper Marlboro and Dudley, will be assigned to the Hyattsville substation, while the other three new men will be assigned to Upper Marlboro, Superintendent of Police Ralph Brown said.

The commissioners received a delegation of 30 from Carol Highlands Special Improvement District 16 asking that the construction of storm water drainage, pavements and street paving be completed before winter.

The request is scheduled for a public hearing August 31, but the commissioners said they are not sure they can sell bonds totaling $219,000 to obtain funds for the improvements in view of the assessed valuation of the property in the area.

County Engineer Arthur W. Tayman was instructed to check closely to see if the costs cannot be reduced to a point where the residents can afford them. The commissioners indicated they favor the improvement if it can be accomplished, but will not act officially until the hearing.

Purchase of four additional snowplows to cost $582 each was authorized, which will bring the county plows to 13 in addition to eight graders and road maintainers, also used for snow removal.

Park Orator Held For Action of Jury

Philip Warren—America's outstanding lawyer, he says—gave a Municipal Court audience yesterday an hour-long sample of the form that he claims also makes him the most popular orator in Franklin Park.

After he was through, he was held for the District grand jury on a charge of intimidating a witness, while two cases of soliciting alms and two of disorderly conduct were continued until September 7.

The 42-year-old Warren, who claims he has organized an association of Franklin Park habitues, told off the entire courtroom audience, the judge, the prosecutor, park police and Gallinger Hospital attendants.

Most of all his fiery oratory was directed at Mrs. Alice M. Patterson, 35, of 1712 Kenyon st. nw., the complainant.

Threatened, Woman Says

Mrs. Patterson testified before Judge Armond Scott that Warren, for whom she had once worked, had told her if she testified against him "the moment I left the witness stand, he would get me on a warrant for perjury." He added, she testified, he was not responsible for "my life, my family's and my two nephews."

Warren's "big moment" came when he began cross-examination, appearing as his own attorney. He called Assistant United States Attorney Frank Reifsnider a whole series of names.. He said he didn't like the way Mrs. Patterson moved her eyes. He charged the judge had talked to Reifsnider before the case began.

Time and again, Judge Scott cautioned him from unlawyerlike utterances. Time and again, Assistant United States Attorney Frank M. Reifsnyder objected. But there was no stopping Warren.

Bailiffs Stop Guffaws

In the courtroom, he said, sat numerous habitues of Franklin Park, but they were atheists, anarchists, Communists," and unworthy of his Franklin Park Civic and Humane Society.

His Franklin Park friends, he intimated, weren't there.

Through it all, court bailiffs moved around rapping for order amid the guffaws of the court audience.

When he finally gave up, Judge Scott declared solemnly: "I'm going to have to hold you for the grand jury."

Alexandria Assessor Hit By Beverley

Alexandria Councilman-Elect Marshall J. Beverley yesterday attacked the operation of the city assessor's office and severely criticized City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto in his sixth blast in 10 days at the city government.

Beverley quoted a report prepared by the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Virginia which said the city should receive much more revenue than it does from the real estate tax. The report also referred to the tax assessor's office as a "foreign legion" because of its remote position from government supervision, Beverley said.

The councilman-elect said Assessor Francis Drischler had told him he had taken the position as a "temporary job" and only because it was "wished on him." Drischler, who is paid $5000 a year by the city, acted as supervising architect for construction of a bank addition, two churches and other property while serving as assessor, Beverley charged.

Drescher could not be reached for comment.

"It appears to me," said Beverley, "that the city manager does not know how his departments are functioning under him and is incapable of running the city."

Colasanto had no comment.

The office of tax assessor came under the city manager's supervision after a city charter change four months ago. Recommendations from the bureau on possible changes in methods of taxing real estate are now under consideration by city council.

On Sunday, Beverley charged inefficiency at the city shop, only to be told by Colasanto that he was "misinformed" on his figures.

Fee Plan Approved

The mechanics for collection of fees from stadium and arena owners for the services of District firemen and policemen were approved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

A law passed June 29 by Congress permits the District to charge the actual salary of policemen and firemen for work at public events. The fees are retroactive to July 1.

The Commissioners ruled that officials of Police and Fire Departments should estimate each month's fees from each public place and turn the estimates over to District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton.

He, in turn, would submit the estimated to Superintendent of Licenses C. T. Nottingham, who would make out bills to individual places. The bills would be payable to the Collector of Taxes.

Several operators have indicated admission fees may be boosted to cover the new fees.

Man Ousts Skunk

A neighbor, who used to catch skunks as a boy in Tennessee, yesterday ousted the skunk that has been stuck since Saturday outside the basement apartment window of Mrs. Sylvia O'Neal Ross, 4029 7th st. ne.

Mrs. Ross had appealed in vain to the Metropolitan Police, the Animal Rescue League and the Health Department for help in removing the smelly little animal which had become trapped under a wooden drainboard.

Wearing swimming trunks, Charles A. Lewis, 4933 7th st. ne., pried up the drain cover, worried the skunk into a barracks bag, and then deposited the animal in the woods where it can raise all the stink it cares to.

Mrs. Rose still, however, had to get rid of the odor that remained.

D. C. Treatment Helps Girl, 3, Survive 2 Copperhead Bites

SNAKE'S VICTIM—Mr. and Mrs. Willis Carbaugh comfort their daughter, Clara May, 3, in Children's Hospital

Twice bitten by a deadly copperhead, a 3-year-old Virginia farm girl was alive last night, thanks to physicians at Children's Hospital, Washington's Zoo director, and a 40-mile ambulance run.

The victims, Clara May Carbaugh, was bitten above the right ankle at 6 p. m. Monday, as she played in back of the family barn about two miles from Leesburg. Four puncture wounds indicated the venomous snake had struck twice, physicians said.

Within three hours, she was being treated with anti-venom serum supplied by the Washington Wholesale Drug Exchange as hospital physicians worked to extract the snake's poison with venom-drawing equipment of Dr. William M. Mann of the zoo. Despite reported "blood clot spasms," she was pronounced in "satisfactory" condition last night.

The child's father, Willis Carbaugh, 39, employe of the Old Dominion Railroad, said he heard her scream and found her writhing in pain and fear in the bushes behind the barn.

"I hoped against hope Clara May was just frightened. Then I saw blood flowing from her ankle," he said.

The father drove his child over narrow, twisting roads to a physician's office in Leesburg. But no antivenom serum was available there. A Leesburg ambulance was summoned and there followed a speedy dash to Children's Hospital with the siren screaming.

Hospital physicians determined the seriousness of her condition and telephoned Dr. Mann, widely known herpetologist.

Dr. Mann told them he'd be down with serum and the venom extractor. Meanwhile, however, Landon W. Wilkins, 36, of 2613 3d st. ne,. Drug Exchange employe, was contacted and he rushed over with the needed serum.

The snake? It lay hacked into three pieces in the bushes behind the Carbaugh barn. The father had grabbed up an ax as he ran to aid his child.

Dr. Mann said he knows of only six instances of bites by poisonous snakes in the Washington area in the past five years. He's been called for help on all of them, he said. In years past, the Zoo director said, copperheads were plentiful in Rock Creek Park.

District Businessman Gives His $50,000 Yacht to Israel

A Washington businessman gave his $50,000 pleasure yacht, The Viking, to the state of Israel yesterday. It was the first gift of its type the new nation has received.

Bernard Rodins, 46-year-old distributor of coin-operating vending machines, handed the ship's papers over to Eliahu Epstein, special representative of the state of Israel here, at Slip 35 of the 14th and Maine ave. wharves. The flag of the new state, which was recognized by President Truman on May 14, was raised on the ship's main mast during a brief ceremony.

"It's just my way of expressing my admiration for those people over there and the wonderful way they're trying to get freedom for themselves," said Rodins, who lives at 4607 Connecticut ave. nw.

An official at the Israel Mission here said the 48-foot craft, powered by a single gasoline motor, would probably be used in Haifa or Tel Aviv harbor to ferry passengers or cargo from larger ships docked off shore. Israel seriously lacks harbor craft, he said, since the British owned all boats previously used for that purpose.

The Viking, custom-built for sea duty about 23 years ago, is "irreplaceable" now, according to Rodins, who bought the craft about 3 years ago and has been using it for cruises to New England and Florida. It is equipped with three cabins, a stainless-steel galley, shower bath and pressurized water system.

The yacht can go more than 1000 miles without refueling and has a speed of about 12 knots—not fast enough for fighting purposes, Rodins pointed out.

Halsey, Stuart Purchases Montgomery School Bonds

The New York bonding firm of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., yesterday purchased three million dollars in Montgomery County school construction bonds at a public sale in Rockville. Bids had been submitted previously.

The county Commissioners also yesterday awarded $143,000 in certificates of indebtedness to the Montgomery County National Bank in Rockville. This five-year short term loan at 2 per cent interest will be used to repay county funds which have financed street and sidewalk improvements on a front-foot benefit assessment basis.

The commissioners also renewed the permit of Blake D. Merson, owner of Montgomery County Refuse Co., to operate a dump near Rockville.

'Too Many Democrats,' Says Johns

Too many Democrats are in charge of things in Montgomery County to suit Brooke Johns, the Republican president of the Republican-dominated board of county commissioners.

Yesterday, during the commissioners' meeting at Rockville, he hit the ceiling—about Democrats. The occasion was a complaint from a woman about an unrepaired street.

"The trouble with this county is there as too many Democrats running things," popped up Johns. "If more people would vote for a Republican Governor and more Republican legislators at Annapolis, our hands wouldn't be tied.

A reminder from Commissioner Oliver W. Youngblood, who was presiding, that "We are getting a little off the subject," restored the meeting to order.

Some Assets Of Estate Will Be Sold

A District Court order was signed yesterday authorizing the sale of $297,287 in stocks and bonds from the estate of the late Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald.

The order was issued by Justice Richmond B. Keech after officials of the Riggs National Bank, the estate collector, told the court that the sale is necessary in order to provide funds for payment of estate and inheritance taxes and other claims.

Mrs. Patterson, owner, editor and publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, died on July 24. The newspaper was left to seven employes and the remainder of her estate of more than 15 million dollars was divided among relatives, friends and charities.

Y., to teach for a year, while Miss Deirdre O'Sullivan, who left, is going to Omaha, Neb. Miss Mary Palmer of Taplow, England (right) will teach this winter at a school in Indianapolis, Ind. Minister Is Host

Tea in British Embassy Garden Honors Visiting School Teachers

BRITISH SCHOOLTEACHERS—over a hundred of them from England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales—were entertained at tea at the British Embassy yesterday. F. R. Hoyer Millar, Minister, received the teachers in the absence of the Ambassador, Sir Oliver Shewell Franks, who is now at Nantucket with Lady Franks and their two daughters.

The Minister urged the teachers to feel free to call on their embassy at any time for assistance. "However," he remarked, "we aren't quite as concerned about your welfare in this country as some other countries are about their teachers."

Neville Gardiner of the British Information Service told the teachers that "Americans have a great interest in public speaking, and therefore we will endeavor to supply you with as many facts as possible for any speeches you will be called upon to make."

It was pointed out that the Ambassador himself once served as an exchange professor at the University of Chicago, and that he had gained valuable experience thereby.

Orange juice and coffee cooled with ice cream were served the guests who gathered on the steps of the terrace and on the wide lawn of the garden. The Assistant Secretary of State, George V. Allen, was among the guests, as well as Paul E. Smith, chairman of the Exchange Committee of the United States Office of Education.

The English teachers who are in this country have been replaced with American teachers in England, under the sponsorship of the English Speaking Union. The American teachers sailed on August 1.

Miss Millicent Jeens of London, who was at the tea yesterday, is going to Joliet, Ill., to be an instructor in physical education, and Frederick Checksfield of London will teach in Mamaroneck, N. Y. Another teacher, Miss Deirdre O'Sullivan of London is going to Omaha, Nebr., and Miss Mary Palmer of Taplow, England, is going to Indianapolis, Ind.

Miss Laura May Norris, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, is in Paris, France, with her sister, Miss Marion Norris, and Miss Louise Hamilton. Miss Laura May Norris has a job with the ECA and will remain abroad for the winter. Her sister and Miss Hamilton are expected back in the early fall.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Devoted Couple Wonder How to Build Defense Against Old Flame's Pursuit of the Husband; She Jilted Him Years Ago to Marry Another

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Bill and I have been married two and a half years. We are much in love, have a small baby and are ideally happy.

Eight years ago Bill planned to marry Sally. They had gone together for three years when she broke the engagement unexpectedly and married Tom soon after. She had met Tom while visiting in another State.

Bill and I had been married one month when Sally telephoned from his mother's home and wanted him to come over. She had just learned he was married and insisted on a visit. Bill went over; I wasn't invited.

Bill told me later that after her marriage, Sally continued to visit him, wrote to him while he was in the Army (although he never answered her letters) and made efforts to learn when he would be home, so she could invite him for weekends. It seems her husband didn't mind; at least he didn't show it.

Pursuer Finally Meets Man's Wife

TOM and Sally aren't here in winter, but as soon as they return each year Sally tries to contact Bill. For instance, last year she rang our home, Bill wasn't in, and she refused to leave her name. Later I learned it was she who had called.

Recently Tom and Sally called on us unexpectedly. This was my first meeting with them. They had looked up our new address, which is 50 miles from their summer place. Sally carried the conversation, consisting mostly of queries about her old girl friends, whom Bill had dated after she married.

I was very cordial during the visit but Bill resented her coming here and said to me later: "She must know I wouldn't be seeing her old girl friends; why doesn't she look them up, if she's interested; they're only 10 minutes from here?" Also he asked, "Why does Tom stand for her actions? I'd be furious if you dragged me to see an old beau of yours. How can I make her stay away?"

What's the answer? What are her motives? Before leaving, she suggested our going nightclubbing together. What course should Bill and I take? We respect your judgment and want your advice.

D. R.

DEAR D. R.: I daresay Sally's unconscious motive for switching from Bill to Tom, eight years ago, was to punish Bill for failing to crawl to her.

She is the sort, I think, whose ego demands that her sweetheart or husband be her slave, as proof that she is a spellbinder, a proof she craves because fundamentally she gives no love, hence feels no reality, no deep validity, in her intimate affiliation with the male.

Further it seems to me that Sally's unblushing pursuit of Bill from the time she married means that she can't reconcile herself to the possibility—now a fact—that Bill could dismiss her from mind and construct a satisfying life without her, after she jilted him.

Warped Ego Sparks Her Loveless Chase

SALLY will despise the lover who jumps through hoops for her, yet will try to cut the heart out of him who refuses to do so, and according to her self-worshipful reckoning, she was supposed to have ruined Bill's life when she threw him over.

At first she was running back to see if she'd succeeded in that, and when she saw she hadn't, she couldn't bear it and brooded herself into the fixated notion that she must get her hooks into him again for another try. Her latest tactic for getting at Bill is to cultivate you, whom she rudely ignored before,—so to sum up Sally, she is dog-in-the-manger as regards Bill, and a snake in the grass, in intent towards you. Thus my advice is snub her advances with frosty courtesy. Never ask her to call and never accept her invitations.

Dining Room Should Be Room To Live In

Decorate your dining room as a room to be lived in all day long. "Gone is the day when the dining room was just a place to eat," says Christine Holbrook, home furnishing editor of Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

Before you start to decorate, throw away all the old rules. Think of your dining room as a room with many jobs to do. The furniture you buy, the way you arrange it, even the covering on your floors should help it do those jobs. If it does, it's good decorating.

You can bring in color in draperies, rug, upholstered host chairs, even seats on dining chairs. The walls will be the biggest color feature in your room. Bold patterned or striped walls can add the color instead of pictures and upholstered furniture. But, before you plunge, let the walls and colors of adjoining rooms guide you.

Above all, your dining-room floor must be practical—prepared for crumbs, spots and extra wear under the table. Consider linoleum, rubber tile or polished cork squares. In carpeting, choose a pattern or texture that will look clean, even after a meal. All-over carpeting ties a living-dining room together.

Miss Brown to Give Radio Talk

The program will include sidelights of Wisconsin's Centennial Exposition with interviews by Don Lerch from the exposition grounds. Native Indians will relate the history of their forefathers in that section of the country and agricultural leaders will tell how the fair portrays the farm and country life of Wisconsin, leading dairy State of the Nation.

Peanuts Add Flavor To Corn Bread

Putting peanuts in the traditional southern cornbread is a simple, low-cost way to add flavor and nutritive value to this staple food of the South, Ouida D. Abbott of the Florida Experiment Station suggests.

The peanuts give the bread more protein, fat and niacin—the antipellagra vitamin. One-third ground raw peanuts to two-thirds cornmeal is the mixture she suggests.

Any housewife can add ground peanuts to her favorite cornbread recipe. The recipe Dr. Abbott uses calls for 1 1/3 cups corn meal; 2/3 cup ground peanuts; 1 teaspoon salt; 2 teaspoons baking powder; 2 cups milk. The dry ingredients are mixed and then moistened with the milk. The use of milk instead of water gives added protein to the bread. No fat is needed in the batter when peanuts are used, but the pan should be greased before baking the bread.

Household Hints

Place the garlic in a tightly covered jar and put it in the ice box. Then you have it there for that "suspicion" of garlic so desirable in a salad and you are free from odor of it in the keeping.

For Feeling of Well-Being

Take It Easy—But Also Take Time for Exercises Daily

By Ida Jean Kain

Exercise is most popularly known as a muscle builder. Right away that makes it unpopular—nobody wants bulging muscles. And since there is no proof that exercise helps anyone to live longer, why bother about exercise? Because a little exercise gives a fillip to each day, quickening our feeling of well-being.

Regular exercise helps to keep the vital organs tuned up and in excellent functional condition and the muscles in good tone. With improved muscle tone, the nervous system works smoothly. The body engine can idle smoothly or go into action easily.

So take it easy . . . but take a little exercise. A slow, steady stretch, rhythmically contracting, stretching and releasing the muscles, increases the flow of blood through the heart, veins and arteries. However, if there is any doubt as to whether or not you should take mild calisthenics, ask your doctor first.

Follow the rules and do not exercise within one or two hours after eating, and avoid eating within 15 minutes after exercise. The reason is simple—in exercise the blood is drawn into the muscles and at mealtime it is needed in the stomach to help digest the food.

Today's trio tones the important middle muscles . . .

Position: Lying on back on floor, knees flexed, soles of feet flat on floor. This is a safety position.

Movement: Flatten small of the back smack against the floor by pulling up and in strongly with the abdominal muscles. Now slide feet down on floor, slowly, while counting aloud to 10, continue until legs are straight down on floor. Be sure to keep the abdominal muscles contracted as legs are extended. Repeat 6 times, later 12, still later 20.

Movement: Lift head, right shoulder and left leg a few inches off floor and touch the left knee with the right hand. Then bend the left knee, raise the left shoulder and the right leg, and repeat exercise about six times, alternating sides. Arms should be relaxed always. Throughout the exercise keep the abdominal muscles pulled up and in.

Finish by stretching to full length on floor and pulling up with the arms and pushing down with the feet—stretch and pull, slowly and smoothly. Relax and stretch again and again.

That's all, folks.

Dry and Straight

The lucky woman who has naturally curly hair must not forget her 100 strokes with the brush each night to keep those locks wavy and glistening. Inattention is apt to straighten the hair a bit and it certainly does not improve its quality.

Let Him Feed Himself

Parental Pressure-Methods Spoil Child's Taste for Food

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

There is little question but that the mother who knows the most about proper feeding is apt to develop feeding problems in her eagerness to get these proper foods into the children. Of all the letters I receive, and have received in 30 years of this work, feeding holds first place.

Mrs. L. D. B. feels prompted to share her success in connection with feeding.

"We have two sons," she writes, "one 2½ and one a year old. They are eating the bottoms out of our budget in a world of rebellious eaters and exhausted parents.

"Self-preservation is one of our basic drives and the baby is born with an appetite to insure survival. He eats because he wants to, not because we want him to. In no time the parent has lost sight of this, if indeed she ever learned it.

"The first inflictions come when the baby for some good reason of his own refuses food, or is urged to like a new food too rapidly. All too easily a pattern of refusal and suspicion may be built up by parental high-pressure methods. Perhaps the trouble lies in too much emphasis upon nutrition and not enough on stressing a happy, receptive attitude that eating can be lots of fun.

"In my case, new foods were introduced in minute quantities and they were never urged, beyond a taste, to eat anything they didn't want. The few short months of learning to like a new food is brief compared to a lifetime of enjoyment and benefit from it.

"As soon as finger-type poking and pincer grasping appeared I put bits of food on a tray. A lima bean of his own discovery has far more appeal than one presented on a silver spoon.

"By promoting coordination with early use of manipulative toys, at 11 months each high chair was equipped with a plastic feeding dish secured with plasticene. Feeding themselves and holding their cups was, thereafter, one of their great adventures in independence.

"Parents talk about independence all the time they are saying, in effect, 'let me do it' to avoid messiness. My own acted bored if I did their job.

"Further freedom should be theirs in the choice of foods, if all the right foods are given. As Terry, the Two, said to Peter, the One, 'Oh, eating by self, be fun.'"

Electric Outlets

Plugging too many electrial appliances into one outlet may cut the current, dim the lights, overload the circuit and blow a fuse, advises the Department of Agriculture.

FRUIT OF THE VINE: Grape juice makes wonderfully cooling summer fruit drinks. Dipping rims of glasses in lemon juice then in fine sugar just before serving adds to the appearance of the beverage

Cool Grape Juice Revives Drooping Spirits

WHEN THE MERCURY is romping up around 90 and your spirits are drooping down around zero, it's an ideal time for a cool, refreshing grape juice drink.

There are dozens of beverages that can be built around this rich, purple liquid. A well-known standby for mixing punch for large parties, it's equally useful when you're stirring up a few cooling drinks—or even just one.

Easy to mix is Grape Juice Ricky, a drink as refreshing as a cool summer dip in the swimming pool. For one glass, use about 1 tablespoon fresh lime or lemon juice, 1 teaspoon powdered sugar, equal parts grape juice and carbonated water, and enough ice to chill. Dissolve sugar in grape juice and lime or lemon juice. Add carbonated water and stir just once before serving.

MINTED COOLER

6 tablespoons lemon juice
1½ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons tea
15 mint leaves
3 cups boiling water
¾ cup fine sugar
1 1/3 cup grape juice

Squeeze juice from lemons and oranges and save skins. Combine the first skins, tea, and mint leaves. Cover with boiling water and let stand until cool. Strain off water, pressing liquid from fruit skins. Combine liquid with lemon and orange juices, sugar, and grape juice. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Chill and serve iced.

* * *

FEATURING TEA as well as grape juice is this beverage which should be served in tall glasses with plenty of ice.

WARM WEATHER TEA

3 cups boiling water
3 teaspoons tea leaves
Juice of 2 lemons
1 pint grape juice
4 teaspoons sugar

Pour boiling water over tea leaves. Cover closely and allow to stand 5 minutes. Strain. Add lemon juice, grape juice, and sugar, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Chill thoroughly. This recipe makes six servings.

I recently washed a pink tulle evening gown and found that it laundered beautifully. However, the skirt has three wide lace flounces on it and I am anxious to know if there is anything I can use to stiffen the lace a bit. It looks just a little too limp and I feel that the proper amount of stiffening would give it a newer look. Can the same type of stiffening be used for cotton, silk and rayon tulle? V. D.

Use a rinse with gum arabic (which can be purchased at a drug store) in it to stiffen the lace slightly. Make the solution by adding a pint of boiling water to 1 ounce of powdered gum arabic. Stir over low heat until the gum arabic is completely dissolved. Dilute with 2 or 3 quarts of lukewarm water according to the stiffness desired. This stiffening is suitable for all washable laces and tulle. It doesn't actually starch them, just returns to them the original body which was lost during the washing process.

We are planning to pack our baby's carriage, bathinette, play pen and pad away and would like to know what treatment to give them before doing so. They will probably be put into a cellar. S. T. H.

If the carriage is leather or leatherette, clean it before storing by washing with a mild soap and warm water. Rinse and dry very thoroughly. The metal parts should be wiped free of dirt and waxed. If the enamel is broken, either reenamel the metal work, sanding away loose enamel before painting, or apply melted paraffin to the exposed spots to prevent rusting.

Fold the carriage and wrap in plastic or waterproof cloth (available by the yard where fabrics are sold). Be sure to tie securely so that the damp air is excluded. Or, the folded carriage could be placed in a plastic bag such as is used for storing clothes. Place the wrapped carriage on a shelf away from the floor where air will circulate around it.

The bathinette should be washed and thoroughly dried, folded and wrapped as described above. Cleaning and waxing the play pen will give it protection against dirt and moisture. The play pen should be covered tightly with cloth or paper and both articles stored on a platform away from the floor. I would suggest that you find an upstairs storage place for the pad to prevent mold and mildew. Be sure the surface of it is clean and then wrap in paper to keep it clean.

I have a black satin evening gown that has been stored away for some time. The other day I took it out of the box and find that all the jet beads on it have dulled considerably. What can I use to restore the sheen of these black jet beads? V. D.

I'm sorry, but there just doesn't seem to be any home method for restoring the sheen to these beads which would be safe to use while they are attached to the satin.

I would like to know where I can purchase the commercial Godey Lady Book Dolls with china heads. They are 12 inches tall. I would also like to know the price of the dolls. Any help you can give me about this matter will be greatly appreciated. There is a McCall's pattern for making the Godey Lady Book Dolls, but I am interested in the ones that can be purchased with the china heads. E. R. B.

There is a doll hospital on 19th st. which has for sale undressed dolls with china heads that could be costumed in the manner you have in mind. Also, the shop representative with whom I talked has said that she would be glad to put you in touch with other dollology people who may be in a position to supply you. If you'd like to discuss the subject with her, you can reach her by calling REpublic 1126.

Will you tell me the proper way to wash a girdle? A READER.

Prepare the suds of luke-warm water and mild soap flakes. Squeeze the suds through and through the fabric until thoroughly clean. If very soiled, change the water during the washing period. Rinse thoroughly and squeeze as much moisture from the garment as possible. Now, roll the garment in a dry bath towel and squeeze the roll to remove additional moisture. Lay on another dry towel to dry, patting and pulling the garment into its original shape as you do. Place in an airy place to dry out, do not place in the direct sun.

To B. E. S.: The recipe for chess pie, given in Sunday's column by M. F. G., should have read "3 eggs, well-beaten," instead of "3 egg whites, well-beaten."

My floors have been neglected and, in one doorway, have become quite soiled. I gave it a hard scrubbing and it was dark when wet, but dried out light and clean looking. However, when shellacked again it looks dark and soiled. Kindly advise me how to remove shellac and make a good looking floor. E. F.

To remove the shellac, soak with alcohol and wipe away with a coarse cloth. Continue applying the alcohol until all the shellac is removed. Now, the finish you apply to the floor is largely a matter of preference. Shellac and varnish do wear off in the most used places and it is difficult to renew these spots without redoing the entire floor. For this reason, many people feel that building up a protective coating of wax is the best finish for much used floors. To your clean floor you could apply several thin coats of wax, buffing very thoroughly after each coat is dry. Using an electric buffer will help you to get a hard finish. If you will be careful afterward to touch up worn areas as they appear and give the floor a good all-over waxing whenever necessary to keep the floor sealed against dirt, you will soon build up a good protective coat which will need only occasional attention.

OPPORTUNITY
PLUS
Wednesday evening, August 25, we will present a new era of happiness and security and offer ambitious men the opportunity to join the ranks of successful men in our organization. This opportunity today is giving many local men—all vocation—the certainty needed for the purchase of a new home, autos and many other needs for comfort and security. Earnings run many times their present incomes. Many of our men earn from $700 to $800 monthly in commissions selling electrical units. Since this is not the usual "Run of the Mill" sales proposition, we will present our plan only if your wife accompanies you—her happiness is contingent on your success and she must know completely the first time what you will be offered. We are sincere in this offer. We hope to see you and your wife Wednesday evening, August 25. Call me for time and meeting place—I will be at one of the leading Washington hotels. Male Driver Pours Out His Tale of Woe

A friend of mine stopped me on the street the other day.

"I've got a problem," he said. "I need advice. It's about my wife driving the car."

"Look," I broke in hastily, "I've gotten into enough trouble already with women drivers. Leave me out of this. Mary Haworth handles the advice on our paper."

"No, no, you don't understand," he protested. "I have no complaint about her driving; she's very good. My problem begins when I get the car back after she's had it."

"Wrinkled fenders?"

"No—never a scratch. But first I have to shove the seat back, before I can squeeze in behind the wheel. She's short, you know. She moves it up."

"I see."

"Then, of course, the rear view mirror needs readjustment. Also the side mirrors."

"Uh huh."

"I turn on the radio, which I always keep on WINX, and I get a soap opera. She's been tuning it. But the knob sticks at times, and I can't get back to WINX."

"Ummmm."

"I start off and there's a blast of air on my feet, and dust and ashes swirl up from the floor and hit me in the face. She's opened the cowl ventilator, and the ash tray beneath it is full of red-tipped butts."

"You're killing me."

"She's changed the overdrive button, the seat is full of hairpins, and all the stuff I was saving behind the sun visor is scattered about the floor."

"And the gas tank is . . . ?"

"Empty! So I just wondered if you could give me some advice. What should I do?"

"You should forget it," I said firmly, "and buy yourself a Capital Transit pass."

"An excellent suggestion," he replied as we parted. "I'll show her she can't push me around."

THE REEL NEED

Will Hollywood ever turn out an adult movie in which there is no "mood music?"

Will the shipwrecked hero be permitted to drift in peace on his life-raft, without the accompaniment of a 60-piece floating symphony orchestra?

Will the heroine be allowed to set off on her honeymoon without taking a troupe of Petrillo's boys along as chaperones?

Will the cowboy sneaking up on the cattle rustlers be able to avoid all the loose stones, dry twigs and musicians which beset his path?

Will Sidney Greenstreet ever be able to poison anybody without an accompanying crash of cymbals?

The answer, I fear, is "No." But they can't stop me from hoping.

Even in scenes in which Nature is depicted in all her fury, Hollywood insists on "dramatizing" the episode, by adding music. The result is that movie music crashes headlong into movie hurricanes—with the hurricanes coming out second best.

In its proper place, I like music as well as the next man—everything from B. Goodman to Bizet. But not, if you please, during a cinema earthquake, prize fight, or train wreck.

I'm convinced that the movies will never take the place of the old-fashioned headache, and that Hollywood would, therefore, be well advised to concentrate on making its products better instead of louder.

(I've been waiting for a year to get this off my chest, and Coe finally went on his vacation.)

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

The Mount Pleasant carline brings me to the office each working day, and I've been watching the progress of the work at Dupont Circle with much interest.

I find myself wondering what's going to happen to our carline once the digging starts in earnest. Will it be rerouted, replaced by a bus—or what?

Col. B. A. Day.

Dear Colonel Day:

The brass at Capital Transit pondered that problem long and hard, and finally decided on this solution:

A temporary trestle will be built, to take the streetcar tracks right over the circle (and the excavation going on below).

Bill.

NEW YORK.—Jimmy Roosevelt's campaign for the governorship of California will start immediately after the November elections. He expects Senator Knowland to be his opposing candidate. Opposition to Roosevelt's Democratic nomination will come from Senator Sheridan Downey . . . Marcia Davenport, the novelist, who fled from Prague two days before the Terror hit the city, is recuperating in London . . . Danny Kaye, who established popularity and attendance records in London last winter, will return to England on assignment from Warner Brothers. His next movie will be made at the London studios.

The Truman-Dewey dispute over Italian colonies, which was front-paged last week, is similar to the Abyssinian campaign issue created by the presidential candidate in Lindsay & Crouse's "State of the Union" . . . After Victor Kravchenko's statement about his role in the Kasenkina-Samarine escape from the Soviet Consulate here, a reporter reached Eugene Lyons, who helped Kravchenko write "I Chose Freedom." Lyons was asked: "How much would you estimate Kravchenko made out of the book?" and he replied: "I couldn't make an estimate—because I know" . . . Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, who opposed Truman's nomination, will campaign for him. "I'm a Democrat," said Pepper, "and I therefore will give my full support to the Democratic nominee."

Pablo Picasso, the French artist who has turned to ceramics, is producing 90 pieces every three days. He refuses to sell any of them as yet . . . He returned to Paris a few days ago, and one of his friends asked him whether he intended visiting America. The artist said that such a trip would "entail too many difficulties, because of his membership in the Communist Party, and therefore the restrictions of his movements. "If I were to go to America," said Picasso, "I could not, in all conscience, permit myself to be treated differently, because I am an artist, from others of my political faith. I would demand that I be kept at Ellis Island."

Gov. James M. Cox, the former presidential candidate, just celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as publisher-owner of the Dayton News . . . George Jessel arrived in New York Saturday to see his fiancee, Abigail Adams, who is in a hospital . . . When Arthur Hornblow, the MGM producer, learned that his new studio boss, Dore Schary, had been given a 9-room office, he said: "It's a good thing he didn't need 10 rooms, or I'd have been out of a job? . . . The current story is of a beggar, who was told by a prospect: "Why do you beg on the streets?" The beggar replied: "Why not? Should I open an office?"

Merry-Go-Round

Justice Puns After Narrow Crash Escape

(While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas had a very close brush with death the other day.

Vacationing in Washington State, the jurist accompanied a friend who was trucking four horses across the Cascade Mountains. While ascending a steep canyon road, the rear wheels of the truck suddenly began slipping on loose dirt from a recent slide.

Douglas

Before the friend and Douglas could do anything about it, the heavy truck had skidded out of control and was hurtling backward wildly. After some distance, the truck finally crashed upside down against some trees, scattering the occupants over the landscape.

Miraculously, neither the men nor the animals were injured.

Eye-Poppers

The preliminary budget estimates submitted by the Army and Navy for next year are eye-poppers.

The two services are asking for approximately five billion dollars more than the 16 billion dollars Congress voted them this year. The Navy wants over 11 billion dollars and the Army more than 10 billion dollars.

This stupendous 21-billion-dollar total does not include Air Force estimates. They are still to come and are sure to be not less than seven billion dollars.

The 1949 budget is already in preparation. It will be submitted to the new Congress in January by President Truman, whether he is reelected or not. If they win, GOP leaders are privately planning to demand a voice in the preparation of the budget.

Pinched

In the supercharged Berlin atmosphere, Russian speeding is a constant headache to United States authorities. Traffic regulations mean little to the Reds, particularly officers. Once in an auto, they know only one speed—wide open.

But they are slowly learning. This is the way they are being taught:

A sergeant and a trooper of the crack United States Constabulary flagged down a racing Russian colonel. He stopped, but refused to identify himself. The sergeant, courteously, ordered him out of the car. The Russian not only refused, but wound up his windows and locked himself in the car.

"I guess we had better call an officer," the trooper said. "This bird's looking for trouble."

"Officer, hell," snorted the sergeant. "What kind of an Army do you think you're in? This is the United States Army, soldier. I don't need an officer to handle this guy. If he's looking for trouble, I'm the cookie to accommodate him—all legal and proper."

The sergeant sent for a wrecking truck. The front wheels of the Russian's car were jacked up and, with him still sitting locked glaring in it, the truck started dragging the car to an M. P. station. Whereupon the enraged Russian started his engine, and throwing it into reverse, tried to tear himself loose.

He not only had no luck, but by the time he arrived at the station his rear tires had been ground to shreds.

On The Ball

Minnesota GOP chiefs are strongly pressuring Gov. Earl Warren to bring his whole family to the State to give a much-needed hand to Senator Joe Ball. He faces a tough fight against young, aggressive Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis. Newspaper polls have shown him leading Ball.

Vaughanites

General MacArthur doesn't know it yet, but he's due to get some political straphangers hand-picked by Harry Vaughan, the President's two-starred, bully-boy military aide.

Hot Oil

The 15-year-old rift between United States oil companies and Mexico may soon be healed. Quiet negotiations are in progress that may again open up Mexico's huge oil resources to United States consumers. Both sides are giving every evidence of wanting to come to terms.
